The Lutheran S. S. picnic on Saturday evening in Alwine's grove, this place, was a grand success, realizing $149.26. This picnic was planned and announced through the Item nine months ago, and altho the Community Chautauqua happened to select the same date for the opening of the chautauqua, the Orphans' Home Band, of Loysville, proved a good card and drew a large crowd to the town, which no doubt was a benefit to both the picnic and chautauqua. This band has been invited to return for the next annual Lutheran S. S. picnic, which will probably be held on Saturday, July 21, 1923.

Miss Margaret Gentzler and John Hines, York, who were married on Sunday, visited New Oxford on their honeymoon.

James J. Flannery, charged with the murder of his young wife last February, was acquitted at Pittsburgh, Saturday, after the jury had deliberated for 15 nights. This is the longest jury deliberation in the history of that county. Flannery was charged with first degree murder. He set up a defense that he mistook his wife for a burglar, saying that he saw a shadowy form in a room and fired. His wife cried, "My God, Jim, you've shot me!" Flannery, it will be recalled, abandoned a big McFarlan car near New Oxford last summer, and on one occasion was arrested for shooting in Hanover.

Large audiences gathered to hear the Loysville Orphans' Home Band of 40 pieces at the Lutheran S. S. picnic on Saturday evening and also on Sunday morning in the First Lutheran church, at which place a fine sacred concert was rendered by the band. The magnificent sum of $125 was received in an offering for the Loysville Home on Saturday and Sunday. The boys were entertained by various members of the church in their homes on Saturday and Sunday. The youngsters rendered music of such a high order and in such an able way as to put them on a par with the best amateur bands in Pennsylvania. Harry Christman directed the boys in a most creditable manner. A jazz orchestra selection was much applauded. The band is on a summer tour of eastern Pennsylvania.

WOMAN FATALLY HURT

Mrs. Peter L. Trostle, 64, of Gettysburg, was fatally injured when she fell down a flight of cellar steps at her home Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Trostle apparently struck her head on the concrete cellar floor, for her skull was fractured. She was picked up in an unconscious condition and remained in that state until she passed away at 10:30 o'clock that night at the Warner hospital, to which institution she had been removed. Besides her husband the following children survive: Mrs. H. F. Bowers, Waynesboro; Mrs. A. H. Lightner and Mrs. Maurice Trostle, Gettysburg, and Mrs. Krumrine, Hanover. Two brothers and one sister also survive: Wm. Dietrich, Fort Collins, Col.; George Dietrich, near Gettysburg, and Mrs. Simon Orner, Biglerville.

Today will be the last day for the 1922 Community Chautauqua in New Oxford. The program as outlined in last week's Item has proved altogether pleasing and entertaining, and hopes are entertained that 1923 may see New Oxford again favored with a Chautauqua. An effort will be made to have the time changed, as farmers can not give up their work in harvest days. Chautauqua comes in the midst of harvest this year, the guarantors were each obliged to pay an assessment of $1.50 to make up a deficit.

In Felton's 16-4 victory over Delta on Saturday, Captain "Dude" Hildebrand's homer with the bases loaded and "Bob" Brown's fielding were the features for the victors. Both played with N. O. last season, as did Hersh who also played well for Felton. Wrightsville knocked Simpson out of the box at New Holland on the same day.

Mrs. Samuel Wolf, Lincoln Way, West, has been awarded compensation insurance of $7 per week for 300 weeks and her daughter $3 per week until the child is 16 years old, following the untimely death of the husband and father in a fall from a Diehl huckster wagon a month ago at Swift Run bridge on the Lincoln Highway.

R. E. LEPPU BUYS CIRCLE CAFE

Following the purchase by Harry M. Folmer, Hanover, of the Circle Cafe property, New Oxford, at public sale, for $9,000, Saturday aweek, from Mrs. Minnie D. Dicks, admrx. of the N. M. Dicks estate, R. E. Leppo, who has been employed as a truck driver by the wholesale grocery firm of Ehrhart & Conrad, of Hanover, for the past four years, in turn bought the property from Mr. Folmer for $12,500. The property consists of a 3-story brick hotel building, in which is located the Circle Cafe, an annex used as a pool room and kitchen and a garage on the eastern part of the lot. Possession August 1st. The furnishings were included in the sale. Mrs. Dicks will store certain retained furniture until she determines upon her future course. Mr. Leppo intends to conduct a modern hotel and restaurant in the property he has purchased, and expects to serve popular meals. It is said he has no intention of opening a grocery store at present, as has been rumored. R. M. Wolf will continue to run the Center Square garage on the property, according to present calculations.

Mr. Leppo will sell his property in Hanover on July 22nd.

FIRST DISTRICT S. S. CONVENTION

At the First Dist. S. S. convention at the Pines, on Sunday evening, two very inspirational addresses were given. The first one was by Roy A. Burkhardt, of the State Field force, on the subject of the greatest need of the S. S. today. As he sees it that need is a system by which we can create leadership. Five qualifications of leadership were given as follows: 1. Determination; 2. Confidence; 3. Sincerity; 4. Patience; 5. Personality.

The second speaker was Dr. Sanders, of Gettysburg college. His theme was: "Does Anybody Care?" One lesson that Jesus revealed to the world was that God cares. Dr. Sanders said he did not care if any told him of the close of the convention that they enjoyed his talk or not but he did care that they were all at S. S. next Sunday and every Sunday.

CHILD DRINKS IODINE

Mistaking a bottle of iodine for a bottle of medicine he enjoyed taking, Arthur Roth, Jr., 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Roth, Gettysburg, formerly of New Oxford, Sunday afternoon, drank the contents. Immediately after drinking the poisonous fluid, the child, with the empty bottle in his hand, walked into the room in which his father was sitting. Mr. Roth took in the situation at a glance and summoned a physician, in the meantime giving the child antidotes to counteract the action of the poison. This treatment was continued after the arrival of the physician and the child soon emitted the poison, after which his condition improved. The child suffered no further ill-effects from the draught than a slightly burned mouth.

END RACING MATINEE JULY 22ND

There will be a big day in Millhimes' Grove, midway between New Chester and Hunterstown, on Saturday, July 22nd, when the Second Racing Matinee of the season will be held. There will be different classes of Trotting and Pacing Races and premiums for each class awarded. Other amusements will be provided for all.

A Festival will be held in the grove during the evening. Music by the Mt. Joy Community Band during afternoon and evening. Everybody is invited. In case of rain on the above day the program will be carried out on the following Saturday, July 29th.

Miss Irene Miller and Leroy Miller, of Altoona, are spending the summer with Mrs. George Miller, near New Oxford, and William Arnold, near Gettysburg.

A trial sermon was preached at Wolf's church on Sunday evening by Rev. Charles W. Baker, Jr., Confluence, formerly of New Oxford. Wolf's Lutheran congregation is one of the churches served by the late Dr. Stump, and with Paradise congregation forms a new charge in the West Pennsylvania synod. Rev. Mr. Baker will preach at Paradise on next Sunday morning. Rev. Baker is a graduate of Gettysburg college and of Gettysburg seminary, graduating from the latter institution in the class of 1918 when he accepted a call to go to Confluence.

Sponsler's Sextette, of York, will be the attraction at Cafe Dicks on the Conewago on Saturday evening. C. Til. Myers, prop., is engaging the best orchestras in this section for the dances at the Cafe, which is again proving a popular resort this summer.

FROM GIRLHOOD TO WOMANHOOD

Woman Relied Upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Emporia, Kansas.—"I began using Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines years ago when I was a girl. For several years I had severe pains at menstrual periods, making me very weak and interfering with my regular duties. I tried several remedies without obtaining relief. I was induced to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound by friends and it restored me to normal health. I often have occasion to recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends who have troubles similar to my own. You may use these facts as testimonials."

EVA ALDRICE, 218 Union St., Emporia, Kansas.

There are many women who first used our Vegetable Compound during their girlhood days. They found it a valuable help during trying periods. In later years they use it whenever they feel those annoying symptoms which women often have.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a woman's medicine. It is prepared carefully from the best quality of medicinal plants, whose properties are especially adapted to correct the troubles women have.

You Need HANCOCK SULPHUR COMPOUND

Physicians agree that sulphur is one of the most effective blood purifiers known. For pimples, black-heads, freckles, blotches, and tan, as well as for more serious face, scalp and body eruptions, hives, eczema, etc., use this scientific compound of sulphur. As a lotion, it soothes and heals; taken internally it gets at the root of the trouble.

For over 25 years, Hancock Sulphur Compound has given satisfaction.

Soap Ought to Help.

The discovery of a lake, rich in carbonate of soda, in the neighborhood of Kulunda, Siberia, has been announced. The lake is located in a very fertile region, and active steps are being taken to exploit the discovery, says the Scientific American, and erect a soap factory in the immediate vicinity of the lake.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper. Advertisement.

YOURS TRULY

By AGNES G. BROGAN

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

Big Jim Darrow leaned back in his chair and looked dillidly toward his pretty stenographer. He could never get over a certain shyness in issuing his orders. To ask this competent young person to follow his dictation seemed a presumptuous thing. Yet Jim, fresh from the West, was a power in his own world. That his early education had been necessarily neglected was no handicap in his rugged determination for success. But realizing his deficiencies he engaged a stenographer who might not only take rough dictation but put it in best possible form.

Margaret Wainwright came to him in response to an advertisement; this was her first position in the business world.

Jim gathered from her few confidences that her father's sudden death and the following shock of his bad investments were responsible for his own good fortune. For Margaret soon became invaluable to him.

So Jim gave his business orders humbly, and rejoiced in the daily sight of his adored. And he was happy, too, in a measure, until that confounded Baisly came upon the scene.

In his renunciation, Jim had not counted on a rival—and that Baisly, the aggressively conceited, should be that rival was insufferable.

Jim was whistling in the soft way he had when things were well with him, when Baisly dropped into the office on a business errand, and amazingly encountered Margaret Wainwright there.

"Peggie Wainwright as I live!" he cried, and extended an eager hand. Jim flushed angrily at the "Peggie" but the girl herself turned in evident pleasure to accept the greeting.

"Mr. Baisly and I were neighbors at home," she explained.

"More than neighbors," Baisly added. "Why, I carried Peggie's books to school in the old-fashioned way—schoolmates, school days, all that sort of thing. Now, to find you here, my dear, is one big streak of luck. Not the lonely evening tonight I anticipated, for you will go to the theater with me, 'Peg o' My Heart?'"

And Margaret agreed to go. Jim, with a sinking heart, heard her smiling reply. After that Baisly haunted the office.

The Westerner, comparing that modishly immaculate figure with his own sturdy presence, could not dispute Margaret's preference; he only hoped anxiously that Baisly was serious this time, and would not bring to those soft unclouded eyes the shadow he had brought to others.

Jim was very gentle, to the girl, very grateful for her interested assistance. It was like her unselfish sweetness to sacrifice now and then an evening of pleasure, to be helpfully at her employer's side. Margaret must be happy—this lovely and beloved girl, even if Baisly, the irresponsible, were the one to make her so.

The man's smug assurance nevertheless continued to jar upon him and it was with dread that Jim awaited the announcement he felt sure must come. They were seated before the Westerner's desk when Baisly broached the dreaded subject, Margaret's dusky head just in view beyond it.

"I guess it's plain to you where my fancy lies," Baisly said, smiling satisfaction.

Jim nodded. "The question which most concerns me," he replied, "is where does Margaret's fancy lie?"

Baisly, leaning back, lightly touched his own breast. "Here, of course," he triumphed.

"And you are to be married?" It was the hardest sentence big Jim had ever managed.

"As soon as Peg says the word," Baisly calmly lit his cigar. "Smoke?" he held a second cigar toward the Westerner.

Jim could not take it, his hands were trembling. "You make her happy—" he began. The words had the sound of a threat.

Baisly's smile was mocking. "Maybe, you had designs there yourself," he retorted.

Gravely Jim replied: "Margaret Wainwright is the one woman I would marry."

Baisly started. "And she has refused you?"

Jim whirled around. "You think I would dare to offer myself—? I, in the rough, and she—all fineness?"

The girl at the desk arose, and came with her typed pages to her employer. Confusedly Jim gazed down upon her work. It was a response to an order. With her eyes compellingly upon his, Margaret bent over his typewriter, to add the signature. Following that compelling gaze, Jim's eyes, too, were on the paper.

"I am, yours truly," Margaret typed, and stopped to smile up at him.

Questioningly, he returned her glance. With an impatient sigh she bent again to the keys.

"We trust that the above meets your approval," she wrote; her eyes laughed at him.

Then, all at once, Jim understood. Stupendous, unbelievable as it was, here was Margaret—his Margaret—trying to make him understand.

"You are laboring under a mistake, Baisly," he said, his tone no longer halting, "for Margaret Wainwright is going to marry me."

"I am yours truly," quoted Margaret, her merry eyes bent again on the letter.

LEADER SHEEP

"These are the ways of Sheep," said Leader Sheep.

All the Sheep listened to Leader Sheep.

"It is true," he said, "that Sheep are timid. They are somewhat like the members of the Deer family in that way."

"They are often very much afraid of a dog. A sheep has been known to die from having been frightened by a dog."

"But that does not happen often, and be as brave as possible, Sheep!" "Baa, baa, baa," bleated the Sheep. "We will be as brave as possible, baa, baa, baa."

"Good," said Leader Sheep. "That is what I want to hear. Baa, baa, baa, that is what I want to hear."

"And you heard it, didn't you?" the Sheep said. "Baa, baa, baa, you heard it."

"Yes," said Leader Sheep, "I did, and it made me happy."

"Baa, baa, baa," the Sheep bleated. "He heard it, and it made him happy."

"All Sheep must be good to their little ones just as they have always been. The Daddy Sheep and Mother Sheep have always been kind and sweet and loving to the darling little lambs and so they must always be."

"They will always be loving to the darling lambs," said the Sheep. "Baa, baa, baa. A Daddy Sheep or a Mother Sheep cannot help but be good to the young."

"That is right," said Leader Sheep. "That is the way it has always been."

"There We Can See."

and that is the way it should always be."

"And it is the way it will always be, baa, baa," bleated the rest of the Sheep.

"That rejoices my heart," said Leader Sheep. "Ah yes, that rejoices my heart."

"Baa, baa, baa," said the other Sheep. "It rejoices his heart."

"There is always only one leader among a flock of Sheep," said Leader Sheep, "and as you have chosen me to be your leader, or have consented to let me be your leader, I hope you will always follow me."

"We will always follow you, Leader Sheep," they said. "Baa, baa, baa, we will always follow you."

"That, too, rejoices my heart," said Leader Sheep.

"Baa, baa, baa," said the other Sheep. "Leader Sheep is having a good time, for his heart is being rejoiced every few moments."

"That is true," said Leader Sheep. "That most certainly is true."

"And now, Sheep, I wish to tell you that if I go through a fence you must all go through the fence too. I do not mean of course that you are to go through the wood part, or wire part of a fence."

"But if I go through the hole of a fence you must go through the hole of a fence too, following me."

"Baa, baa, baa," bleated the Sheep. "We will follow you, Leader Sheep."

"That rejoices my heart," said Leader Sheep.

"Baa, baa, baa," said the other Sheep. "Once more his heart is rejoicing."

"True, true," said Leader Sheep. "Once more is my heart rejoicing."

"If we see a stone being thrown we will keep away from that part of the countryside. Oh yes, we will be careful."

"I will lead you to the top of a high hill and there we can see about us."

"We will follow you, Leader Sheep. We will follow you, baa, baa, baa."

So the Sheep all followed Leader Sheep. And wherever he went, they went too.

The little lambs played and had a very good time, jumping up and down and copying each other. What one would do the rest would do, showing that even though they were young they too would follow a leader.

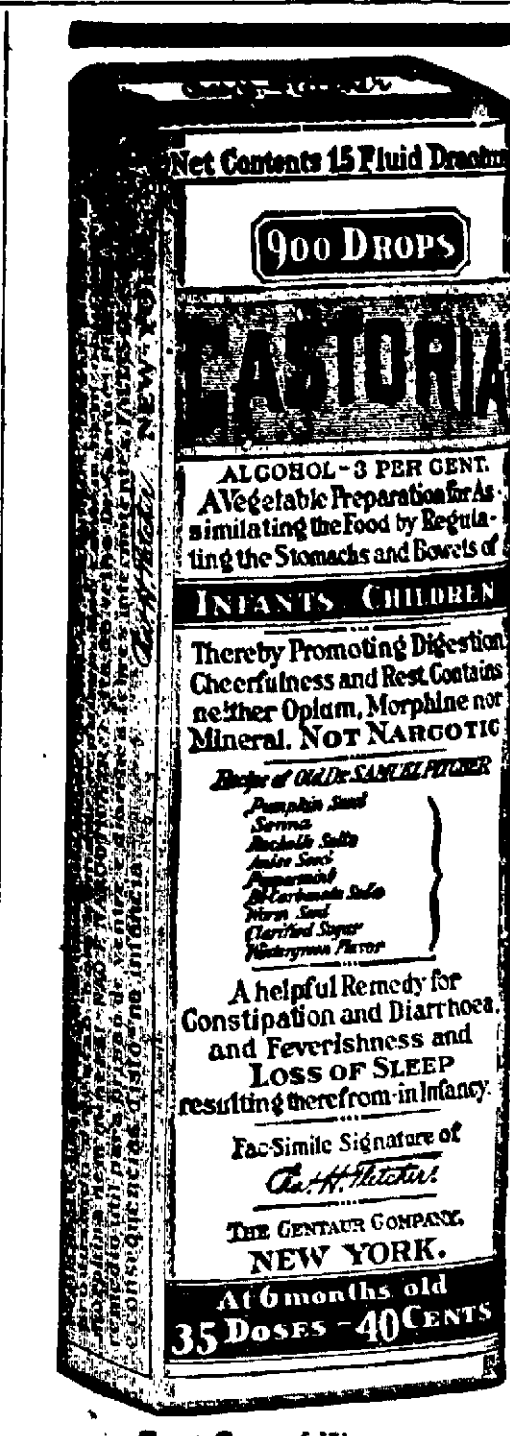

And Leader Sheep led the others safely and well.

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

VERY CLOSE TO THE TRUTH

Porter Had Fairly Reasoned as to Why the Boots Were Placed Outside the Door.

I had been tramping through the Virginia mud all day, and stopped at the little inn. I was tired and immediately went to my room, a small one with a large bed occupying most of the space. As usual, I placed my shoes outside to be cleaned. Next morning there they were, as muddy as the night before, and being number twelve, they carried considerable soil. I went down to the lobby, and in order to teach the porter a much-needed lesson, I called him up before the onlookers who were sitting in the office.

"Why didn't you clean my shoes, boy?" I asked gruffly.

"I didn't know you wanted 'em cleaned, sah," was the reply.

"Why in thunder do you reckon I put 'em outside the door?"

Something to Look At.

"Anything to see in this town?" inquired a recently arrived guest.

"Well," replied the landlord of the tavern at Old Long Center, "a lady barber has just opened up a shop in the next block. You might kinda ramble around and—"

"I have seen lady barbers before," I suppose so. But probably you never saw how the male population of a village act when they see a lady barber."—Kansas City Star.

Documents Ironed Out.

Out in Phoenix, Ariz., where they have flood rains at times, a violent storm caused water to enter the basement of the state capitol and soak all the valuable records stored there. An electrical salesman's inspiration enabled the state to dry out the papers with virtually no loss. An electric ironing machine was called into play and did the trick satisfactorily, although it took several weeks to restore the great mass of water-damaged documents.—Detroit Free Press.

Hatred is a hard burden for him who carries it.

SORRY SHE DIDN'T LIKE IT,

But Anyway, That Particular Hat Wasn't for Sale, and It Made Little Difference.

In and out of department stores and millinery shops went the Woman and her friend, trying on hats trimmed with ribbon, hats smothered in feathers and hats where bloomed flowers that never were on sea or land. The Woman's friend was as hard to suit as the little girl in the "Three Bears." They were all "too" something. The Woman was growing weary, and spying an attractive black hat with some spidery white feathers in a heap before another fussy shopper, she pointed it out to her friend.

"Try to get a chance at that unusual hat. It has a great deal of distinction," she whispered.

The friend sidled up to the showcase, and when the fussy shopper was trying on a yellow-flowered creation, she seized the hat and viewed the effect in the glass, exclaiming: "Ugh! I don't like this one a little bit."

"Excuse me, madam," icily said the fussy shopper, "that is my own hat I bought in Kenosha. Sorry you don't admire it."—Chicago Journal.

REMEMBER WHEN!

Oscar Kinneman, of Abbottstown, accepted a position in the barber shop of Eli Roelck on the Hanover Square, 20 years ago Friday.

Emory Reynolds, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Reynolds, East Berlin, was drowned in the Conewago creek while bathing, 15 years ago Friday.

Eugene Rife and George Gordon were drowned in the Hoke quarries, 10 years ago Friday.

Miss Marie Yohe, of Abbottstown, died 10 years ago Saturday.

Clement, 9-year-old son of Jos. R. Carbaugh, was caught beneath falling clay at the brick yards at Berlin Junction and killed, 10 years ago Friday.

Elmer Brown was seriously injured when he jumped from a ladder on the Isaiah Diller farm in Conewago township, striking the handle of a pitchfork which penetrated his abdomen, 10 years ago Friday.

Proceedings resulting from a writ of fieri facias issued by the court of common pleas of this county against Chester A. Leas, Gettysburg, have been squashed. Mr. Leas announced Tuesday. The writ was issued on a technicality. Mr. Leas declares, and the matter has properly been adjusted. There will be no sale of stock and fixtures, it is said, and Mr. Leas will continue the business as heretofore.

Monday Chief Crabbs arrested B. F. Eckert, Hanover, on a warrant issued by 'Squire Sell, charged on oath of Edgar A. Krug, manager of the Hanover water company, with illegally connecting water pipes without a permit. It was alleged that Eckert made a new connection in his cellar and ran a water line to his barn.

An epidemic is playing havoc among beagle hounds and other blooded dogs in Hanover, which are said to be dying in large numbers. The disease which is probably contagious is described as a kind of distemper. The dog twitches violently about the body and his jaws become clinched.

Work at rebuilding the Littlestown road is going forward steadily with the state highway department directing the work and it is expected that by mid-summer it will be completed, giving an excellent road the entire way between Gettysburg and Baltimore.

Considerable complaint has been made lately by lovers of birds that many harmless and beautiful song birds are being killed by boys armed with small rifles in that haven of bird life along the Conewago just below the chapel.

Heart balm to the amount of $5,000 is sought by Miss Viola S. Myers, of Codorus township, in an action in assumpsit against Alvin Shue, of the same township, for alleged breach of promise to marry.

Geo. W. Alexander and Oliver Boose have formed a partnership in Hanover, and under the name of the Standard Manufacturing Company will manufacture wood work.

The annual meeting and banquet of the Hanover Medical Association will be held today at Piney Mountain Inn, near Caledonia.

Prof. Norman Haar, Maple Grove, purchased a new Chevrolet touring car.

An effort is being made to book a Chautauqua in Hanover for 1923.

One bid was submitted and rejected for interior repairs to Adams county's Court House, according to the county commissioners before whom the solitary bid was opened. The bid was too high, according to the commissioners. The lone bid was submitted by the Gettysburg contracting firm of Gilbert and Welker. Their bid was $4,233.90 for repainting, redecorating, and making necessary repairs to plumbing at the Court House. According to specifications, both woodwork and plastering throughout the interior will be painted. The plumbing will also be repaired.

An Italian linen peddler, possibly the same one who fleeced a number of New Oxford residents a few months ago, was fined $5 and ordered out of Hanover on Friday for operating without a license. New Oxford take notice how home merchants are protected there.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank N. Britcher have gone to housekeeping in Gettysburg. Mrs. Britcher since returning from her wedding trip several weeks ago had been staying at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson B. Stambaugh, in Hanover.

The Rev. Paul R. Pontius, who has accepted a pastorate at Lehighton, preached his last sermon in Trinity Reformed church, Gettysburg, on Sunday evening. A farewell party was held Monday evening.

The Rev. E. H. Hummelbaugh, Salem U. B. minister, was among the 21 U. B. ministers who attended the funeral of the Rev. Lewis Kohr, a retired U. B. minister, held on Friday at Hanover.

Charles Albright, Maple Grove, motored to York recently and parked his Ford auto while he went to a movie and returned to find his machine had been stolen.

A committee from McSherrytown will interview the commissioners on Tuesday to secure aid in purchasing tarvia and stone for Main street, that place.

Starting this week, thirteen of the leading Gettysburg stores will be closed each Thursday afternoon during the remainder of July and August.

Bentzel Eyster erected a flag pole 32 feet high on the triangle on his farm along the Lincoln Highway, east of Abbottstown.

Mrs. Jere Sheets, York Springs, has gone to spend a few months with her son, Earl Sheets, of York.

Excavation work on a swimming pool for the Gettysburg Playground was started Monday.

The Littlestown School Board elected I. S. Brumgard secretary and Geo. S. Stover treasurer. The poll tax was fixed at $2 per capita. The general tax was fixed at 12 mills and 4 mills for the sinking fund. A statement of receipts and expenditures will be mailed each taxpayer.

Misses Miriam and Octavia Lingg, of Hanover, formerly of New Oxford, are entertaining a number of their friends at a weekend party at "Wildwood" cottage along the Conewago. The party is chaperoned by Mrs. F. M. Lingg.

"BROWNIE" PETERED OUT!

Have you noticed that sad look "Bill" Peterman casts at "Brownie" Smith every now and then? "Bill" sort o' pities "Brownie" after having learned the latter's homesick tendencies so well on that trip to Cleveland last week, and he wishes he could do something for him—or to him, when he considers his lost time in wages! You see, "Brownie" consented to let "Bill" show him part of the world. All went well until Chambersburg was reached, when "Brownie" began to seem nervous. At Bedford "Bill" saw "Brownie" looking back over Lincoln Highway and heard him heave a sorrowful sigh. At Ligonsier "Brownie's" condition was bordering on the pathetic. Coming to Pittsburgh "Brownie" began talking of old Center Square and the home-town laundry and implored "Bill" not to brave the smoke and traffic of the Iron City. There was nothing else for Peterman to do but turn back and so Cleveland was never reached. Home again, "Brownie" was the happiest man alive; but as for "Bill", he simply pined "Brownie" and that longing of his pay going to the man he had hired for a week to drive the State Highway Dept. truck while he and "Brownie" were seeing Cleveland! "Brownie" has taken some of his spending money to buy a record for the Victrola—"Home, Sweet Home"—and has invited "Bill" to spend July 4, 1923, with him in little, old New Oxford.

On account of the inclement weather on July 4th a number of the horsemen and followers of the sport have requested the management of Grist Park, York Springs, to schedule another set of matinee races before the annual Labor Day races. Therefore it has been decided to have another matinee at Grist Park on Saturday, August 5th, when a big program will be given.

CHURCH SURVEY WORK IN IOWA

John W. Myers, son of W. D. Myers, Hanover street, writes: "During the summer, in my survey work for the Federal Council of Churches in New York, I made surveys in western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and am now located in Spencer, Iowa. I will spend two weeks here after which time I will go to Stanton, in the southern part of the state, to make a survey there. During my survey in western Indiana I visited a cousin, Samuel G. Kindig, at Kentland. Mr. Kindig moved from Littlestown, 30 years ago. In the vicinity of Kentland and Brook, about all of the settlers came from Adams county and from near Hanover in the early seventies. I miss the item when traveling from place to place and cannot get it."

A hearing in the case of the Com. vs. Lottie Hagerman, charged on oath of Charles Dell, of Hanover, with carrying concealed deadly weapons was held before Squire L. D. Sell, Friday afternoon. After hearing the evidence the defendant was discharged and case dismissed. A second case against the Hagerman woman charged on oath of Margaret Dell with assault and surety of the peace was also given a hearing after which the defendant was discharged, but ordered to pay costs of prosecution.

Mrs. Laura B. Fissel, widow of Geo. C. Fissel, has announced that she will continue the real estate and insurance business conducted by her husband in Gettysburg.

THEY WHO DANCE, MUST PAY FIDDLER

a Community Than They Put In.

COLLAPSE IS INEVITABLE

Town Will Not Survive Long If Its Commercial Structure Is Torn Down Faster Than It Can Be Built Up.

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)

He who dances must pay the fiddler. That is an old saying which is full of truth. The primary idea in this saying, of course, is that one cannot have any pleasure without paying for it in some way, but this is not the only sense in which it may be construed. It means that we cannot pursue any foolish policy indefinitely without paying for it in the end.

No man can overtax his physical strength indefinitely without risking ultimate disaster. Dissipation or overwork may be continued for a time without any noticeable results, but if continued for a sufficiently long time the inevitable comes to pass. The laws of nature cannot be violated with impunity. If one takes out of life more than he puts in, if he tears down his physical strength faster than he builds it up, he must eventually pay the fiddler.

What is true of the laws of nature is equally true of economic laws. The people of a community may for a time tear down the commercial structure of a town faster than they build it up without meeting disaster, but it cannot be continued indefinitely. In the end they must pay the fiddler.

Exhaust Resources of Community.

The person who makes his living in a community, receiving the money of the community for his labor or the products of his labor, and then spends his income outside of his community is helping to exhaust the resources of the community just as the man who expends his energy through dissipation or overexertion faster than he builds it up is exhausting his physical resources. One man may do this, of course, without noticeably affecting the economic strength of the community, but when a dozen men or women do it the effect becomes noticeable and when a hundred do it the resources of the community become exhausted to the point where collapse is inevitable. Those who are responsible for this situation may think that they have profited individually by their actions, but they have not realized that in the end they must pay the fiddler.

There are some persons who seem to be able to get through life without much effort. There are some who proceed on the theory that the world owes them a living and they proceed to collect it. They take what they can get and give nothing in return. Such persons, however, are not very numerous. Most of us must pay for everything that we get. Some may have to pay more than their share and these are carrying the burden of those who get more than they pay for. The fact remains that, as a general rule, one cannot have much worth while without paying for it.

The merchants of any community are the backbone of that community, so far as its prosperity and progress are concerned. Individually there may be some of them who do not exert themselves to boost their community, but collectively they are the men upon whom the living of every person in the community depends. The success or failure of an individual merchant may not be of particular concern to the people of a community, but the success or failure of the merchants as a whole is a matter of the very greatest concern.

Provide Market for Farmers.

The merchants of a town, in the first place, provide a market for a large part of the products of the farmers in the territory surrounding the town. They buy the produce of the farmers in small quantities, in accordance with their need, and some of them buy in larger quantities for shipment to foreign markets. If the merchants could not do this there would be no market at least for the small quantities except at ruinous prices. If the farmers could not realize a reasonable profit from their products, there would be no money for them to spend and there could be no money to pay for your products or to pay for your labor. It is therefore, of the greatest importance to every member of the community, whether a resident of the town or a farmer in the country surrounding the town, that the merchants be enabled to provide this market for at least a part of the farmer's products.

Every dollar sent away from a town to a mail order house helps to diminish the ability of the local merchants to provide a market for the farmer's products or to do any of the many other things which the merchants of every town do for their community.

Business in a community cannot be conducted on a one-sided basis. A man cannot take out of his community a good living for himself and family and give nothing in return. He may do so for a short time and get away with it, but in the end he must pay the fiddler.

The Best Policy.
It is better to be parsimonious than dishonest.

HORSE CRUSHES CHILD TO DEATH
Margaret Butler, colored, aged 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Butler, residing on the state road between Emmitsburg and Gettysburg, near the Mason and Dixon line, was crushed to death Thursday afternoon, when the horse drawing a buggy in which she had accepted a ride with Philip Hoffman, of Gettysburg, scared, upset the vehicle and fell upon her chest. Death was almost instantaneous. The fatal accident occurred as the result of an act of generosity on the part of Mr. Hoffman, who had gone to Emmitsburg Thursday on business in connection with a sale of horses. Mr. Hoffman, being the only occupant in the buggy, offered the little girl and her sister a lift about a mile from Emmitsburg. When not far from their destination, an auto scared the horse, which reared on its hind legs and upset the buggy. The three occupants were thrown along side the road and when the buggy turned over, the horse was carried with it, falling on the child. Mr. Hoffman received a badly bruised shoulder. The other girl was uninjured. Every rib in the girl's body was broken and death resulted almost instantly. The horse arose and started to run away, but was caught shortly afterward. The buggy was slightly damaged.

WORN NERVES

Nervous troubles, with backache, dizzy spells, queer pains and irregular kidneys, give reasons to suspect kidney weakness and to try the remedy that has helped your neighbors. Ask your neighbor.

Mrs. Mary Hanstine, 28 N. Broad St., Waynesboro, Pa., says: "My back pained so severely I couldn't sit still long. When I attempted to rise from bed mornings a dreadful catching pain darted through the small of my back. Steady pains stayed with me all through the day and I was so dizzy I could hardly see. My nerves became unstrung and my kidneys were in a weak condition. I had known of Doan's Kidney Pills and decided to try them. It didn't take Doan's long to do away with all signs of kidney complaint."

Rev. L. M. Gardner, aged 90 years and blind, delivered an able sermon before the York Springs M. E. congregation Sunday aweek. For many years he was pastor of large Methodist churches in Pittsburgh, Baltimore and Washington. He was born and spent his early life in York Springs and, when he retired from the active ministry, returned to his native town to spend the remainder of his life, residing with his son, L. M. Gardner, Jr. Mr. Gardner was graduated from Dickinson college in 1854. After an active ministry of a number of years, he retired at the age of 65 years. Five years ago his eyesight began to fail, but this handicap has not dimmed his enthusiasm or his keen mind. His subject Sunday aweek was "Recollections of an Old Methodist Minister." One of his first charges was at McConnellsburg where he received in cash the sum of $200 for the first year. The venerable minister related some of the hardships of the country parsons of those days who traveled on horse back through all kinds of weather and almost all hours of the night.

The Same Everywhere.—The editor of Palsa Akhbar, a native newspaper of Lahore, India, says, "I have used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy many times among my children and servants, for colic and diarrhoea and always found it effective."

Two collisions occurred recently at the intersection of the state highways at York Springs, with no serious results.

EAT LESS AND TAKE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Take a glass of Salts before breakfast if your back hurts or bladder bothers you.

The American man and woman must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues along and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithium, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

INSANE TO BE MOVED FROM COUNTY TO STATE HOSPITALS

At the regular monthly meeting of the Directors of the Poor of Adams county, on Wednesday, announcement was made that inmates of the mental wards at the local county home would be removed to state hospitals and institutions on or before July 31. About 22 inmates will be affected by the order. The local directors have taken their appeal to Dr. J. M. Baldy, head of the Public Welfare bureau, Harrisburg, on several occasions for securing permission to allow them to keep the custody of the insane of this county. After Wednesday's meeting, it was announced by one of the directors that no legal steps will be taken to prevent the state's action.

Full military honors were accorded Private James G. Millage, whose body was interred in the National Cemetery, Gettysburg, Monday morning. Requiem mass was said over the remains by the Rev. Fr. Mark E. Stock, rector of St. Francis Xavier church. Private Millage, whose home was in Pittsburgh, was killed in action in France, July 26, 1918. He was a member of Co. K, 167th Inf. Private Millage's body arrived at Hoboken, N. J., recently, and was sent to Gettysburg. The parents of the dead soldier, Mr. and Mrs. Pasquale Millage, of Pittsburgh, requested that the body be interred in the National Cemetery there. Almost thirty men who died in France have been interred in the National Cemetery, but no more are expected to be returned from overseas.

George Hartman, assistant manager of the Gettysburg Department store, was elected secretary of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce to succeed the late George C. Fissel, on Friday. The salary of the new secretary was fixed at $25 a month. Roy P. Funkhouser was re-elected treasurer of the organization. Gettysburg will be advertised by 5000 twenty-page booklets containing pictures of and facts about the battlefield, the town as a desirable place to live and the county, featuring the fruit growing and agriculture interests.

Biliousness and Constipation.—“For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepsin preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been today had I not tried Chamberlain's Tablets. The Tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, helping the system to do its work naturally,” writes Mrs. Rosa Potts, Birmingham, Ala.

Peter McCallion, Gettysburg, for some time employed in the tailor shop of John Brehm, has accepted a position with the Michigan Calculating machine company. York and Adams counties will be Mr. McCallion's territory.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She mixed Sulphur with it to Restore Color, Gloss, Youthfulness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

OSTEOPATHY CONFORMS TO NATURAL LAWS

There is no escape from the mandates of natural law.

When structures of the body are not normally adjusted the mechanism that Nature provides cannot work properly.

It is only natural that lowered resistance should follow such a condition, and that sickness should be the inevitable result.

When your body is sick—something is wrong with natural processes. The osteopathic physician proceeds toward restoring health by locating the structure that interferes with normal operation of the bodily mechanism and restores it by adjusting its correct relationship of part to part.

Once this has been accomplished natural processes are restored and natural law brings health again.

Osteopathy seeks to remove the fundamental causes of sickness by restoring normal adjustment.

Dollars Earned.—The average man does not save to exceed ten per cent.

of his earnings. He must spend nine dollars in living expenses for every dollar saved. That being the case he can not be too careful about unnecessary expenses. Very often a few cents properly invested. Like buying seeds for his garden, will save several

the same in buying Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. It costs but a few cents, and a bottle of it in the house often saves a doctor's bill of several dollars.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional con-

tional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine, manufactured by F. J. Cheney &

OLD-TIME COLD CURE— DRINK HOT TEA!

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time during the day or before retiring. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores of the skin, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking up a cold.

Try it the next time you suffer from a cold or the grip. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore safe and harmless.

RUB RHEUMATISM FROM STIFF ACHING JOINTS

Rub Soreness from joints and muscles with a small trial bottle of old
St. Jacobs Oil

Stop "Josing" Rheumatism. It's pain only; not one case in fifty requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" right on the "tender spot," and by the time you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism cure which never disappoints and doesn't burn the skin. It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, backache, neuralgia.

Limber up! Get a 35 cent bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and in a moment you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer! Rub rheumatism away.

FIERY, ITCHY ECZEMA— HEALED RIGHT UP BY APPLYING SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar of Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like a cold cream.

HEALING CREAM STOPS CATARRH

Clogged Air Passages Open at Once—Nostrils Cleared

If your nostrils are clogged and your head stuffed because of catarrh or a cold, get Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Apply a little of this pure, antiseptic, germ destroying cream into your nostrils and let it penetrate through every air passage of your head and membranes. Instant relief.

How good it feels. Your head is clear. Your nostrils are open. You breathe freely. No more hawking or snuffling. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed up, choked up and miserable. Relief is sure.

RED PEPPER HEAT STOPS BACKACHE

The heat of red peppers takes the "ouch" from a sore, lame back. It can not hurt you, and it certainly ends the torture at once.

When you are suffering so you can hardly get around, just try Red Pepper Rub, and you will have the quickest relief known. Nothing has such concentrated, penetrating heat as red peppers.

Just as soon as you apply Red Pepper Rub you will feel the tingling heat. In three minutes it warms the sore spot through and through. Pain and soreness are gone.

Ask any druggist for a jar of Rowles Red Pepper Rub. Be sure to get the genuine, with the name Rowles on each package.

TEACHERS ELECTED

The school directors of Huntingdon township elected teachers for the following schools: Idaville No. 1. Robt. Lile; Idaville Primary, to be supplied; Sadler's, Wilson Hummelbaugh; Plank's, Lou Etta Smick; Miller's, Helen Hantz; Hickory Point, Dolly King; Rock Chapel, Ward Houck; Pickles, Edgar Smith; Whitcomb's View, to be supplied. Term of school 8 months. The board re-organized by electing the following officers: President, T. N. Cashman; vice pres., Harry Spangler; librarian, Geo. N. Bushey; treasurer, Adam Bream; secretary, Emory Guise. The Board expects to re-open Pike school for the full term. The tax rate was laid at 10 mills.

At a meeting of the school directors of Berwick township held at Beaver Creek schoolhouse Friday evening, the board re-organized by the election of the following officials: President, Clarence Wolf; vice president, John Stambaugh; secretary, Charles Richter; treasurer, J. William Hartman. Teachers were chosen for the various schools for the next term as follows: Green Springs, Esther Hoke, primary, and Mary Elder, secondary; Walnut Grove, G. Howard Danner; Beaver Creek, Raymond Wentz. The latter is a new teacher.

The directors of Latimore township have elected the following teachers for the coming term: Bermudian, Bruce Walton; Church, O. L. Hershey; Wolford's, Mary Gardner; State Road, A. T. Bennett; Bushey's, C. B. Gardner; Blackberry, Russel Gardner; Harbold's, N. D. Starry, and Plainfield, Lillian Sowers. Schools will open on last Monday in August for an 8 months' term. The tax rate was fixed at 10 mills.

The amount of the Abbottstown school tax duplicate for 1922 amounts to $2,128.76. The balance in hands of the treasurer is $183.68. The tax rate for the ensuing year is 11 mills and the per capita is $2 for each voter. At a recent meeting of the school board, Thomas Ural was elected treasurer. Emory S. Alwine was appointed enumerator of school children for the borough. Salaries of teachers: principal, $150 per month; Grammar and primary schools, $100 per month. Date of opening of schools, Monday, Sept. 4; length of term, 8 months. The organization of the board is as follows: Pres., Dr. T. C. Miller; vice pres., Paul F. Wolf; sec'y., Harry Anthony; treas., Thomas Ural; director, Robert C. Berkheimer.

A Splendid Medicine for the Stomach and Liver—"Chamberlain's Tablets for the stomach and liver are splendid. I never tire of telling my friends and neighbors of their qualities," writes Mrs. William Vollmer, Eastwood, N. Y. When bilious, constipated or troubled with indigestion, give them a trial. They will do you good.

The East Berlin Boy Scouts held a festival on the P. O. S. of a lawn Saturday evening.

Woman's Beauty and Man's Strength are Health

THE Famous acrobats are proof of it. It would be almost impossible to find a man and woman who so perfectly combine beauty, strength and agility as do the Aerial Rooneys.

Let Eddie Rooney tell you how mer keep strong and women beautiful.

"During the season of 1921 we were with the Barnum & Bailey Circus.

"In our act every nerve and muscle must be in condition. If a single finger went bad it would be 'farewell' for the Rooneys. The instant either of us feels the least bit nervous we have to get busy and get back into condition quickly.

"While we were showing through Northern New York, and almost before I realized it, my stomach was getting bad. I felt 'tired' and found out that I did have nerves. I was going to get a tonic that I had used before but always had to take liver pills with it. One of the show people told me that if I used Sanalt it would not be necessary to take a cathartic. I'll tell you, Sanalt is a wonder! My stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and blood were all starting to go bad—and they had a pretty good start. One bottle of Sanalt made me absolutely fit. Whenever we feel the least trouble we turn to Sanalt, the sensible tonic. It surely is just that—sensible!"

P. O. B. CLEVELAND

Every Mile You Drive It The More Pleased You'll Be

EVERY minute of driving is a joy and every mile a triumph for Cleveland Six owners. Never before has a six of such beauty and such thrilling performance, been available at so low a cost.

The new smart style of the Cleveland Six is refreshing—a welcome change from the old and accustomed. It will remain up-to-date and attractive in appearance for several years to come.

Mechanically this new Cleveland Six is an extremely fine car—simplified and improved to the last degree. Its motor, built in Cleveland's own shops, has a dozen features that are exclusive or confined only to cars twice or three times as costly.

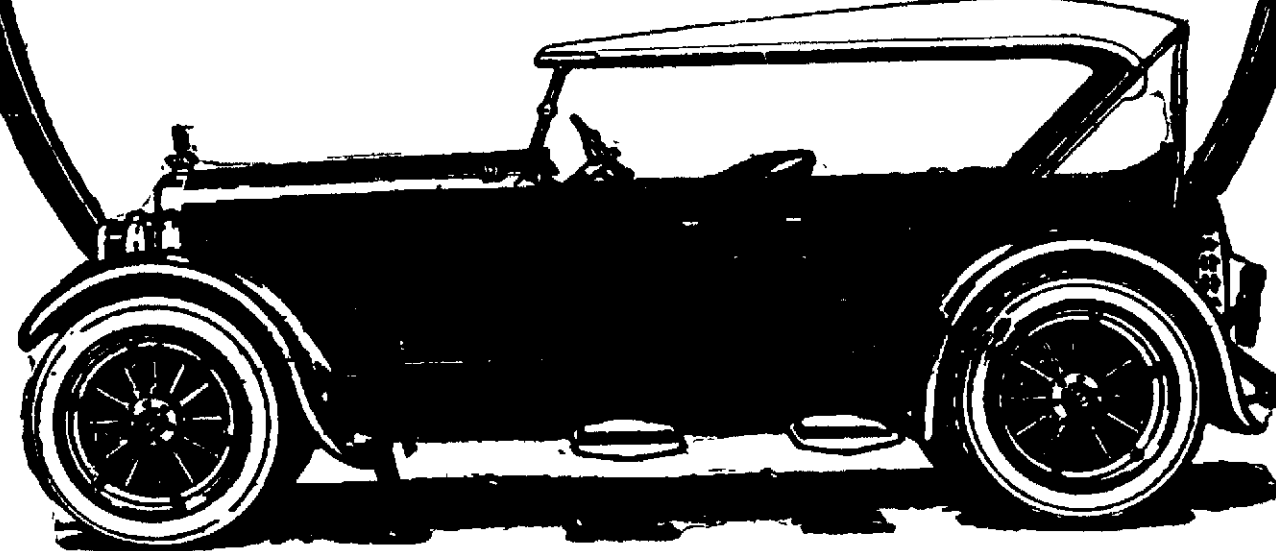

And after a year or two, when the owner looks back at its astonishing economy and its freedom from repairs he will be prouder than ever of his Cleveland Six.

SHOTS FIRED IN
DISTILLERY RAID
Topping off the attempted raid on the Foust distillery at Glen Rock early on Friday morning, an attempt was made by unknown persons that night to shoot George A. Strine, one of the guards at the distillery. The shot missed its mark however, and no damage was done. Thirty armed men and ten powerful motor trucks, which swooped down a back road, figured in the attempt to steal the bonded liquor supply at the distillery early Friday morning. The move is the boldest and most extensive made by bootleggers in this section of the state. In the battle which grew out of the attempt, 100 shots were exchanged between two guards at the place and the raiders. The whiskey in bond could not be reached by the attacking party because of the steady rain of lead fired by the small band of defenders. Filled, the attackers withdrew.

In the case of the Com. vs. Harry
A. Roth, of New York, who was arrested recently on a warrant issued by Squire Sell, charged on oath of Chief Crabbs with attempted bribery,
the defendant was held by Squire Sell,
in a decision handed down July 7, for the action of the August session of the Grand Jury. By reason of the failure of the defendant to appear, his recognizance, furnished by a surety company of New York, for the sum of $500 was forfeited. In the case in which he was arrested by Chief Crabbs
who charged him with false pretense, the defendant was discharged and the case dismissed. The cases are the outgrowth of a $5,000 oil stock transaction which Roth had with John B.
Ferry, of Hanover, on June 27th.

At a public meeting of the baseball fans of Hanover Monday evening, all the old officers and directors of the Hanover Blue Ridge club were re-elected to fill out their term. The directors and president of the club had handed in their resignations last week
but after a lengthy meeting the men were asked to reconsider their action and stand for re-election which they did.

Wm. Golden and daughter, Grace, and brother, Joseph, of Lester, have been spending their vacation at the home of their brother, E. L. Golden and family, Bonneauville.

Mrs. John Sharp and son, of Baltimore, spent several days as guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Gebhart, Bonneauville.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Groff and daughters, of New Haven, Conn., have been spending sometime at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Strausbaugh, Bonneauville.

Mrs. Joe Eddinger, of York, has been spending sometime at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Fleagle, of near Bonneauville.

Mr. and Mrs. John Quinn and 3 children, of Girardville, spent several days as guests of the former's sister, Mrs. Crist Gebhart, Bonneauville.

George Staub of Baltimore, returned home after spending sometime at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Stueb, Bonneauville.

To witness a battle royal between a 5-ft. water snake and an 11-inch bass was the experience of H. C. Baughman, proprietor of Baughman's drug store, Hanover, on Tuesday while he was fishing at Brown's dam, along the Conewago creek. Mr. Baughman despatched the snake with a club. The reptile's mouth was clinched over the nose of the fish, which was exhausted but still wiggling as the Hanoverian tossed it on the bank. The struggle between the two inhabitants of the creek lasted about 15 minutes.

Officials of the Dicks' Dam Welfare Association recently formed by the campers along the Big Conewago creek, will meet two of the Hamilton township supervisors, Jacob K. Hoover and George Mummert, at Cafe Dicks, Saturday, to discuss road improvement from the Carlisle pike to the camp.

The SANDMAN STORY

YELLOW WARBLER

THERE were many children who lived in the same badly kept tenement house with Tim, but Tim seemed to be the only one who did not like the crowded doorsteps and noisy crowds of children.

He did not delight in stoning poor stray pussies either or teasing children younger than himself as he was often teased by the older boys.

The schoolroom was Tim's delight, for Miss Carter, his teacher, told the children of cool, green fields, birds and flowers and apples enough on the ground for everyone to have all they wanted.

One afternoon Tim stayed later than the other children and walked timidly up to Miss Carter's desk. "Please, Miss Carter, how far is it to the apple orchard you told us about today?" he asked.

"How Far Is It to the Apple Orchard?"

"It is pretty far to that particular one," was the reply, as she looked into the eager little face beside her. "I used to live there, Tim, and every year after school closes I go back, and see all my animal friends as well as the orchard."

As Miss Carter looked at Tim a sudden thought came to her. "How would you like to go home with me this summer and see my friends and pick up the apples I have told you about?"

How Tim lived through the next few weeks he could never have told, but the day did come when he left the noisy city far behind and, with Miss Carter, rode on the train to the country he could hardly believe was real.

The first night in the sweet white bed Tim slept but little for fear it was all a dream, but it wasn't and there were weeks of happiness ahead.

Tim's cheeks grew round and rosy, his eyes bright and such walks and talks as he had with Miss Carter and he met all of her animal friends, but best of all was a pretty yellow warbler that built a nest in the fork of the apple tree.

Tim watched this yellow fellow flying back and forth into the tree and one day he asked: "Miss Carter, what does that bird carry in his mouth and what does he do with it?"

"If you will promise never to touch bird nests, Tim, or take their eggs, I will show you something very pretty," said Miss Carter.

And when the yellow warbler had flown away again, Miss Carter and Tim placed a ladder by the tree and carefully climbed up.

Tim's eyes were wide with wonder for he had no idea what he was to see and when Miss Carter whispered "Look!" and showed him a nest with four little birds in it, their mouths wide open for food, he was not able to even ask a question.

When they were on the ground again Miss Carter told him how Mrs. Warbler made the nest from bits of straw and horsehair, with which it was lined, and this was brought to her by her good husband, Mr. Warbler.

"And didn't you help them at all?" asked Tim, for he could not believe that anything so wonderful could have been made by anything but hands.

And then Miss Carter told Tim how wicked it was for anyone to take a nest or the eggs and harm the baby birds when the little mother and father birds had worked so hard to make their home and loved their children just as little boys and girls were loved by their parents.

When it was time to return to the city Tim was made happy by being told that the next summer he could go to the farm when school was over and again meet the Yellow Warbler and all the other friends he had made while there.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

FACTS about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel

MILLICENT

THE affected young miss who changes her name from Mildred to Millicent in the fond belief that the two are interchangeable, is really rechristening herself. The two names are utterly dissimilar.

Millicent, which is translated to mean work, strength, comes from that remarkable word "amal," meaning work, which appears in some similar form in all languages. We have our word "mail" from it. Many feminine names have been evolved from amal, the first probably being Amalaswinth, the unfortunate queen of Lombardy whom the Romans could not protect from the treachery of her favorites. Historians call her Amalasontha, but in Burgundy she became Melisendra, Melicerte, and Melusine.

Spanish balladlore reveals a Melisendra as the wife of Don Gayferos, who was taken captive by the Moors and we hear of her through Don Quixote. Melusine was the nymph, wife of Lord de Loozignan, who, according to old legend, retired from public view every Saturday and turned into a serpent.

Princess Melisende carried the crown of Jerusalem to the House of Anjou and through the Provencal connection of the English court, Lady Melisent Stafford, who lived during the reign of Henry II, established the name in England. It soon came to be spelt Melicent and finally Millicent, prevailing as such today.

The simplest of all gems, the turquoise, is Millicent's talismanic stone. It is said to protect its wearer from all dangers, whether she walks or rides—or flies, the present day legend must add. It is an augury of good fortune if she sees the new moon reflected in the stone. Saturday is her lucky day and 1 her lucky number and holly is her flower.

The Friendly Path

By WALTER I. ROBINSON

YOUR OWN DOORSTEP

SWEEP your own doorstep! It always is easier to find fault with others than with oneself. And it is just as true that when one goes around looking for trouble, he's likely to miss more serious difficulties of his own making.

Neglect is never excusable. If one is fair to his fellows, as well as himself, he will always have his own house in order before he starts out to make others clean house. If one wishes to find fault with the treatment accorded him by his fellows, he should survey his own record of actions toward his fellowmen.

Many persons are constantly making their own lives miserable and adding to the sorrow of the world by complaining that "the world is going to the bow-wow," and contending that nothing short of another deluge will bring sinfulness to an end. They overlook entirely all the many good things and good deeds which are constantly being brought about by self-sacrificing individuals. Because people spend so much time discussing the sordid side of life, they come to think little of the better side.

With all the disappointing evidences of lawlessness and disregard for moral laws and modesty, it is still a fact that the vast majority are clean-minded, hard-working, law-abiding, God-fearing men and women. If they were not, there would be nothing new in the wicked pathways about which we hear so much. If the majority were following the wrong trail the story of sin and misery and missteps would attract but passing attention. The exception, as usual, proves the rule.

If all those who are worried about the "tendencies" of the age would keep their own course straight and would try to encourage others by their cheerful examples, there would be less sin in the world. For there are few who intentionally take the wrong path.

One always will make his own life happier and the world more cheerful if he keeps his thoughts and words focussed on the better side.

It never pays to play with fire or to occupy one's time reading trash.

PARENTS FORGET

THERE is a rule of good form that tells us that we should never reprove a servant or other employee in the presence of outsiders. A waitress perhaps breaks a dish at dinner and the confused hostess exclaims hastily that she should not be so awkward or that she has been very careless. Now, the perfectly well-bred hostess does not do this. She does her best at the time to draw her guests' attention from the mishap and, if she feels that any reproof is necessary, she waits until she is alone with the servant.

Now, if we are as considerate as this to servants, ought we not to be as considerate to our children? Yet, truly, I know plenty of persons who would not think of reproving servants in my presence, especially nowadays, when servants are so independent and hard to get, who would not think it anything amiss to scold their children in my presence.

Sometimes the scolding is delivered in a half-teasing, jesting manner. "John, will you be careful?" exclaims the mother to her ten-year-old son, when he is trying to bring her some article that she has sent for. "You are the most awkward creature in the world. Your feet are so big it's no wonder you trip over them." And then, to her guest: "Just imagine, John wears shoes that are larger than mine already. I suppose he is going to have enormous feet like his father."

It may be that John is sensitive. He was doubtless trying to do the errand graciously and carefully, and it hurts him to be reproved for his failure to do so. Moreover, he feels sensitive about those big feet. He knows that the only reason his parents tease him about them is because he cannot come back at them and make teasing remarks about their infirmities.

Now, really, does it seem fair? If you want to reprove John and humble him—perhaps you are justified, but you ought at least to be as considerate to him as you would be to a servant—and do it when there is no third person present.

THE BIG MUSKEG

WHEN NATURE FROWNS.

Nature is not a genial old dame, nature writers and poets to the contrary notwithstanding. Go at her with a club and she will give freely. But she always watches for a chance to get even. Beg of her and she is cruel as the grave. She pardons no mistakes, and always she renews man's intrusion into her wild places.

Muskeg is North American Indian for a marsh, swamp, tussocky bog. It's generally a bad place for travel. This Big Muskeg was crossed here and there by trails, but was never stable, contained a river of ooze and had unsounded depths. Nature had apparently stuck it right there to stop the Mississippian Extension from going farther.

So around the Big Muskeg revolves a thrilling story of Canadian railroad building—a fight against the hostile forces of nature. Extremely interesting are the side lights on the life of the North. Best of all there's a fascinating story of the loves and passions of the strong men and women who are conquering the wilderness.

Victor Rousseau knows life from experience. He has been a student in England, a fighter in South Africa, a newspaper man in the United States. He is the author of many novels and his public is large.

CHAPTER I.

A Bolt From the Blue.

Eighteen below; fair weather for December in New Manitoba, where the forest, though it chills the soil till midsummer, yet shuts out the razor-edge of the winds that make the prairies, farther south, an icy inferno.

Here the bush, which had seemed to stretch out illimitably, thinned into bedraggled patches among the upcropping rocks. A little farther and it began once more; the break was like a great, curving arm thrust into the heart of it, as if some giant fingers had plucked up the trees in handfuls and scooped the foundation from the frozen soil, and then had been withdrawn, leaving the imprints of the great finger-tips.

These finger-tips were huge sink-holes, sometimes filled with water, so that they formed clear lakes; more often sodden sponges of decayed vegetable matter, oozy, treacherous and unstable. The finger-lines were the circular ridges marking the subsidence of the mud. The thumb was Big Muskeg, which the two men who stood on the top of the humpbacked ridge could see extended beneath them.

Big Muskeg, at this point less than half a mile across, was everywhere of unsounded depth. It curved and wound, a river of ooze, now broadening into chains of lakes, now narrowing into gullies; here and there crossed by trails, but never stable, nowhere offering firm foundation for the permanent way of the Mississippian railroad.

The Mississippian was a branch line, feeding the new road that was pushing northward toward the ports-to-be on Hudson Bay. It linked with it at Clayton, whence it was being extended eastward into a virgin wilderness. Even in the days when half a dozen companies were pegging out ways for lines that were to divert the wheat north, Joe Bostock's line had been the joke of legislatures and financiers. Those other lines that were being built into Clayton passed through the wheat-lands; Joe's line ran east out of Clayton into a wilderness. Joe Bostock had secured his capital, but he had no competitors.

And slowly Mississippian, with its small shareholders and limited means, had gone ahead. The first location parties had cleared a road to Big Muskeg. The rails had been laid half-way. But that was all, save for the partly constructed shacks and buildings for the workmen there, and the sheds for the construction material that had not yet been freighted in.

Joe, standing with legs straddling the top of the ridge, turned to Wilton Carruthers, the chief engineer of the company, with eyebrows arched and humorous inquiry on his weather-beaten old face. There was no need for speech at that moment, because the mind of each man dwelt on the identical problem.

The two men had come east by dog-sleigh, accompanied by two half-breeds, Jean Passepartout and Papillon, the one in charge of the dogs, the other carrying the transit-compass. They had camped seven miles back on the preceding evening, and had set out at daybreak to survey the swamp-lands from the ridge. For the problem which had suddenly risen up to confront them clamored for solution before construction could be carried forward, and on its solution depended the future of the Mississippian.

With the physical eye neither Joe nor Carruthers could hope to accomplish anything. Wilton was seeking inspiration, though he did not know it. Theoretically he was endeavoring to discern some place where a foundation might be coaxed above the unstable, quaking surface, with trestling and crib-work, a crossing that combined the least possible deviation of route with no more than four-fifths of one per cent of grade and four degrees of curve.

Actually and unconsciously he was seeking to interpret the natural convulsion which had, in time immeasurably remote, cloven the ridge of the land and set the swamp seeping into the fissure.

If he could read the meaning of that convulsion, understand the mind and mood of the great Architect, he could see, as if clairvoyantly, just where the Muskeg lay thinnest on the roots of the hills, where ballast would appear the soonest above the sucking swamp. But he could read nothing.

Joe Bostock wrinkled his eyes against the sunlight.

"That's what I was thinking, Wilton," he said. "But it's got to be done. Somebody'll build it some day if the Mississippian doesn't."

That was the nearest speech to despair that Joe, invincible, exuberant optimist that he was, had ever made. Weeks, months of resurvey must ensue, with work halted, and the Mississippian's precarious capital diminishing to vanishing point, while the story of the great blunder percolated through the lobbies of the provincial legislature, filled with bland, jeering, ill-conditioned men to whom one day's tramp such as their laborers performed would mean apoplexy.

Their faces haunted Wilton. He remembered half a dozen whom he had approached when the Mississippian scheme was first bruited abroad. There was, in particular, Tom Bowyer, of the New Northern Line, his many interests entrenched behind the bulwarks of political influence. Joe Bostock had suggested an amalgamation in the belief that Tom Bowyer could wreck the bill in the legislature. But Tom had laughed in Joe's face, and had not even opposed the measure.

"Go ahead with your muskrat line, Joe!" he had said. "I won't hinder you."

The surveyors who made the preliminary reconnaissance had shirked their work and lied. Wilton suspected that most of them had been in Bow-yer's pay. Bowyer and Bostock were old rivals. They had reported Big Muskeg to be an insignificant swamp with a firm underbed about the portage. It could be crossed, of course, in the end, since nature always yielded to man. But the Mississippian must either swing a huge loop around it, through territory unsurveyed, or set to itself the task of filling those unsounded depths with thousands of tons of rock.

"D—n you!" said Wilton, shaking his fist toward the valley. "We'll beat you yet. We've made a bad blunder, Joe. Crooked work, without doubt—though I can't imagine why Bowyer's gang should take the trouble to hurt us unless, of course, they guess—"

Joe Bostock shook his head. "No, they haven't guessed that, Wilton," he answered. "I'll stake my hat on that. There ain't nobody except me and you and Kitty knows. It's jest bad luck, Wilton."

Joe could never sense treachery nor bring himself to believe in its possibility; and if that weakness had kept him, in the main, a poor man, it had bound his friends to him with unbreakable bonds.

"At the best it's gross negligence," said Wilton. "Those surveyors scamped their work. I accepted their reports. I couldn't go out with the transit and aneroid and follow them all up to check their results. But I might have sounded Big Muskeg. I didn't." His voice choked. "Joe, if you have any sense, you'll fire me first," he said.

Joe Bostock laid his hands on the other man's shoulders and the humorous smile came on his face. "Well, I guess not, Wilton," he said. "You ain't to blame. You've done all that mortal man could do. The Mississippian couldn't have been built at all without you. Fire me? Why, Kitty'd have my life if I dared suggest such a thing."

Wilton frowned involuntarily at the reference to the pretty young wife whom Joe Bostock had married in Winnipeg the year before. Joe's first marriage had been unhappy; it had been long ago, and Wilton knew there had been a separation, though Joe was always reticent about that.

Kitty was five and thirty years younger than Joe, and she had intervened into a fast friendship of more than a decade between Joe and Wilton. It made a difference, as it always does, though Joe had sworn it should not, and Kitty thought the world of Wilton.

Wilton could never understand his secret feeling about Kitty. She was devoted to Joe. Perhaps that was what lay beneath his latent antagonism toward her. He was jealous of her. He was jealous of a woman's love for Joe.

"I guess not!" said Joe Bostock again, pressing his hand hard down on Wilton's shoulder.

And, in that instant, Wilton heard the crack of a rifle, and felt a violent blow on the upper part of the left arm, which knocked him to the ground. As he fell, Joe Bostock pitched forward upon him.

Twice Joe's lips quivered, as if he was trying to speak. Then the lower jaw dropped and the eyes rolled upward. A grayish pallor crept over the face.

Wilton saw that Joe's mackinaw had a tiny tear in it, over the breast. A trickle of blood seeped through the cloth. He wrenched the garment open with his right hand, pulled up the sweater, and tore the shirt apart. The heart, fluttering like a wounded bird, stopped under his hand. Joe sighed once, but he never stirred again. The bullet had passed clean through Joe Bostock's heart from the back. And, as he tried to raise Joe's body, Wilton realized that the same bullet had broken his left arm, which hung limp from the shoulder.

He sprang, to his feet, a mad wrath giving back to him his ebbing strength. He glared about him, but it was impossible to ascertain from where the shot had come. He could not even locate the direction within a hundred degrees, for Joe had been in the act of turning. Nobody was in sight, and the woods were silent.

His bellowing call of fury that went echoing through the trees elicited no answer. He tore strips from his handkerchief, holding it between his teeth, and, with his left hand on his knee, knotted them about a stick and improvised a tourniquet. The blood was spurting down his sleeve in jets, the pain was intense, and it was impossible to take off the mackinaw and hope to replace his arms in it; but he twisted with all his force until the diminishing flow showed that he had compressed the artery. Thrusting the longer end of the stick beneath his armpit, he passed the other through the buttonhole of the garment, and, stooping, managed to get Joe's body upon his shoulder and to hold it with his right arm.

His impulse was to carry Joe's body back to the camp, but he knew that it would be impossible to make the distance. Yet to leave it would mean the certainty of mutilation by bears or timber-wolves unless he could build a cairn of stones. And of that he was equally incapable. He set Joe's body down, and, in the first full realization of his loss and his predicament, he shouted curses to the sky.

That murder had been intended he did not believe; no doubt the shot had been a bullet fired at some nearer mark, perhaps a hare, and by one of the half-breeds. He suspected that the transit-bearer, following them up, had fired the shot, and, seeing the fatality, had fled.

But the thought that this might be the explanation was only a fleeting one. Joe was dead, and his body must be cared for, just as if he were alive—taken back to the camp and thence out of the woods. There was no possibility of leaving Joe's body there. Yet it seemed to him that he could not hope to reach the camp. And now another idea came to him.

It was seven miles back to the camp, but only five to the portage over the frozen swamp. Upon the other side of the portage was a trail that came out of the prairie southward and wound into the unknown north. Along this Indians brought their winter catches to the trading-store of McDonald, the factor of the Hudson's Bay company.

Traveling was hard along the shore of the great Muskeg, but it would mean two miles less, and it was just possible to make the store. McDonald was a queer, taciturn, sometimes venomous old man, and had evinced a strong dislike of Wilton on the occasion of their last meeting. Yet McDonald would shelter him and receive Joe's body. And then there was Molly, his daughter.

Wilton, having made his choice, acted on it at once. With a great effort he raised Joe's stiffening form upon his shoulder; and doggedly he began his awful journey, his right arm grasping the dead man, his helpless left hugging the tourniquet-stick against his side.

He stumbled over the rough ground until he reached the cleared road through the trees. Here the going was easier, but the burden numbed his right hand and shoulder, the throbbing pain in his left seemed to beat time to his footsteps, and the ache of the cramping muscles increased the agony of his wound and began to spread down his body.

A wind sprang up, driving gusts of whirling snow into his eyes. A deadly lethargy was creeping over him, and presently, turning his head to shield his eyes from the beating blasts, he saw a trickle of crimson on the road behind him.

The tourniquet had loosened. He was bleeding his life away. The blood was gushing down his fingers. Wilton set Joe's body down and succeeded in tightening the compress. And it was only after an almost superhuman struggle that he could get Joe over his shoulder. He knew that if he was forced to set the body down again he could never lift it.

With knees bent, tripping over the roots of the trees, and reeling through a swimming world, he staggered on and on and on. And neither his anger nor the thought of Kitty could have kept his resolution through that nightmare of pain. It was all Joe now, the memory of Joe, his love for him, and his resolve that his friend's remains should not be torn by the timber-wolves.

Joe had befriended him years before, when he had drifted, penniless, into Winnipeg. Joe's faith had been his own, and the secret of the Mississippian theirs.

So the miles reeled off behind him, while the wind increased and the snow fell thicker along the way. At last the trees opened, and the bleak shore of Big Muskeg lay before him, a desert of ice and snow, with the bluffs opposite, and beyond them the trees once more.

At once the fierce swirl of the gale caught him, whistling like sirens, boring into his face like white-hot probes. The ice that fringed his lashes blinded him and pulled them from the lids when he tried to open his eyes. He reeled on, clutching Joe's body, and heard his own voice go from him in shouts of despair. They rolled across the snow, and the echoes came in faint, mimicking answer from the distant cliffs.

Wilton retained sufficient consciousness of his surroundings to make his way along the shore toward the portage. He might have shortened his route to McDonald's store a little by risking a direct crossing; but the surface of a muskeg is always dangerous, even in midwinter, when the apparently solid ice conceals sink-holes of slush, which, mixed with peat and ooze, does not congeal firmly, and entraps the unwary traveler, a quick-mud from which escape is next to impossible.

"And somehow, breaking the rotten ice in front of her body, the girl succeeded in getting Wilton to the shore."

SHUT OUT WATER AND DUST

Nature Has Provided for the Hermetic Closing of Nostrils of Seal and Camel.

Most of us when we go in for diving have the very unpleasant experience of getting our nostrils full of water. Nature did not design man to be a diving animal, otherwise she would have been as clever with his nose as she has been with seal's, London Tit-Bits says.

The seal is, without doubt, the cleverest diver in the animal world, and his nose is a very ingenious contrivance indeed. Each nostril is provided with muscles which close it hermetically at the owner's will. And the shape of the nose is such that when the nostrils are closed not a drop of water can enter.

With seals the closing of the nostrils at the moment of diving has become an automatic process.

This is wonderful enough, but we can see a still more remarkable application of the same principle in an animal as far removed from the seal as chalk is from cheese.

The seal is a water animal. The other owner of trapdoor nostrils is the camel, an inhabitant of the driest parts of the world, the waterless sandy deserts. Now, why should the camel require such an apparatus? He is not troubled with water, but he is troubled with dust; not the dust that we see in this country, but the fierce, blinding duststorms of the desert.

These are so violent that tiny particles are driven into the works of even the most finely made watch, which becomes at once clogged and useless. If the camel had not nostrils which were perfectly dust-tight he could never endure the dreadful sand and dust storms.

MAKE HOME A BEAUTY SPOT

Matter Is More One of Careful Thought Than Mere Expenditure of Actual Cash.

The "brightening up" process ought to start with the lot line. Invest in some fertilizer for the lawn—you'll be surprised at the good it will do. Then, over in one corner may be a spot where a spirea, or a climbing rose could work wonders in transformation. Perhaps the sidewalk entrances may need repairing, or the porches have to be painted, and surely every two or three years a house needs a coat or two of good paint, remembering the slogan that when you "save the surface, you save all." Then the garage and the flower garden come in for their share of new things. Perhaps there's a cracked window pane somewhere that needs replacing, or a cupboard to build.

Inside the home, most folks clear away the dirt and the grime and the smoke of winter hours with a vigorous application of the scrub brush, plus the services of a good decorator. A few dollars invested in matters like these adds the inmates of any dwelling, no matter how modest or pretentious, to get a new grip on life.

But just a word of caution before you do anything. Consider well what should be done, make your plans, then go to dealers you can trust and make your purchases, keeping in mind the fact that those who advertise their wares, who are unafraid to speak of the merits of their merchandise publicly, through newspaper columns, are the ones to turn to both for advice and for the actual investment of the dollars you have planned to spend for the little things that help make a home a home.

After dark the Careless Clit throws the paper off the bread out the kitchen window of his apartment to his neighbor's lawn, to save himself ten steps to the incinerator, and when he sees small boys throwing a milk bottle or a dead electric bulb on the pavement, spraying glass in the path of vulnerable tires, Careless Clit laughs and says boys will be boys.

Home doesn't begin at the front door and end at the back. It goes from the curb to the alley fence. It takes in the clothesline and the green shutter and every bough of the apple-tree. Poets may rave of the old oaken, moss-covered bucket, but they don't drink out of it. The inconveniences of the summer home are all right when you're on a vacation.

The time of home regeneration is here, however, and it doesn't end until the blackness cast up by the radiator is cleansed from the wall and the indoor nicks of winter have disappeared under the application of elbow-grease.

HERE IS SPIRIT THAT WINS

"Boost" Is the Word That Means Everything to the Individual and the Community.

You are invited to join the Community Boosters, and—Boost your county, boost your friend, Boost the church that you attend; Boost the place where you are dwelling.

Boost the goods that you are selling. Boost the people round about you; They can get along without you—But success will quicker find them if they know that you're behind them. Boost for every forward movement, Boost for every new improvement; Boost the man for whom you labor, Boost the stranger and the neighbor; Cease to be a chronic knocker, Cease to be a progress-blocker, If you'd make your community better Boost it to the final letter.

—Nebraska City Weekly News.

The City Beautiful.

We can't have too many pretty towns, or too many pretty homes in town and country. Progress along this line is being made annually and with increasing interest among progressive town builders and home owners. There is no use for shabbiness. Shabbiness connotes indifference. A house or a town which indicates careless occupants, citizens concerned only for primitive necessities, is not one to attract the sort of people that energetic people want to know. Poverty is no excuse for shabbiness. The humblest dwelling does not need to be shabby. Shabbiness is carelessness, not flimsiness. Many a flimsy little cottage or cabin exhibits a quality that is far superior to shabbiness. It is the careless, untenanted, dilapidated, apathetic look to a man's home, a man's town, or a man's clothing that gives it shabbiness. One needn't be shabby in overalls any more than in a tailor-made suit.—Dallas (Tex.) News.

Lion's Meal of Porcupine Fatal.

The victim of its own rapacity, a dead mountain lion is on exhibition in Stevensville, Mont. Two local hunters "bagged" the beast with so little trouble that they were puzzled, until an examination of the lion's mouth showed it had attempted to feast upon a porcupine. Aggravating darts had become imbedded in the membrane, preventing the animal from partaking of food. Spikes of the "quill pig" had been known to kill beasts in a similar manner. The lion on exhibition is of unusual size.

GAINS 8 POUNDS IN TWO WEEKS' TIME

Dyspepsia Entirely Overcome and She Eats, Sleeps and Feels Better Than in Years, Says Boston Resident.

"I have actually gained eight pounds in two weeks' time and am now eating better, sleeping better and feeling better than I have in three or four years," said Mrs. Celesta Fell, 32 Prince street, Boston, Mass., recently, in telling of the great benefits she has derived from the use of Tanlac.

"My stomach was in such a bad fix before I took Tanlac that I did not dare eat much of anything, for if I did I would have so much pain and distress from indigestion that I felt like I was going to die. I was so run down and weak from lack of nourishment that I could not do my housework."

"I was so nervous I couldn't keep still during the day nor sleep at night. I can see now if it had not been for Tanlac I would have had to give up entirely. I am now feeling strong and healthy and all the credit belongs to Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

HOSPITAL PATIENTS.

Chas. L. Swope, of Hanover, has entered the Union Protestant Infirmary, Baltimore, for a minor operation.

Erman Bucher, Cashtown, who cut his foot severely on Monday, has been taken to the Chambersburg Hospital.

Bernard R. Styles, of Littlestown, and Mabel Bolling, of Gettysburg, were admitted to the Warner Hospital Tuesday morning where they will undergo treatment.

Paul Asper, of Huntingdon township, was suddenly afflicted with appendicitis last week and promptly removed to a Harrisburg hospital where he successfully underwent the necessary operation.

J. W. Thomas, of Littlestown, who recently underwent a second operation for the transfusion of blood at the Mercy Hospital, Baltimore, is somewhat improved. He has been moved from the hospital to the Villa, an institution connected with Johns Hopkins.

Miss Myrtle Furney, of near Gettysburg, was admitted to the Warner Hospital Thursday and operated upon.

Madeline M. Sanders, of near Gettysburg, was also admitted to the institution as a medical case. Mrs. Warren K. Enck, Biglerville and young son, Thomas, were discharged from the institution, Wednesday.

Thomas McKendrick, of near Orrtanna, who was shot in the leg accidentally several months ago, has been re-admitted to the Warner hospital for a skin grafting operation. It seems that part of the wound caused by the shooting accident will not heal properly, so it was decided to graft new skin over the affected spot.

Russel Frook, of the Hoffman Oaphanage, near Littlestown, was admitted to the institution Monday to undergo an operation for appendicitis. Catherine Adams, of Gettysburg, was admitted Monday, for an operation. Charles Shultz, of near Orrtanna, has been admitted to the hospital for an X-ray examination.

HERE AND THERE

John J. Dwyer, an attorney-at-law with offices at 44 Wall Street, New York City, is anxious to locate relatives of William M. Lear, or Lehr, in order that a fortune of respectable size may be properly distributed. In a letter to various newspapers, Mr. Dwyer states that "one William M. Lear died recently leaving upwards of $15,000 and no heirs. He was born in Pennsylvania about 1859 and left there about 1875. It is believed he had a sister, Mary, and probably a brother. The name may have been Lehr." Two claimants have appeared already in York.

As soon as a permit to erect poles along the Carlisle 'pike is received from the State Highway Department, the Hanover Power Company will build a new line to Clearview, near Hanover. The line will be about one mile in length. Thirteen houses will be connected immediately on completion of the line.

The wet weather, and the immense crowds resulted in the beautiful lawns at the sides of avenues all over the Gettysburg battlefield being badly cut up. The fields used by the Marine camp present an appearance which indicates that they cannot be used successfully for farming purposes for a year.

Percy Eichelberger has returned to York Springs after completing a successful term of teaching in the public schools of Amityville, L. I. Mr. Eichelberger has been re-elected at the same place for the next term at a substantial increase of salary.

Wayne Kroh, Hanover taximan, has added a Winton Six 7-passenger car to his service.

Sunday afternoon, Merrin D. Noggle, of Mt. Holly Springs, was thrown through the top of his Chalmers car when another automobile crowded him off the road at a point on the Hanover-Abbottstown 'pike near the Moul farm. As a result, he sustained a scalp wound on the top of his head about three inches long. The top of the car was badly damaged, and also the rear end of the car.

As the result of injuries received Sunday aweek when the motorcycle he was driving crashed into a telephone pole in York, Guy Frisby, aged 33 years, colored, died Thursday at the York hospital. This was the fourth death from motor accidents in and near York in ten days.

An increase in wages which will bring the scale approximately on a level with those ordered by the U. S. Railroad Labor Board effective July 1, was announced last week by the Dickson Construction & Repair Co., which took over the shops of the W. M. Ry., at Hagerstown and at other points along the system March 20. The taking over of the shops by the Dickson Company was followed by a strike of shopmen five days later.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lessig have completed their vaudeville tour for the season and will spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Britcher, Hanover.

An enjoyable outing was held by Hanover lodge, I. O. O. F., in accordance with their annual custom, near East Berlin along the Conewago creek. Auto license 666,666, the highest similarly numbered tag for 1922, has been issued by the highway department.

The 16th annual Lutheran Summer Assembly will be held on the Seminary campus at Gettysburg, August 2-9.

St. Mark's Lutheran church, Hanover, will hold their annual picnic at Boiling Springs next Wednesday.

On Monday aweek the regular quarterly meeting of the Adams County Firemen's Association was held in Fairfield. The meeting was the last one before the annual convention which will be held in McSherrystown on Labor Day. Final arrangements for the annual convention are now being made by the officers. The principal speaker for the occasion at McSherrystown will be Hon. Eugene Bonniwell. Other speakers will be William Hersb, Esq., Rev. P. F. Sullivan and Rev. J. B. Baker. M. F. Stoner, of Fairfield, was elected to represent the association at the convention of the State Firemen to be held in Harrisburg in October. It was unanimously decided to hold a picnic in Witmers grove, near McSherrystown, on Labor Day afternoon. The next meeting will be held in Mt. Rock, on Monday evening, October 2nd.

Wednesday the State Police arrested Edna Kennedy, of Wheeling, W. Va., and Grace Loudon, of Washington, for soliciting among soldiers. They were placed in jail for blood tests with other women arrested on the same charge.

A Pen-Mar hotel has appropriated the name of Waldheim, the original Camp at Dicks.

Harry Hartzell, of near Cashtown, broke his wrist while cranking a car on Sunday.

Solomon Bupp, White Hall, is busily engaged in making brooms.

Mrs. Mary E. Wehler, of Hanover, formerly of New Oxford, has a grandfather's clock that has told the hours for centuries and is probably the oldest clock of its kind in this section. At least none can surpass the clock for accuracy, and perfect mechanical construction. The clock bears the inscription, "John Launes, W. Bonanago 1719." It was brought to America from Scotland years ago by the Lingfelters, great-great-grandparents of the present owner, who about 30 years ago came into possession of same.

Rev. Anthony L. Topper, formerly assistant rector of St. Mary's church, Lebanon, and a son of Mrs. Annie Topper, of McSherrystown, has been transferred to St. Joseph's parish, Shamokin, where he has been transferred to become the assistant of Rev. William A. Boyle, formerly of Gettysburg, with whom he was associated before for a short time.

Chas. Sheaffer, of Bunker Hill, Kansas, a native of York Springs, recently announced his candidacy for Assemblyman on the Rep. ticket. A half century ago, Mr. and Mrs. Sheaffer, with their three children, landed in Kansas to make their future home. Mr. Sheaffer is 82 years old. His wife died in 1913.

Miss Mary L. Boyer, Biglerville, has been elected teacher of mathematics and civics in the Schuylkill Haven H. S. Miss Martha Boyer, her sister, has taken charge of the Carlisle Y.W.C.A. summer camp. The Misses Boyer graduated from Wilson college, Chambersburg, several weeks ago.

IN AND ABOUT TOWN

On going to the local pumping station on Monday a week, pumper S. S. Mummert found the doors of the pump house and the waste pipe and big well valves all open. This is the third time interferences have been discovered in the pump house. Repairs have been made. Repairs have been made and the filter plant, and Mr. Mummert has made considerable improvements about the place.

The New Oxford Chamber of Commerce will meet on Tuesday evening in the Circle Cafe annex. All members are urged to pay their dues without delay to Secretary G. M. Spangler. New members are also solicited. Help the good work along.

New Oxford is scheduled to play the Gettysburg Odd Nine on the local diamond on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. All out.

The Ushers League of St. Paul's Reformed church will hold their picnic in Alwine's grove, July 15th, afternoon and evening.

E. E. Dittenhafer, Berlin avenue, and force are repainting the house and other outbuildings of W. C. Alwine at Berlin Junction.

Geo. Haas, of Hamilton township, on July 3rd bot in the first new wheat of the season to Dutters's warehouse. He received $1.05 per bu. Leroy Rife, of Kohlers, was awarded "first honors" at the Lincoln-Buffalo mill on July 1st, receiving $1 per bu.

Miss Esther Pottorff, of Pleasant street, is assisting her father, Mgr. Luther Pottorff, in the Lincoln-Buffalo mill office during the summer months.

First Lutheran church, Rev. W. M. Allison, pastor—Services on Sunday as follows: Sabbath school at 9 a. m., Divine worship with short meditation by the pastor at 7 p. m.

"Devil Jim" Myers, of the "Item" staff, caught a 13-in. bass and a 14-in. pike on Monday at Dicks. Tuesday he hooked an 11-in. bass before breakfast.

During July and August, Benediction will be given immediately after the late mass in the church of the Immaculate Conception, this place.

Paul Orgul, of near Bonneauville, has purchased a Durant touring car from Miller and Wolf, local distributors.

Levi Hale, Abbotstown, recently visited his brother, Henry Hale, who is ill at York.

Paul Sherman, a member of the Loysville Orphans' Home Band, suffered an attack of acute indigestion on Saturday morning and was unable to play with the band in New Oxford. He was carefully attended by Mrs. Samuel Hoover in her home by a local physician.

M. S. Yohe, local baker, is having a new roof placed on his barn at the rear of his property, on Lincoln Way, East.

The Lutheran S. S. picnic on Saturday evening in Alwine's grove, this place, was a grand success, realizing $149.26. This picnic was planned and announced through the Item nine months ago, and altho the Community Chautauqua happened to select the same date for the opening of the chautauqua, the Orphans' Home Band, of Loysville, proved a good card and drew a large crowd to the town, which no doubt was a benefit to both the picnic and chautauqua. This band has been invited to return for the next annual Lutheran S. S. picnic, which will probably be held on Saturday, July 21, 1923.

Miss Margaret Gentzler and John Hines, York, who were married on Sunday, visited New Oxford on their honeymoon.

James J. Flannery, charged with the murder of his young wife last February, was acquitted at Pittsburgh, Saturday, after the jury had deliberated for 15 nights. This is the longest jury deliberation in the history of that county. Flannery was charged with first degree murder. He set up a defense that he mistook his wife for a burglar, saying that he saw a shadowy form in a room and fired. His wife cried: "My God, Jim, you've shot me!" Flannery, it will be recalled, abandoned a big McFarlan car near New Oxford last summer, and on one occasion was arrested for shooting in Hanover.

Large audiences gathered to hear the Loysville Orphans' Home Band of 40 pieces at the Lutheran S. S. picnic on Saturday evening and also on Sunday morning in the First Lutheran church, at which place a fine sacred concert was rendered by the band. The magnificent sum of $125 was received in an offering for the Loysville Home on Saturday and Sunday. The boys were entertained by various members of the church in their homes on Saturday and Sunday. The youngsters rendered music of such a high order and in such an able way as to put them on a par with the best amateur bands in Pennsylvania. Harry Christman directed the boys in a most creditable manner. A jazz orchestra selection was much applauded. The band is on a summer tour of eastern Pennsylvania.

WOMAN FATALLY HURT

Mrs. Peter L. Trostle, 64, of Gettysburg, was fatally injured when she fell down a flight of cellar steps at her home Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Trostle apparently struck her head on the concrete cellar floor, for her skull was fractured. She was picked up in an unconscious condition and remained in that state until she passed away at 10:30 o'clock that night at the Warner hospital, to which institution she had been removed. Besides her husband the following children survive: Mrs. H. B. Bowers, Waynesboro; Mrs. A. H. Lightner and Maurice Trostle, Gettysburg, and Mrs. Krumrine, Hanover. Two brothers and one sister also survive: Wm. Dietrich, Fort Collins, Col.; George Dietrich, near Gettysburg, and Mrs. Simon Orner, Biglerville.

Today will be the last day for the 1922 Community Chautauqua in New Oxford. The program as outlined in last week's Item has proved altogether pleasing and entertaining, and hopes are entertained that 1923 may see New Oxford again favored with a Chautauqua. An effort will be made to have the time changed, as farmers can not give up their work in harvest days. Chautauqua comes in the midst of harvest this year, the guarantors were each obliged to pay an assessment of $1.50 to make up a deficit.

In Felton's 16-4 victory over Delta on Saturday, Captain "Dude" Hildebrand's homer with the bases loaded and "Bob" Brown's fielding were the features for the victors. Both played with N. O. last season, as did Hersh who also played well for Felton. Wrightsville knocked Simpson out of the box at New Holland on the same day.

Mrs. Samuel Wolf, Lincoln Way, West, has been awarded compensation insurance of $7 per week for 200 weeks and her daughter $3 per week until the child is 16 years old, following the untimely death of the husband and father in a fall from a Diehl huckster wagon a month ago at Swift Run bridge on the Lincoln Highway.

The New Oxford baseball team on Saturday journeyed to Hanover to play the A. L. team of that place. The local boys staged a practice equaled only by the St. Louis Nationals, collected $15 guarantee and returned home, the Hanover team having failed to appear.

Emory Grove, Hanover electrician, has wired the residence of John S. Weaver, on Hanover street.

HAMPTON ITEMS

"Night hawks" have again made their appearance in the Hampton section. Breaking a lock at the home of W. S. Trostle, two nights recently, the culprits secured 53 old chickens. Mr. Trostle tracked two cars to the place where he supposes the guilty persons reside. Prosecutions may follow.

R. E. LEPPU BUYS CIRCLE CAFE

Following the purchase by Harry M. Folmer, Hanover, of the Circle Cafe property, New Oxford, at public sale, for $9,000, Saturday a week, from Mrs. Minnie D. Dicks, admrx. of the N. M. Dicks estate, R. E. Leppo, who has been employed as a truck driver by the wholesale grocery firm of F. Hart & Conrad, of Hanover, for the past four years, in turn bought the property from Mr. Folmer for $12,500. The property consists of a 3-story brick hotel building, in which is located the Circle Cafe, an annex used as a pool room and kitchen and a garage on the eastern part of the lot. Possession August 1st. The furnishings were included in the sale. Mrs. Dicks will store certain retained furniture until she determines upon her future course. Mr. Leppo intends to convert a modern hotel and restaurant in the property he has purchased, and expects to serve popular meals. It is said he has no intention of opening a grocery store at present, as has been rumored. R. M. Wolf will continue to run the Center Square garage on the property, according to present calculations.

Mr. Leppo will sell his property in Hanover on July 22nd.

FIRST DISTRICT S. S. CONVENTION

At the First Dist. S. S. convention at the Pines, on Sunday evening two very inspirational addresses were given. The first one was by Rev. A. Burkhardt, of the State Field force, on the subject of the greatest need of the S. S. today. As he sees it that need is a system by which we can create leadership. Five qualifications of leadership were given as follows: 1. Determination; 2. Confidence; 3. Sincerity; 4. Patience; 5. Personality. The second speaker was Dr. Sanders, of Gettysburg college. His theme was: "Does Anybody Care?" One lesson that Jesus revealed to the world was that God cares. Dr. Sanders said he did not care if any told him at the close of the convention that they enjoyed his talk or not but he did care that they were all at S. S. next Sunday and every Sunday.

CHILD DRINKS IODINE

Mistaking a bottle of iodine for a bottle of medicine he enjoyed taking, Arthur Roth, Jr., 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Roth, Gettysburg, formerly of New Oxford, Sunday afternoon, drank the contents. Immediately after drinking the poisonous fluid, the child, with the empty bottle in his hand, walked into the room in which his father was sitting. Mr. Roth took in the situation at a glance and summoned a physician, in the meantime giving the child antidotes to counteract the action of the poison. This treatment was continued after the arrival of the physician and the child soon emitted the poison, after which his condition improved. The child suffered no further ill-effects from the draught than a slightly burned mouth.

2ND RACING MATINEE JULY 22ND

There will be a big day in Millhimes' Grove, midway between New Chester and Hunterstown, on Saturday, July 22nd, when the Second Racing Matinee of the season will be held. There will be different classes of Trotting and Pacing Races and premiums for each class awarded. Other amusements will be provided for all.

A Festival will be held in the grove during the evening. Music by the Mt. Joy Community Band during afternoon and evening. Everybody is invited. In case of rain on the above day the program will be carried out the following Saturday, July 29th.

Miss Irene Miller and Leroy Miller, of Altoona, are spending the summer with Mrs. George Miller, near New Oxford, and William Arnold, near Gettysburg.

A trial sermon was preached at Wolf's church on Sunday evening by Rev. Charles W. Baker, Jr., Conference, formerly of New Oxford. Wolf's Lutheran congregation is one of the churches served by the late Dr. Stump, and with Paradise congregation forms a new charge in the West Pennsylvania synod. Rev. Mr. Baker will preach at Paradise on next Sunday morning. Rev. Baker is a graduate of Gettysburg college and of Gettysburg seminary, graduating from the latter institution in the class of 1918 when he accepted a call to go to Conference.

Sponsler's Sextette, of York, will be the attraction at Cafe Dicks on the Conewago on Saturday evening. C. Til. Myers, prop., is engaging the best orchestras in this section for the dances at the Cafe, which is again proving a popular resort this summer.

Mrs. Minnie D. Dicks, admrx. will sell the 67-acre farm of the late N. M. Dicks, situated near Hampton, on Saturday, July 15th, at 1:30 o'clock on the premises.

It has been suggested that C. Wolf Mummert notify property owners to trim low-hanging tree branches.

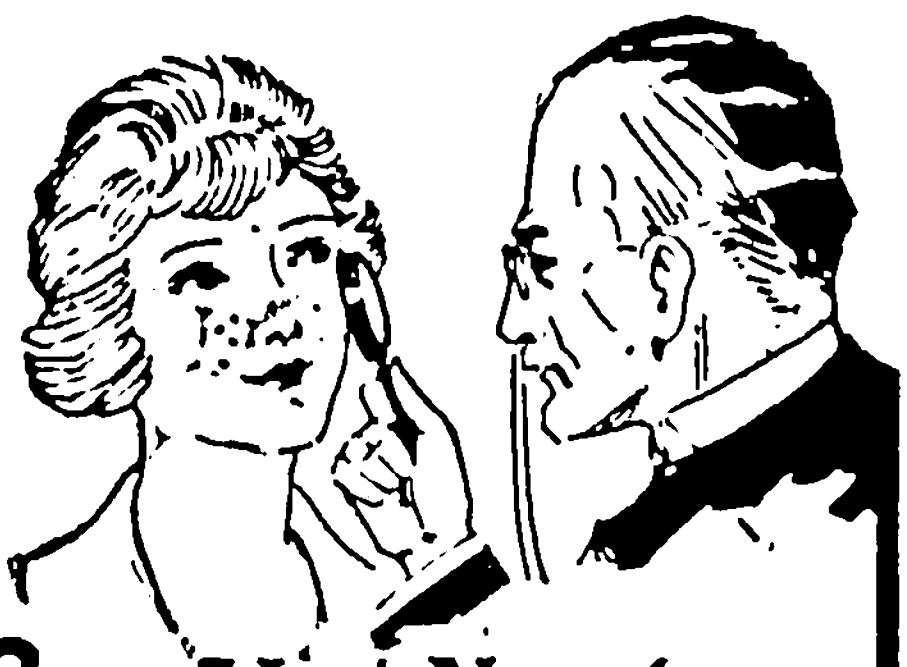

FROM GIRLHOOD TO WOMANHOOD

Woman Relied Upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Emporia, Kansas.—"I began using Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines years ago when I was a girl. For several years I had severe pains at menstrual periods, making me very weak and interfering with my regular duties. I tried several remedies without obtaining relief. I was induced to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound by friends and it restored me to normal health. I often have occasion to do recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends who have troubles similar to my own. You may use these facts as a testimonial."—EVA ALDRICH, 218 Union St., Emporia, Kansas.

There are many women who first used our Vegetable Compound during their girlhood days. They found it a valuable help during trying periods. In later years they use it whenever they feel those annoying symptoms which women often have.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a woman's medicine. It is prepared carefully from the best quality of medicinal plants, whose properties are especially adapted to correct the troubles women have.

KEPT IN CELLAR FOR TWO MONTHS

Five-Year-Old Boy, His Body Emaciated and Covered With Bruises, Rescued by Police.

TELLS OF BRUTALITY

Slept on Piece of Carpet in Crude Soap Box—When He Cried Other Children Were Sent Down to Punish Him.

Syracuse, N. Y.—The police rescued Kenneth Vermier, five years old, partly nude, from the cellar of the family home, where he is said to have been imprisoned for two months. The boy's father is Herbert Vermier, production superintendent at one of the city's largest industries.

The lad, emaciated, his body and head covered with wounds and bruises, his neck turned, probably permanently, from huddling on a piece of carpet in a crude soap box, was taken from the cellar by Mrs. Genevieve Searles, policewoman, and William Mesick, superintendent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

The boy was wrapped in a blanket and taken before a justice of the peace at Eastwood, where a charge of improper guardianship was brought against him. The court adjourned the case, giving his custodians permission to take the little boy to the matron's department at police headquarters here.

Long Time in Cellar. "How long were you down in the cellar?" a police officer asked him. "I don't know just how long, mister," the boy answered, "but it was an awful long time down there."

"What did you have to eat?" "Well, sometimes they would send down a bowl of toasties, with a little milk, then a little toast."

Some of the neighborhood children told Mr. Mesick and Mrs. Searles that when they were playing with the Vermier children, Kenneth would hear them and start to cry from the cellar. When that would happen, the investigators were told, one of the other children would be sent into the cellar to whip Kenneth for crying.

Dr. Mandell Shimborg, police surgeon, said the boy was suffering from malnutrition. The boy was taken to the Syracuse Memorial hospital.

Tells of His Bruises.

Kenneth was asked how he received the wounds on his head and body. "Those," the child said, pointing to the wounds on his face and head, "came from sleeping in the box. I had the box next to the furnace. There was a carpet in the bottom."

Whipped Kenneth for Crying.

No pillow. That's how I hurt my head by laying on the carpet in the box."

Black and blue marks on his body, Kenneth said, were from being struck with the handle of a broom.

Mrs. Vermier told Mrs. Searles that 11 of her 12 children are at home. The oldest, Everett, seventeen, is living with a family by whom he was adopted in infancy.

DENIED MEAT FOR TEN YEARS

Wife Testifies in Court She Wasn't Let Express Her Pleasure on Saturdays.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—Mrs. Maud Darland, wife of Clyde Darland, head of the Helping Hand Mission in Cerro Gordo county, was granted a divorce on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment. She alleged she had not been permitted to eat meat for ten years, was not permitted to drink coffee or tea, could not use vinegar or pepper and could "express no pleasure" on Saturday.

Their seven children, she alleged, were not permitted to play on Saturdays and were compelled to pray one hour every morning and an hour and a half every evening. The older children, she claimed, were forced to walk four miles to work, and their only food during the day was a crust of bread. She was allowed the custody of the children and $50 a month alimony.

MOTHER CUTS OFF HEAD OF CHILD

Drowns Another in Rain Barrel and Third Is Rescued, Almost Dead, by Father.

Russell Springs, Ky.—After severing the head of her twelve-year-old daughter with a butcher knife and hurling her six-year-old son and an infant into a barrel filled with rain water, Mrs. Arnold Holt, residing at the home of her father, George Harris, ran head-on against the sharp edge of a hatchet which she had wedged in a fence and injured herself probably fatally.

Mrs. Holt is believed to have become suddenly insane as a result of brooding over a divorce suit. She was separated from her husband several months ago.

Awakened by the screams of the daughter, George Harris rushed to the door in time to see Mrs. Holt sever the girl's head with one blow of a sharp butcher knife. The son and the infant, who were nearby, then were seized by the demented mother and plunged into the barrel of water, the cover thrown on top of them to prevent their escape.

Tearing her hair and shrieking, Mrs. Holt then ran to a fence in which she previously had fastened a hatchet. Backing away 20 feet, she lowered her head and ran straight against the sharp blade, cleaving her skull.

The father watched the tragedy as though paralyzed until the woman fell, then ran to notify neighbors. The boy was found hanging head down over the edge of the rain barrel in an unconscious condition and hope is held for his recovery. The infant perished in the barrel.

Mrs. Holt was unconscious when picked up by neighbors and physicians who attended her said she would not recover. During a brief lapse of consciousness she whispered: "Why didn't God let me finish it?"

She is said to have been despondent since her separation from her husband and dreaded the ordeal of appearing in court in the divorce proceedings which she had instituted.

Arnold Holt, the husband, formerly was employed as a salesman at Louisville. His present whereabouts is not known.

Mrs. Arnold's brother, Elan Harris, is a well-known dentist of Danville, Ky.

THIS CAVEWOMAN TOO ROUGH

Ice-man Balks at Marriage After Kansas City Woman Mops Up Wagon With Him.

Kansas City, Mo.—Martin Connolly is a small ice-man and Elsie Rogers is a large housemaid. A policeman found Elsie mopping up the ice wagon with Martin. Next both were in the South side municipal court.

"She is all the time following me on my ice route," said Connolly. "She wants me to marry her, but I don't love her. She threatened to kill me if I didn't get a marriage license."

Elsie admitted it and asked Martin to change his mind.

"You're too rough," he answered. Judge Fleming fined both $25.

Cuts Off Wife's Hair to Keep Her at Home

Akron, O.—Nearly four feet of golden tresses was shorn from the head of Mrs. Clara Cox, twenty-seven, by her husband, Orrin Cox, a rubber worker, to prevent her from leaving her family to travel as a hair tonic demonstrator. It was learned here.

They quarreled over the proposed tour, and she stayed away from home until late the other night. Cox awaited her return. He watched her as she braided her hair for the night. Then as she arose from in front of her mirror he clipped the braids, which reached to her ankles.

"I would give a million dollars if I could restore your hair," Cox told her as they were reconciled at the hospital where the wife is suffering from a nervous collapse.

Wit and Humor

NOT ALWAYS A SIGN

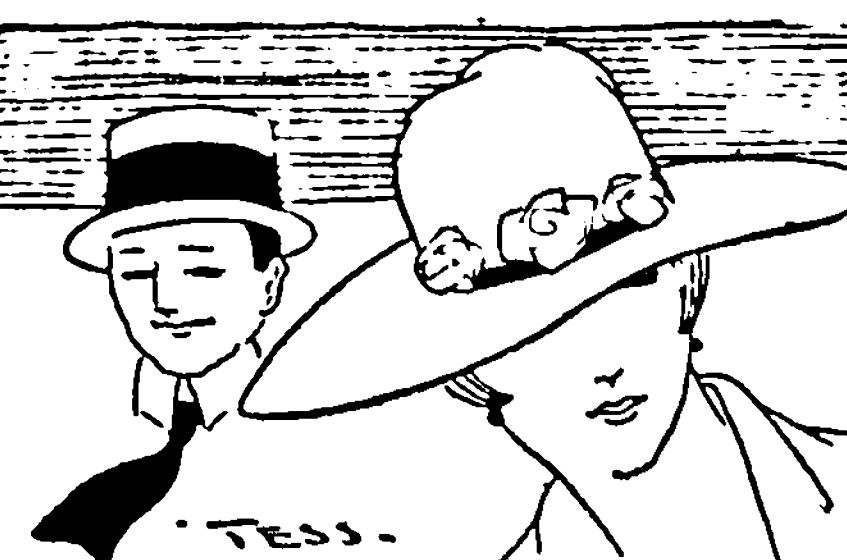

As usual, Mrs. Subbubs enlivened the dinner table conversation with an account of the new servant.

"I don't know much about her yet," she said, "but she is good-natured and harmless, at any rate."

"How did you find that out?"

"By her singing. She is always singing at her work."

"That's no sign," said Mrs. Subbubs. "A mosquito does that."

SWEET

"The sweetest girl I ever kissed," said gay young Malcolm, "Used powdered sugar on her face instead of talcum."

Mixed Spelling.

If you and I and ewe and eye and yew and aye (dear me!) Were to be spelled u and I, How mixed up we should be!

More Strategy.

"Do you ever suspect Mr. Jibway of running around with other women?" "Certainly," said Mrs. Jibway. "You don't let him know it, do you?"

"I take particular pains to let him know it. When I want a check an ounce of suspicion is worth a pound of pleading."

Somebody to Pick On.

"I understand Mr. Peckton has taken up golf."

"Yes, and it has made a new man out of him."

"The exercise?"

"Not exactly. After years of subjection in the home, it would do your heart good to see the way he worries a caddy."

A Correct Diagnosis.

"This is no girl-and-music show," said the inebriated person to his friend when the curtain went up. "Blest if I don't believe it's Shakespeare!"

"But the box-office man said it was just the thing for us."

"Yeah! He thought we needed sleep."

What Didn't Go Together.

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

YOURS TRULY

By AGNES G. BROGAN

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

Big Jim Darrow leaned back in his chair and looked diffidently toward his pretty stenographer. He could never get over a certain shyness in issuing his orders. To ask this competent young person to follow his dictation seemed a presumptuous thing. Yet Jim, fresh from the West, was a power in his own world. That his early education had been necessarily neglected was no handicap in his rugged determination for success. But realizing his deficiencies he engaged a stenographer who might not only take rough dictation but put it in best possible form.

Margaret Wainwright came to him in response to an advertisement; this was her first position in the business world.

Jim gathered from her few confidences that her father's sudden death and the following shock of his bad investments were responsible for his own good fortune. For Margaret soon became invaluable to him.

So Jim gave his business orders humbly, and rejoiced in the daily sight of his adored. And he was happy, too, in a measure, until that confounded Baisly came upon the scene.

In his renunciation, Jim had not counted on a rival—and that Baisly, the aggressively conceited, should be that rival was insufferable.

Jim was whistling in the soft way he had when things were well with him, when Baisly dropped into the office on a business errand, and amazingly encountered Margaret Wainwright there.

"Peggie Wainwright as I live!" he cried, and extended an eager hand. Jim flushed angrily at the "Peggie" but the girl herself turned in evident pleasure to accept the greeting.

"Mr. Baisly and I were neighbors at home," she explained.

"More than neighbors," Baisly added. "Why, I carried Peggie's books to school in the old-fashioned way—schoolmates, school days, all that sort of thing. Now, to find you here, my dear, is one big streak of luck. Not the lonely evening tonight I anticipated, for you will go to the theater with me, 'Peg o' My Heart'?"

And Margaret agreed to go. Jim, with a sinking heart, heard her smile reply. After that Baisly haunted the office.

The Westerner, comparing that modishly immaculate figure with his own sturdy presence, could not dispute Margaret's preference; he only hoped anxiously that Baisly was serious this time, and would not bring to those soft unclouded eyes the shadow he had brought to others.

Jim was very gentle, to the girl, very grateful for her interested assistance. It was like her unselfish sweetness to sacrifice now and then an evening of pleasure, to be helpfully at her employer's side. Margaret must be happy—this lovely and beloved girl, even if Baisly, the irresponsible, were the one to make her so.

The man's smug assurance nevertheless continued to jar upon him and it was with dread that Jim awaited the announcement he felt sure must come. They were seated before the Westerner's desk when Baisly broached the dreaded subject, Margaret's dusky head just in view beyond it.

"I guess it's plain to you where my fancy lies," Baisly said, smiling satisfaction.

Jim nodded. "The question which most concerns me," he replied, "is where does Margaret's fancy lie?"

Baisly, leaning back, lightly touched his own breast. "Here, of course," he triumphed.

"And you are to be married?" It was the hardest sentence big Jim had ever managed.

"As soon as Peg says the word," Baisly calmly lit his cigar. "Smoke?" he held a second cigar toward the Westerner.

Jim could not take it, his hands were trembling. "You make her happy—" he began. The words had the sound of a threat.

Baisly's smile was mocking. "Maybe, you had designs there yourself," he retorted.

Gravely Jim replied: "Margaret Wainwright is the one woman I would marry."

Baisly started. "And she has refused you?"

Jim whirled around. "You think I would dare to offer myself—I, in the rough, and she—ah fineness?"

The girl at the desk arose, and came with her typed pages to her employer. Confusedly Jim gazed down upon her work. It was a response to an order. With her eyes compellingly upon his, Margaret bent over his typewriter, to add the signature. Following that compelling gaze, Jim's eyes, too, were on the paper.

"I am, yours truly," Margaret typed, and stopped to smile up at him. Questioningly, he returned her glance. With an impatient sigh she bent again to the keys.

"We trust that the above meets your approval," she wrote; her eyes laughed at him.

Then, all at once, Jim understood. Stupendous, unbelievable as it was, here was Margaret's—his Margaret—trying to make him understand.

"You are laboring under a mistake, Baisly," he said, his tone no longer halting, "for Margaret Wainwright is going to marry me."

"I am yours truly," quoted Margaret, her merry eyes bent again on the letter.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

LEADER SHEEP

"These are the ways of Sheep," said Leader Sheep.

All the Sheep listened to Leader Sheep.

"It is true," he said, "that Sheep are timid. They are somewhat like the members of the Deer family in that way."

"They are often very much afraid of a dog. A sheep has been known to die from having been frightened by a dog."

"But that does not happen often, and be as brave as possible, Sheep."

"Baa, baa, baa," bleated the Sheep. "We will be as brave as possible, baa, baa, baa."

"Good," said Leader Sheep. "That is what I want to hear. Baa, baa, baa, that is what I want to hear."

"And you heard it, didn't you?" the Sheep said. "Baa, baa, baa, you heard it."

"Yes," said Leader Sheep, "I did, and it made me happy."

"Baa, baa, baa," the Sheep bleated. "He heard it, and it made him happy."

"All Sheep must be good to their little ones just as they have always been. The Daddy Sheep and Mother Sheep have always been kind and sweet and loving to the darling little lambs and so they must always be."

"They will always be loving to the darling lambs," said the Sheep. "Baa, baa, baa. A Daddy Sheep or a Mother Sheep cannot help but be good to the young."

"That is right," said Leader Sheep. "That is the way it has always been."

"There We Can See."

and that is the way it should always be."

"And it is the way it will always be, baa, baa," bleated the rest of the Sheep.

"That rejoices my heart," said Leader Sheep. "Ah yes, that rejoices my heart."

"Baa, baa, baa," said the other Sheep. "It rejoices his heart."

"There is always only one leader among a flock of Sheep," said Leader Sheep, "and as you have chosen me to be your leader, or have consented to let me be your leader, I hope you will always follow me."

"We will always follow you, Leader Sheep," they said. "Baa, baa, baa, we will always follow you."

"That, too, rejoices my heart," said Leader Sheep.

"Baa, baa, baa," said the other Sheep. "Leader Sheep is having a good time, for his heart is being rejoiced every few moments."

"That is true," said Leader Sheep. "That most certainly is true."

"And now, Sheep, I wish to tell you that if I go through a fence you must all go through the fence too. I do not mean of course that you are to go through the wood part, or wire part of a fence."

"But if I go through the hole of a fence you must go through the hole of a fence too, following me."

"Baa, baa, baa," bleated the Sheep. "We will follow you, Leader Sheep."

"That rejoices my heart," said Leader Sheep.

"Baa, baa, baa," said the other Sheep. "Once more his heart is rejoicing."

"True, true," said Leader Sheep. "once more is my heart rejoicing."

"If we see a stone being thrown we will keep away from that part of the countryside. Oh yes, we will be careful."

"I will lead you to the top of a high hill and there we can see about us."

"We will follow you, Leader Sheep. We will follow you, baa, baa, baa."

So the Sheep all followed Leader Sheep. And wherever he went, they went too.

The little lambs played and had a very good time, jumping up and down and copying each other. What one would do the rest would do, showing that even though they were young they too would follow a leader.

And Leader Sheep led the others safely and well.

Fletcher's CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

VERY CLOSE TO THE TRUTH

Porter Had Fairly Reasoned as to Why the Boots Were Placed Outside the Door.

I had been tramping through the Virginia mud all day, and stopped at the little inn. I was tired and immediately went to my room, a small one with a large bed occupying most of the space. As usual, I placed my shoes outside to be cleaned. Next morning there they were, as muddy as the night before, and being number twelve, they carried considerable soil. I went down to the lobby, and in order to teach the porter a much-needed lesson, I called him up before the onlookers who were sitting in the office.

"Why didn't you clean my shoes, boy?" I asked gruffly.

"I didn't know you wanted 'em cleaned, sah," was the reply.

"Why in thunder do you reckon I put 'em outside the door?"

"Well, sah, I allowed there wasn't room inside for 'em, sah," was the answer.—Exchange.

"Anything to see in this town?" inquired a recently arrived guest.

"Well," replied the landlord of the tavern at Oblong Center, "a lady barber has just opened up a shop in the next block. You might kinda ramble around and—"

Documents Ironed Out.

Out in Phoenix, Ariz., where they have flood rains at times, a violent storm caused water to enter the basement of the state capitol and soak all the valuable records stored there. An electrical salesman's inspiration enabled the state to dry out the papers with virtually no loss. An electric ironing machine was called into play and did the trick satisfactorily, although it took several weeks to restore the great mass of water-damaged documents.—Detroit Free Press.

Sorry She Didn't Like It.

But Anyway, That Particular Hat Wasn't for Sale, and It Made Little Difference.

In and out of department stores and millinery shops went the woman, her friend, trying on hats and hats with ribbons, hats smothered in feathers and hats where bloomed flowers that never were on sea or land. The woman's friend was as hard to please as the little girl in the "Three Little Pigs." They were all "too" something. The woman was growing weary, and seeing an attractive black hat with spider white feathers in a hair net, she forced another fussy shopper, she started it out to her friend.

"Try to get a chance at this unusual hat. It has a great deal of distinction," she whispered.

The friend sidled up to the case, and when the fussy shopper was trying on a yellow-flowered crown, she seized the hat and viewed it with interest in the glass, exclaiming: "Ugh! I don't like this one a little bit."

"Excuse me, madam," jolly a fussy shopper, "that is my own hat I bought in Kenosha. Sorry you don't admire it."—Chicago Journal.

REMEMBER WHEN!

Oscar Kinneman, of Abbottstown, accepted a position in the barber shop of Eli Roelck on the Hanover Square, 20 years ago Friday.

Emory Reynolds, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Reynolds, East Berlin, was drowned in the Conewago creek while bathing, 15 years ago Friday.

Eugene Rife and George Gordon were drowned in the Hoke quarries, 10 years ago Friday.

Miss Marie Yohe, of Abbottstown, died 10 years ago Saturday.

Clement, 9-year-old son of Jos. R. Carbaugh, was caught beneath falling clay at the brick yards at Berlin Junction and killed, 10 years ago Friday.

Elmer Brown was seriously injured when he jumped from a ladder on the Isalah Diller farm in Conewago township, striking the handle of a pitchfork which penetrated his abdomen, 10 years ago Friday.

Proceedings resulting from a writ of fieri facias issued by the court of common pleas of this county against Chester A. Leas, Gettysburg, have been squashed. Mr. Leas announced Tuesday. The writ was issued on a technicality. Mr. Leas declines, and the matter has properly been adjusted. There will be no sale of stock and fixtures. It is said, and Mr. Leas will continue the business as heretofore.

Monday Chief Crabbs arrested B. F. Eckert, Hanover, on a warrant issued by Squire Sell, charged on oath of Edgar A. Leas, manager of the Hanover water company, with illegally connecting water pipes without a permit. It was alleged that Eckert made a new connection in his cellar and ran a water line to his barn.

An epidemic is playing havoc among beagle hounds and other blooded dogs in Hanover, which are said to be dying in large numbers. The disease which is probably contagious is described as a kind of distemper. The dog twitches violently about the body and his jaws become clinched.

Work at rebuilding the Littlestown road is going forward steadily with the state highway department directing the work and it is expected that by mid-summer it will be completed giving an excellent road the entire way between Gettysburg and Baltimore.

Considerable complaint has been made lately by lovers of birds that many harmless and beautiful song birds are being killed by boys armed with small rifles in that haven of bird life along the Conewago just below the chapel.

Heart balm to the amount of $5,000 is sought by Miss Viola S. Myers, of Codorus township, in an action in assumpsit against Alvin Shue, of the same township, for alleged breach of promise to marry.

Geo. W. Alexander and Oliver Boese have formed a partnership in Hanover, and under the name of the Standard Manufacturing Company will manufacture wood work.

The annual meeting and banquet of the Hanover Medical Association will be held today at Piney Mountain Inn, near Caledonia.

Prof. Norman Haar, Maple Grove, purchased a new Chevrolet touring car.

An effort is being made to book a Chautauqua in Hanover for 1923.

One bid was submitted and rejected for interior repairs to Adams county's Court House, according to the county commissioners before whom the solitary bid was opened. The bid was too high, according to the commissioners. The lone bid was submitted by the Gettysburg contracting firm of Gilbert and Welker. Their bid was $4,233.90 for repainting, redecorating, and making necessary repairs to plumbing at the Court House. According to specifications, both wood-work and plastering throughout the interior will be painted. The plumbing will also be repaired.

An Italian linen peddler, possibly the same one who fleeced a number of New Oxford residents a few months ago, was fined $5 and ordered out of Hanover on Friday for operating without a license. New Oxford take notice how home merchants are protected there.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank N. Britcher have gone to housekeeping in Gettysburg. Mrs. Britcher since returning from her wedding trip several weeks ago had been staying at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jackson B. Stambaugh, in Hanover.

The Rev. Paul R. Pontius, who has accepted a pastorate at Lehigh, preached his last sermon in Trinity Reformed church, Gettysburg, on Sunday evening. A farewell party was held Monday evening.

Action by state agricultural authorities will be taken against firms selling cattle feeds known as tankage without complying with state regulations. In some samples analyzed it was discovered particles of glass and tin were mixed in the substance. Some of it came from garbage.

Miss Isabelle Rudisill, Hanover, is taking a special course in Primary work at the Columbia University, New York, summer school. First roasting ears sold at 84c doz. at Hanover on Saturday.

Gettysburg council received a gift from the National Park Commission and the Theological Seminary in a strip of land 30 feet wide which will allow improvement of a much traveled approach from Seminary avenue to the Lincoln Highway. The present entrance is very dangerous.

New Oxford has received only half the school appropriation for the 1921-22 term. Some township school districts in the county, including Straban, have received their quotas under the Edmonds' act as of Feb. 1, 1922, which have exceeded the 1921 quotas.

Land owners who "post" their property against trespassing or fishing with the intention of preventing sportsmen from angling in streams that flow across the property take "a narrow view-point" the State Department of Fisheries declares in announcing action on complaints recently received.

Half-holidays are observed by nearly all stores in Hanover on Wednesdays during July and August.

St. Joseph's church, Bonneauville, held a festival on the church lawn, Saturday evening.

The Littlestown School Board elected I. S. Brumgard secretary and Geo. S. Stover treasurer. The poll tax was fixed at $2 per capita. The general tax was fixed at 12 mills and 4 mills for the sinking fund. A statement of receipts and expenditures will be mailed each taxpayer.

Misses Miriam and Octavia Lingg, of Hanover, formerly of New Oxford, are entertaining a number of their friends at a weekend party at "Wildwood" cottage along the Conewago. The party is chaperoned by Mrs. F. M. Lingg.

"BROWNIE" PETERED OUT!

Have you noticed that sad look "Bill" Peterman casts at "Brownie" Smith every now and then? "Bill" sort o' pities "Brownie" after having learned the latter's homesick tendencies so well on that trip to Cleveland last week, and he wishes he could do something for him—or to him, when he considers his lost time in wages! You see, "Brownie" consented to let "Bill" show him part of the world. All went well until Chambersburg was reached, when "Brownie" began to seem nervous. At Bedford "Bill" saw "Brownie" looking back over Lincoln Highway and heard him heave a sorrowful sigh. At Lionier "Brownie's" condition was bordering on the pathetic. Coming to Pittsburgh "Brownie" began talking of old Center Square and the home-town laundry and implored "Bill" not to brave the smoke and traffic of the Iron City. There was nothing else for Peterman to do but turn back and so Cleveland was never reached. Home again, "Brownie" was the happiest man alive; but as for "Bill", he simply pined "Brownie" and that longing of his pay going to the man he had hired for a week to drive the State Highway Dept. truck while he and "Brownie" were seeing Cleveland! "Brownie" has taken some of his spending money to buy a record for the Victrola—"Home, Sweet Home"—and has invited "Bill" to spend July 4, 1923, with him in Little, old New Oxford.

On account of the inclement weather on July 4th a number of the horse-men and followers of the sport have requested the management of Grist Park, York Springs, to schedule another set of matinee races before the annual Labor Day races. Therefore it has been decided to have another matinee at Grist Park on Saturday, August 5th, when a big program will be given.

CHURCH SURVEY WORK IN IOWA

John W. Myers, son of W. D. Myers, Hanover street, writes: "During the summer, in my survey work for the Federal Council of Churches in New York, I made surveys in western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and am now located in Spencer, Iowa. I will spend two weeks here after which time I will go to Stanton, in the southern part of the state, to make a survey there. During my survey in western Indiana I visited a cousin, Samuel G. Kindig, at Kentland. Mr. Kindig moved from Littlestown, 30 years ago. In the vicinity of Kentland and Brook, about all of the settlers came from Adams county and from near Hanover in the early seventies. I miss the Item when traveling from place to place and cannot get it."

A hearing in the case of the Com. vs. Lottie Hagerman, charged on oath of Charles Dell, of Hanover, with carrying concealed deadly weapons was held before Squire L. D. Sell, Friday afternoon. After hearing the evidence the defendant was discharged and case dismissed. A second case against the Hagerman woman charged on oath of Margaret Dell with assault and surety of the peace was also given a hearing after which the defendant was discharged, but ordered to pay costs of prosecution.

Mrs. Laura B. Fissel, widow of Geo. C. Fissel, has announced that she will continue the real estate and insurance business conducted by her husband in Gettysburg.

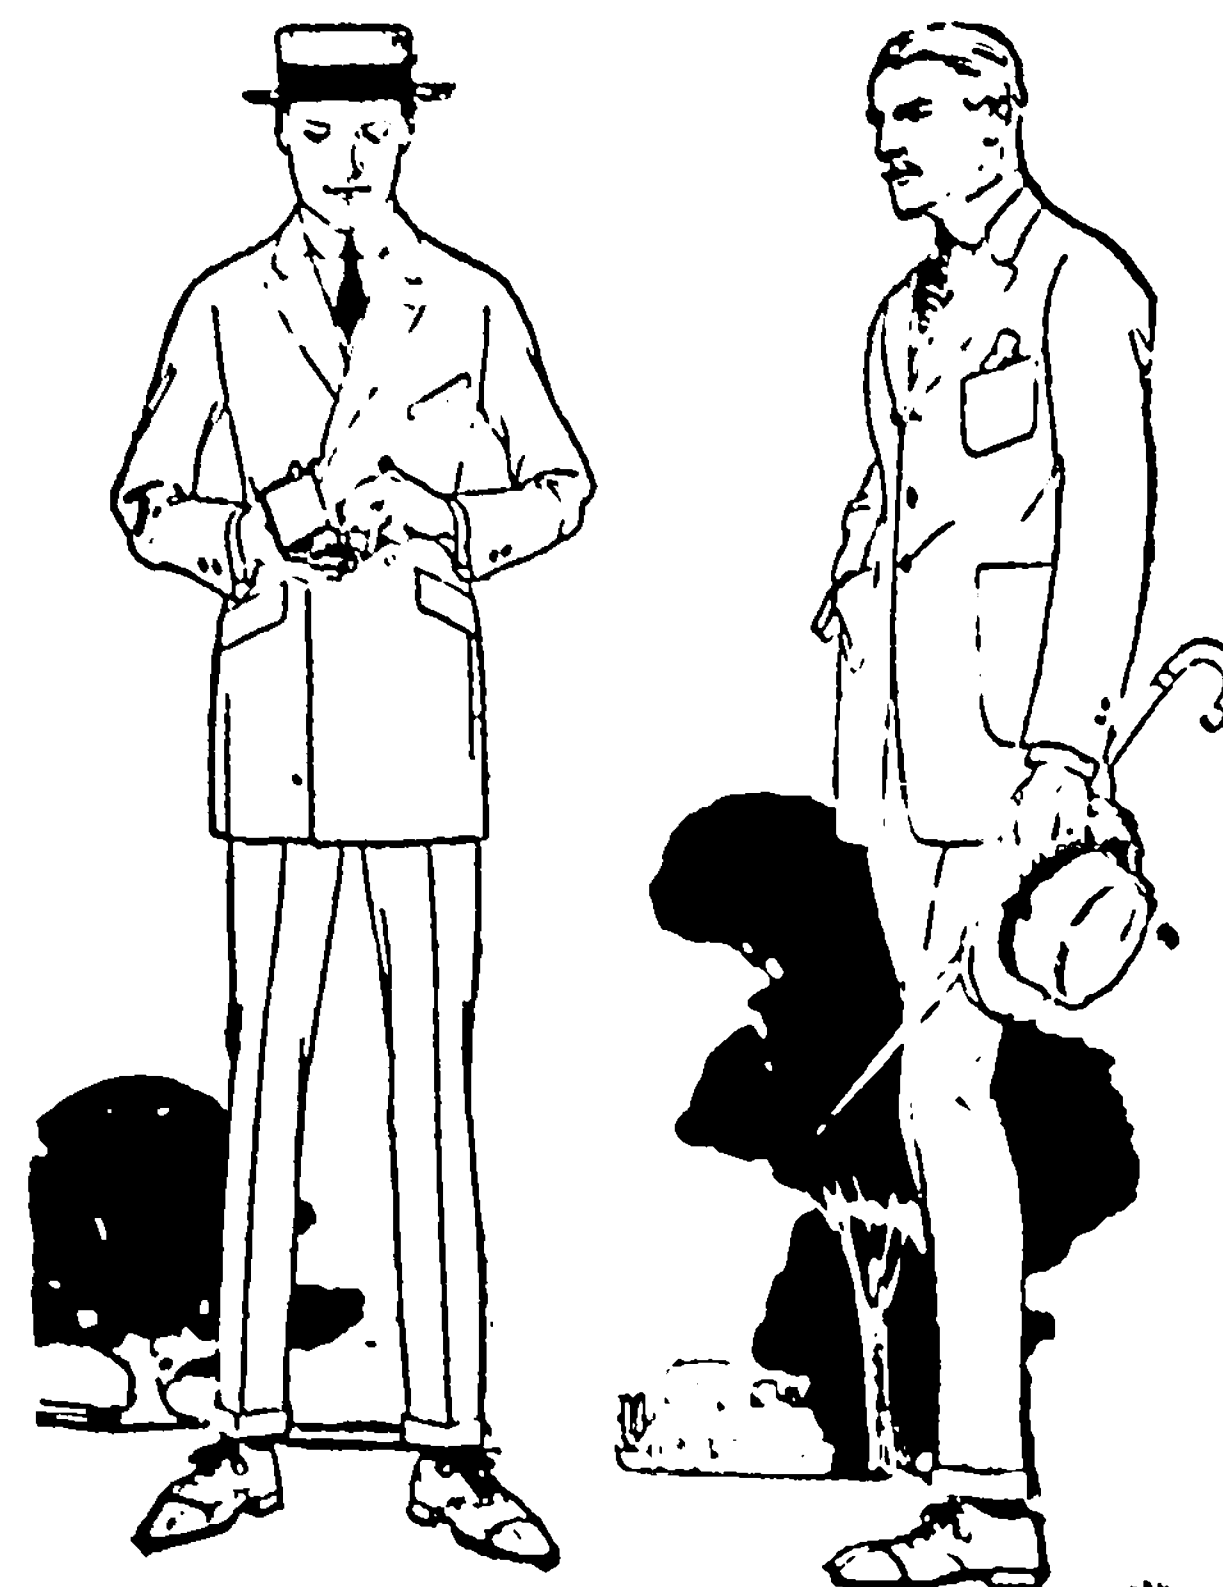

Glen Gardner, principal of Andes, N. Y., High school, has returned to Gettysburg to spend the summer with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Gardner.

Work on the construction of the new electric line to be built from York Springs to Aspers via Idaville and Gardners began last week.

THEY WHO DANCE MUST PAY FIDDLER

a Community Than They Put In.

COLLAPSE IS INEVITABLE

Town Will Not Survive Long If Its Commercial Structure Is Torn Down Faster Than It Can Be Built Up.

(Copyright, 1917, Western Newspaper Union.)
He who dances must pay the fiddler. That is an old saying which is full of truth. The primary idea in this saying, of course, is that one cannot have any pleasure without paying for it in some way, but this is not the only sense in which it may be construed. It means that we cannot pursue any foolish policy indefinitely without paying for it in the end.

No man can overtax his physical strength indefinitely without risking ultimate disaster. Dissipation or overwork may be continued for a time without any noticeable results, but if continued for a sufficiently long time the inevitable comes to pass. The laws of nature cannot be violated with impunity. If one takes out of life more than he puts in, if he tears down his physical strength faster than he builds it up, he must eventually pay the fiddler.

What is true of the laws of nature is equally true of economic laws. The people of a community may for a time tear down the commercial structure of a town faster than they build it up without meeting disaster, but it cannot be continued indefinitely. In the end they must pay the fiddler.

Exhaust Resources of Community.
The person who makes his living in a community, receiving the money of the community for his labor or the products of his labor, and then spends his income outside of his community is helping to exhaust the resources of the community just as the man who expends his energy through dissipation or overexertion faster than he builds it up is exhausting his physical resources. One man may do this, of course, without noticeably affecting the economic strength of the community, but when a dozen men or women do it the effect becomes noticeable and when a hundred do it the resources of the community become exhausted to the point where collapse is inevitable. Those who are responsible for this situation may think that they have profited individually by their actions, but they have not realized that in the end they must pay the fiddler.

There are some persons who seem to be able to get through "it" without much effort. There are some who proceed on the theory that the world owes them a living and they proceed to collect it. They take what they can get and give nothing in return. Such persons, however, are not very numerous. Most of us must pay for everything that we get. Some may have to pay more than their share and these are carrying the burden of those who get more than they pay for. The fact remains that, as a general rule, one cannot have much worth while without paying for it.

The merchants of any community are the backbone of that community, so far as its prosperity and progress are concerned. Individually there may be some of them who do not exert themselves to boost their community, but collectively they are the men upon whom the living of every person in the community depends. The success or failure of an individual merchant may not be of particular concern to the people of a community, but the success or failure of the merchants as a whole is a matter of the very greatest concern.

Provide Market for Farmers.
The merchants of a town, in the first place, provide a market for a large part of the products of the farmers in the territory surrounding the town. They buy the produce of the farmers in small quantities, in accordance with their need, and some of them buy in larger quantities for shipment to foreign markets. If the merchants could not do this there would be no market at least for the small quantities except at ruinous prices. If the farmers could not realize a reasonable profit from their products, there would be no money for them to spend and there could be no money to pay for your products or to pay for your labor. It is therefore, of the greatest importance to every member of the community, whether a resident of the town or a farmer in the country surrounding the town, that the merchants be enabled to provide this market for at least a part of the farmer's products.

Every dollar sent away from a town to a mail order house helps to diminish the ability of the local merchants to provide a market for the farmer's products or to do any of the many other things which the merchants of every town do for their community.

Business in a community cannot be conducted on a one-sided basis. A man cannot take out of his community a good living for himself and family and give nothing in return. He may do so for a short time and get away with it, but in the end he must pay the fiddler.

The Best Policy.

It is better to be parsimonious than dishonest.

HORSE CRUSHES CHILD TO DEATH

Margaret Butler, colored, aged 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Butler, residing on the state road between Emmitsburg and Gettysburg, near the Mason and Dixon line, was crushed to death Thursday afternoon, when the horse drawing a buggy in which she had accepted a ride with Philip Hoffman, of Gettysburg, scared, upset the vehicle and fell upon her chest. Death was almost instantaneous. The fatal accident occurred as the result of an act of generosity on the part of Mr. Hoffman, who had gone to Emmitsburg Thursday on business in connection with a sale of horses. Mr. Hoffman, being the only occupant in the buggy, offered the little girl and her sister a lift about a mile from Emmitsburg. When not far from their destination, an auto scared the horse, which reared on its hind legs and upset the buggy. The three occupants were thrown along side the road and when the buggy turned over, the horse was carried with it, falling on the child. Mr. Hoffman received a badly bruised shoulder. The other girl was uninjured. Every rib in the girl's body was broken and death resulted almost instantly. The horse arose and started to run away, but was caught shortly afterward. The buggy was slightly damaged.

WORN NERVES

Nervous troubles, with backache, dizzy spells, queer pains and irregular kidneys, give reasons to suspect kidney weakness and to try the remedy that has helped your neighbors. Ask your neighbor.

Mrs. Mary Hanstine, 28 N. Broad St., Waynesboro, Pa., says: "My back pained so severely I couldn't sit still long. When I attempted to rise from bed mornings a dreadful catching pain darted through the small of my back. Steady pains stayed with me all through the day and I was so dizzy I could hardly see. My nerves became unstrung and my kidneys were in a weak condition. I had known of Doan's Kidney Pills and decided to try them. It didn't take Doan's long to do away with all signs of kidney complaint."

Rev. L. M. Gardner, aged 90 years and blind, delivered an able sermon before the York Springs M. E. congregation Sunday week. For many years he was pastor of large Methodist churches in Pittsburgh, Baltimore and Washington. He was born and spent his early life in York Springs and, when he retired from the active ministry, returned to his native town to spend the remainder of his life, residing with his son, L. M. Gardner, Jr. Mr. Gardner was graduated from Dickinson college in 1854. After an active ministry of a number of years, he retired at the age of 65 years. Five years ago his eyesight began to fail, but this handicap has not dimmed his enthusiasm or his keen mind. His subject Sunday week was "Recollections of an Old Methodist Minister." One of his first charges was at McConnellsburg where he received in cash the sum of $200 for the first year. The venerable minister related some of the hardships of the country parsons of those days who traveled on horse back through all kinds of weather and almost all hours of the night.

The Same Everywhere.—The editor of Palsa Akhbar, a native newspaper of Lahore, India, says, "I have used Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy many times among my children and servants, for colic and diarrhoea and always found it effective."

Two collisions occurred recently at the intersection of the state highways at York Springs, with no serious results.

EAT LESS AND TAKE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Take a glass of Salts before breakfast if your Back Hurts or Bladder bothers you.

The American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

INSANE TO BE MOVED FROM COUNTY TO STATE HOSPITALS

At the regular monthly meeting of the Directors of the Poor of Adams county, on Wednesday, announcement was made that inmates of the mental wards at the local county home would be removed to state hospitals and institutions on or before July 31. About 22 inmates will be affected by the order. The local directors have taken their appeal to Dr. J. M. Baldy, head of the Public Welfare bureau, Harrisburg, on several occasions for securing permission to allow them to keep the custody of the insane of this county. After Wednesday's meeting, it was announced by one of the directors that no legal steps will be taken to prevent the state's action.

Full military honors were accorded Private James G. Millage, whose body was interred in the National Cemetery, Gettysburg, Monday morning. Requiem mass was said over the remains by the Rev. Fr. Mark E. Stock, rector of St. Francis Xavier church. Private Millage, whose home was in Pittsburgh, was killed in action in France, July 26, 1918. He was a member of Co. K, 167th Inf. Private Millage's body arrived at Hoboken, N. J., recently, and was sent to Gettysburg. The parents of the dead soldier, Mr. and Mrs. Pasquale Millage, of Pittsburgh, requested that the body be interred in the National Cemetery there. Almost thirty men who died in France have been interred in the National Cemetery, but no more are expected to be returned from overseas.

George Hartman, assistant manager of the Gettysburg Department store, was elected secretary of the Gettysburg Chamber of Commerce to succeed the late George C. Fissel, on Friday. The salary of the new secretary was fixed at $25 a month. Roy P. Funkhouser was re-elected treasurer of the organization. Gettysburg will be advertised by 5000 twenty-page booklets containing pictures of and facts about the battlefield, the town as a desirable place to live and the county, featuring the fruit growing and agriculture interests.

Biliousness and Constipation.—"For years I was troubled with biliousness and constipation, which made life miserable for me. My appetite failed me. I lost my usual force and vitality. Pepsin preparations and cathartics only made matters worse. I do not know where I should have been today had I not tried Chamberlain's Tablets. The Tablets relieve the ill feeling at once, strengthen the digestive functions, helping the system to do its work naturally," writes Mrs. Rosa Potts, Birmingham, Ala.

Peter McCallion, Gettysburg, for some time employed in the tailor shop of John Brehm, has accepted a position with the Michigan Calculating machine company. York and Adams counties will be Mr. McCallion's territory.

GRANDMA USED SAGE TEA TO DARKEN HAIR

She mixed Sulphur with it to Restore Color, Gloss, Youthfulness.

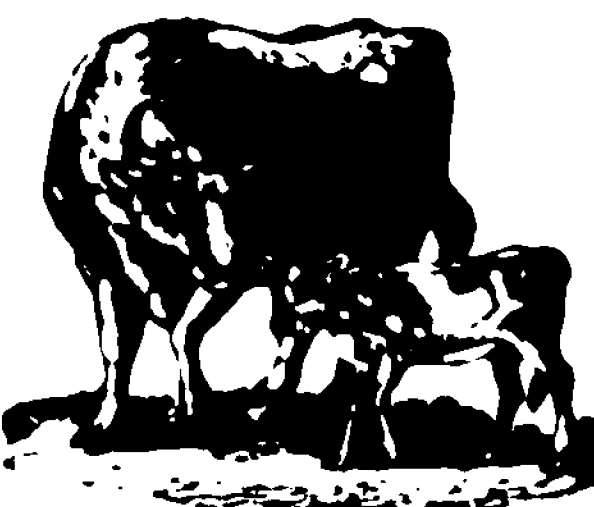

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.
While wispy, gray, faded hair is not painful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant. A delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

OSTEOPATHY CONFORMS TO NATURAL LAWS

There is no escape from the mandates of natural law. When structures of the body are not normally adjusted, the mechanism that Nature provides cannot work properly. It is only natural that lowered resistance should follow as a condition, and that sickness should be the inevitable result. When your body is sick—something is wrong with natural processes. The osteopathic physician proceeds toward restoring health by locating the structure that interferes with normal operation of the bodily mechanism and restores it by adjusting the correct relationship of part to part. Once this has been accomplished natural processes are restored and natural law brings health again. Osteopathy seeks to remove the fundamental causes of sickness by restoring normal adjustment.

One Dollar Saved Represents Ten Dollars Earned.—The average man does not save to exceed ten per cent. of his earnings. He must spend nine dollars in living expenses for every dollar saved. That being the case he can not be too careful about unnecessary expenses. Very often a few cents properly invested, like buying seeds for his garden, will save several dollars' outlay later on. It is the same in buying Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. It costs but a few cents, and a bottle of it in the house often saves a doctor's bill of several dollars.

The grounds surrounding the Warner Hospital in Gettysburg have recently been greatly beautified by the planting of many additional shrubs and greens, which are growing nicely. The Ladies Auxiliary recently had considerable planting done by Berry Hill Nursery Company, of Harrisburg, at an expenditure of $500.

Several school boards in Adams county are advertising for bids to convey pupils to various school buildings during the coming term. Those schools which had less than ten pupils during the past year will be closed.

Ground has been broken for several more new houses in Gettysburg and all men employed in the building trades have work promised ahead for many months.

Lester F. Etter, of Pen-Mar, Friday succumbed to Hodgkins disease, a rare glandular malady, from which he had been suffering for eight months. His wife survives.

A birthday party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ruppert, East Berlin, for Miss Anna Hull, in celebration of her 16th birthday anniversary.

The state motor vehicle revenue for the six months ending June 30 was $11,046,479.55 against $8,387,106.03 in the same period of 1921.

L. V. Potts' barber shop at York Springs will be closed every Monday until further notice.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a constitutional remedy, is taken internally and acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Medicine fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists, 75c. Breast Tea at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time during the day or before retiring.
It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores of the skin, relieving congestion.
Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking up a cold.Try it the next time you suffer from a cold or the grip. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore safe and harmless.RUB RHEUMATISM FROM

requires internal treatment. Rub soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil" right on the "tender spot," and by the time you say Jack Robinson—out comes the rheumatic pain. "St. Jacobs Oil" is a harmless rheumatism cure which never disappoints and doesn't burn the skin. It takes pain, soreness and stiffness from aching joints, muscles and bones; stops sciatica, lumbago, backache, neuralgia.Linger up! Get a 35 cent bottle of old-time, honest "St. Jacobs Oil" from any drug store, and in a moment you'll be free from pains, aches and stiffness. Don't suffer! Rub rheumatism away.FIERY, ITCHY ECZEMA—HEALED RIGHT UP BY APPLYING SULPHURAny breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Men-tho-Sulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.It seldom fails to relieve the torment and disfigurement. Sufferers from skin trouble should get a little jar of Mentho-Sulphur from any good

are HealthTHE Famous acrobats are proof of it.
It would be almost impossible to find a man and woman who so perfectly combine beauty, strength and agility as do the Aerial Rooneys.Let Eddie Rooney tell you how men keep strong and women beautiful."During the season of 1921 we were with the Barnum & Bailey Circus."In our act every nerve and muscle must be in condition. If a single finger went bad it would be 'farewell' for the Rooneys. The instant either of us feel the least bit nervous we have to get busy and get back into condition quickly."While we were showing through Northern New York, and almost before I realized it, my stomach was getting bad. I felt 'tired' and found out that I did have nerves. I was going to get a tonic that I had used before but always had to take liver pills with it. One of the show people told me that if I used Sanalt it would not be necessary to take a cathartic. I'll tell you, Sanalt is a wonder! My stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and blood were all starting to go bad—and they had a pretty good start. One bottle of Sanalt made me absolutely fit. Whenever we feel the least trouble we turn to Sanalt, the sensibi-lizer. It surely is just that—sensible!"New Oxford Flouring Mills

SHOTS FIRED IN
DISTILLERY RAID
Topping off the attempted raid on the Foust distillery at Glen Rock
early on Friday morning, an attempt was made by unknown persons that night to shoot George A. Strine, one of the guards at the distillery. The shot missed its mark however, and no damage was done. Thirty armed men and ten powerful motor trucks,
which swooped down a back road,
figured in the attempt to steal the bonded liquor supply at the distillery early Friday morning. The move is the boldest and most extensive made by bootleggers in this section of the state. In the battle which grew out of the attempt, 100 shots were exchanged between two guards at the place and the raiders. The whiskey
in bond could not be reached by the attacking party because of the steady
rain of lead fired by the small band
of defenders. Filled, the attackers withdrew.

In the case of the Com. vs. Harry
A. Roth, of New York, who was arrested recently on a warrant issued by Squire Sell, charged on oath of Chief Crabbs with attempted bribery,
the defendant was held by Squire Sell,
in a decision handed down July 7, for
the action of the August session of the Grand Jury. By reason of the failure of the defendant to appear, his recognizance, furnished by a surety company of New York, for the sum of $500 was forfeited. In the case in which he was arrested by Chief Crabbs
who charged him with false pretense,
the defendant was discharged and the case dismissed. The cases are the outgrowth of a $5,000 oil stock transaction which Roth had with John B.
Forry, of Hanover, on June 27th.
At a public meeting of the baseball
fans of Hanover Monday evening, all
the old officers and directors of the Hanover Blue Ridge club were re-elected to fill out their term. The directors and president of the club had handed in their resignations last week
but after a lengthy meeting the men were asked to reconsider their action
and stand for re-election which they did.

York county's $1,000,000 4 1/2 per cent. good roads bonds dated July 15, 1922, were sold Monday by the county commissioners and county controller to Kelley, Brock and Company, Philadelphia brokers, at a premium of $15-100, or on a 4.15 per cent. basis. The bonds are known as Series A, of the $2,500,000 authorization made by the electors of the county in 1919.

HERE AND THERE

Miss Louella Kennedy, of Heidlersburg, while returning home from the postoffice on Monday, slipped and fell, breaking both bones in her right arm. Dr. Stover, of Bendersville, was summoned to set the bones.

Adams county has 11,874 acres of oats estimated sown, or 99 per cent. of acreage sown last year.

Miss Rose Dermody, of Philadelphia, came to visit her sister, Mrs. Wm. Cassatt, McSherrystown, one day last week, making the trip by trolley, leaving Philadelphia in the morning at 7 o'clock and reaching Hanover at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Felix Ginter, Hanover, formerly of New Oxford, has rented the rooms on Baltimore street, Hanover, formerly occupied by Mumma and Thomas as an ice cream parlor and will open a restaurant this week. Mr. Ginter will continue to deliver Purity milk.

Contractor O. H. Hostetter has signed a contract to erect the new St. Matthew's Lutheran church in Hanover in 350 working days at a cost of $157,000. Rev. L. G. Stauffer, of York, formerly of New Chester, will conduct communion services in St. John's Lutheran church, Mt. Wolf, on Sunday morning.

A wedding dinner was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith, at Conewago, for Mr. and Mrs. Paul Smith who were married recently.

Prof. Fred Baker, Abbottstown, left for Muhlenberg college, Allentown, where he will attend the summer session.

Mrs. Cecelia Gentzler celebrated her 96th birthday anniversary, July 5th, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles F. Young, York. She is the mother of 15 children, 12 of whom are living. She has 60 grandchildren, 109 great-grandchildren and 7 great-great-grandchildren living. The woman is very active.

Prof. Colt R. Hoechst, of Pittsburgh, who recently visited his mother at East Berlin, has joined his family who have been spending sometime in North Carolina.

At the concert given on Friday evening on the steps of St. James' Lutheran church, Gettysburg, before 1000 persons, an offering amounting to $80 was taken up for the Loysville Orphans' Home band.

Tramping on a torpedo on the Fourth, a horse attached to a milk wagon of John Kinder, of Littlestown, ran away, upsetting the wagon, milk and cans into the street. The wagon was damaged considerably. The absence of Mr. Kindig from the wagon saved him from injury.

Howard Grove, White Hall, his purchased a new Ford touring car.

Stewartstown will have no Community Chautauqua in 1923, the guarantors having had to make up a deficiency, and the dates for holding the Chautauqua not having been given as promised.

To keep abreast of the development in transportation, the Postoffice Department has decided upon a new design for the special delivery stamp, showing the messenger mounted on a motorcycle instead of the old-fashioned bicycle.

W. O. Angel, Hanover, was arrested on Friday by Constable Sterner for appearing on the streets of McSherrystown in an intoxicated condition. He was confined in the lockup until Friday evening when he was released upon payment of the fine imposed.

The treasury of the Gettysburg A. L. post was enriched to the extent of $204 by the Lew DuFour carnival which closed a two-weeks' engagement there Saturday night. The Legion's share was 15 per cent. Their total receipts were $862.

Rev. A. J. Martin, York Springs, purchased a Chevrolet car. Harry Martin returned home Tuesday with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Martin, after a two months' visit with McConnellsbury relatives.

By the will of the late Joseph L. Hemler, of McSherrystown, Mrs. Hemler and F. V. Topper are named as the executors. Although it was the wish of Mr. Hemler that the will should not be read in public, and in view of the fact that Mr. Hemler has no children, though being married twice, it has been made known that a bequest of $400 has been made to St. Mary's church, McSherrystown. The remainder of his estate will go to his wife.

H. B. Bender & Son, funeral directors, of Gettysburg, have been named as county representatives for Fleeman's National Identification Bureau, a nation wide organization, for the purpose of obtaining marks of identification on all missing people throughout the United States and placing them on file and receiving from their representatives all marks of identification or unidentified bodies found in their territory, checking all this information through one bureau for the entire country.

Shooting on Hanover streets on the night of July 4th, cost Edward Reese, George Becker, John Caldwell and Curvin Greenholtz each $250 fine. Arrests of Reese, Becker and Caldwell followed complaints of Mrs. Philip Wright, whose son, Philip, Jr., aged 8, has been ill for seven weeks with brain fever. It is said that the trio refused to leave the neighborhood after they had been asked to go and continued to fire revolvers, notwithstanding that the little Wright boy was nearly crazed with pain caused by the shooting. Each of the men admitted the charge.

A plea of not guilty to the charge of driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, was entered by John E. Collins, of near Littlestown, at the preliminary hearing held before Justice Mayers, of Littlestown, who, on Friday, made a return of the proceedings to J. R. Hartman, clerk of the county courts. Collins was arrested July 3 on oath of F. O. Dottera, borough policeman of Littlestown, charged with driving his motor car in that place while under the influence of liquor. Justice Mayers discharged him under $300 to appear for trial at the regular term of the Quarter Sessions of the local courts, the fourth Monday in August.

The venerable Uriah Baughman, of Hanover celebrated his 97th birthday anniversary on Friday. Mr. Baughman formerly resided at Berlin Junction. He lives with his daughter, Mrs. Geo. E. Adams and is in good health. He takes walks alone every day. When Jacob Forney was planning the first branch railroad to Hanover, Mr. Baughman recalls some citizens asked: "What does Hanover want with a railroad? The people will only use it twice a year." He remembers back a little over 80 years. Mr. Baughman has four children living. His brother, David, died at the age of 91 years; his father, John Baughman, at the age of 91 years; his sister, Lydia, at 90; and his brother, Jacob, at 83 years.

While driving horses into the barn from pasture at noon Saturday, on a farm near Greenmount, Charles J. Stull, 13-year-old son of Simon Stull, Greenmount, was kicked on the head by one of the animals and found later in an unconscious condition. The lad was rushed to the Warner Hospital in Gettysburg, where it was found that he had a deep gash revealing the skull, which is also thought to have been fractured. The boy has been in a critical condition. It is not known just how the accident happened, as no one was about the barn at the time, and it was not until later that his unconscious body was found. Following an operation at the Warner hospital, Sunday, when a portion of his fractured skull was removed, the condition of the lad was reported improved.

A cow and calf being attacked by dogs one day last week near the home of Jacob Starnier, in Huntington township, the cow in turn attacked Mrs. Starnier, throwing her to the ground, and was with difficulty driven off. Her injuries were severe and it was only after a lapse of several days that her recovery was considered possible. For several days she lay unable to move her limbs, being in a manner paralyzed.

"We are working 24 hours a day, 6 days a week," declared A. R. Jones, resident manager of the J. H. and C. K. Eagle silk throwing plant, in speaking of improved business conditions in that industry in Gettysburg. The Sure Foot Heel & Rubber Co., Gettysburg, also report business above normal.

Gettysburg furniture factories are rushed with work as the result of large orders received recently. The factories have been working on a full time schedule for some months and continued large sales promise well for the future.

Miss Ethel Kump, of Germany township, left recently for Towson Normal School where she will take a six weeks' course.

Wilson Gemmill, aged 19, son of Mrs. Ida Gemmill, of Stewartstown, died in the York hospital Friday night of a fracture of the skull, as the result of a collision between automobiles at Hametown, on the Susquehanna Trail, in which five other persons were also injured. One of two cars racing struck Gemmill's Ford and turned it across the road, when it was struck by a Gardner car driven by Claude E. Myers who was following the racers.

Misses Mary and Lillian Rowe, Gettysburg, are attending the summer session at Columbia Univ., New York.

Gettysburg missed an opportunity to win the men of the Marine Corps, who staged their annual summer maneuvers there last week, according to a written statement to the "Times" made in behalf of the Marines by one of their number before the troops left Gettysburg Thursday on their return trip to Quantico, Va. Charges of snobbishness, overcharging and petty trickery were made by the Marine spokesman, who declares the sea soldiers have no desire to return to Gettysburg.

If your business is not worth advertising then advertise it for sale.

Roy Renner returned to his home in Littlestown, after spending several months at Pocono Pines.

The Loysville Orphans' Home Band gave a concert in Fairfield on Sunday evening.

In St. John's Reformed church, Harrisburg, Sunday, there was an adult Bible Class Rally celebrating the fact that the H. W. Keitel Bible Class has reached an enrollment of 100 members. The class has been in existence but seven months, and organized less than four months ago. Mr. Keitel was a former resident of Littlestown. E. B. Lau, of East Berlin, has sold a steam traction engine to Andrew Altland, of Paradise township. Lightning one day recently struck a locust tree near the buildings on the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Crouse, near Blacks, and followed a wire, fence and then to the ground, killing two large fat hogs and stunning a third.

Application will be made to the Governor by Clayton S. Starnier, Thomas Dull, Chas. M. Conover, J. Wilbert Cook, E. N. Hartman, and others on July 18, for the charter of an intended corporation to be called North Adams Cooperative Association. The first sweet corn sold at 30c doz. ears at the Gettysburg curb market last week.

A stranger in York Springs Friday awoke inquiring for "Peters Tin Shop," turned out to be Wm. Heindel, a blacksmith who during '75 and '76 followed his trade in York Springs, as an employee of the then Krall Manufacturing Co. He is now a native of New York.

Some dissatisfaction is expressed in Abbottstown about the services given by the electric light company as too frequently there is no light when most needed on the street, in the evening, and it is hoped that better service and quicker repairs will be given in the future.

John McGinness and the Misses Lydia Rebert and Edna Basehoar, of Littlestown, are pursuing courses at Columbia Univ., New York.

Robt. Caldwell, Gettysburg, state inspector for the bureau of agriculture, last Monday arrested seven dog owners in Huntington and Tyrone townships, because their animals were running loose without the necessary county licenses. Each man paid his fine and costs, amounting to about $9, after which they applied for the dog licenses at the court house at J. R. burg.

A Canton, Ohio, newspaper recently presented the picture of Mrs. Anna Guilliona, a 79-year-old sister of Mrs. Howard Mershey, of York Springs, together with a short biography of her life. During the battle of Gettysburg, Mrs. Guilliona, who was then single, was living with the family of a Seminary professor in Gettysburg by the name of Schaeffer. During the battle the home of the professor was turned into a hospital and the lady helped care for the wounded. When the battle was over she was taken ill with black fever and was removed to her home near Heidlersburg, and it was not for a time she wouldn't recover. Soon after she removed to Canton, there meeting her husband, residing in that city ever since.

Union township teachers were elected as follows for the 1922-23 term with the exception of Pine Grove, which is vacant: Center, William Donaldson; Chestnut Hill, David Sheely; Valley Grove, Amos Collins; Peltz's, Miss Irene Todd; Pleasant Hill, Mrs. Ruth Humbert; Scheaver's, Miss Miriam Sell.

Burgess Pfaltzgraff, McSherrystown, reported having fined Roy E. Smith $1 for running his motorcycle with the cut-out open.

Friday William Raffensperger, near Arendtsville, hauled in his grain. During the night the barn collapsed from the weight of the grain and now he has a tedious job on hand to get his wheat from under the wreckage of the barn.

The Lew DuFour Carnival, which appeared in Gettysburg for two weeks under the auspices of the A. L. Post, is now showing in York and was visited Tuesday by District Attorney Van Baman, who closed up all games of chance.

Thursday morning the 5000 Marines left Camp Harding, Gettysburg, on their return to the barracks at Quantico, Va. Thursday night they camped at Thurmont and Friday and Saturday were spent at Frederick, where on Saturday they were reviewed by Governor Ritchie. On Tuesday the force encamped in Washington. From there the men were taken on barges to Quantico, while the motorized equipment went by road. In spite of the heavy rains which marked the Gettysburg camp and the condition of the ground during the closing days the health of the camp throughout was excellent. General Butler, commandant, was highly pleased with all arrangements and with the success of the maneuvers. It has been indicated that in 1923 the marines will go to Manassas. Last year they were at the Wilderness.

Basli Little died at his home near Bonneauville, at 10:20 p. m., Thursday, from a complication of diseases, aged 36 years, 10 months and 5 days. The deceased was a son of the late Augustus and Matilda Little. He is survived by a widow, who before her marriage was Miss Ada Cummings; his mother and the following brothers and sisters: Rev. Fr. Joseph Little, rector of St. Jerome church, Baltimore; Mrs. Wm. Klunk, Midway; Andrew and Dennis Little, of Bonneauville; Mrs. Theo. Schatzle, of Baltimore; Miss Elizabeth Little, at home, and Miss Corinne M. Little, at Midway. He was a member of Hanover Lodge Knights of Columbus. The funeral was held Monday with a requiem mass in St. Joseph's church Bonneauville, his brother, Fr. Joseph Little, of St. Joseph's Catholic church, Baltimore, celebrant. Interment was made in St. Joseph's cemetery, Bonneauville. The deceased lived at Hanover for six years before moving to his home, near Bonneauville about a year ago.

The following were the pallbearers: Frank Todd, Chas. Myers, Casper Myers, Edw. Weaver, M. C. Topper and Guy Sanders.

Mrs. Rebecca J. Irving, widow of the late Henry L. Irving, died at her home in Hanover Saturday morning following an illness from chronic Bright's disease, aged 59 years. The deceased was a daughter of the late Peter and Mary (Leonard) Groft. She was the widow of Harry L. Irving, who died 15 months ago. She leaves three children, Mrs. J. Irvin Frey, James H. Irving, and John Irving, of Hanover. Two sisters also survive, Mrs. Samuel Breighner, of Baltimore, and Mrs. Frank P. Krichen, of McSherrystown, and two brothers, Charles Groft and Tyburtus Groft, of McSherrystown.

Winfield S. Flickinger, of Hanover, died at his home Saturday night from infirmities. Flickinger had been an invalid for the past 20 years, following a stroke of paralysis. He was aged 74 years and 20 days. Besides his wife he is survived by the following children: John D. Hanover; Edward, at home, and Mrs. John Emlet, Hanover. Miss Kate Flickinger, a sister, also survives.

Jacob F. Spangler, a life long resident of Jackson township, died at his late home in Thomasville, Saturday, following a brief illness from paralysis, aged 72 years. He is survived by his wife and 6 sons.

Mrs. Susan A. Hockey, 76, wife of Frank Hockey, died in the Warner Hospital, Gettysburg, Saturday evening, after being in that institution since May 28. She was afflicted with heart disease and kidney trouble. Mrs. Hockey was born near Taneytown and for 15 years lived near Knoxlyn Mills, this county. Two years ago she moved to McSherrystown. She is survived by her husband and one son, Joseph Hockey, of Harrisburg. Funeral services were held on Monday in Pfoutz's cemetery, near Herper's Mill.

Joseph H. Carver died on Monday morning at the home of his sister, Mrs. Helena Ertter, Gettysburg, from a complication of diseases. Mr. Carver celebrated his 62nd birthday July 3. Altho an invalid for four years, Mr. Carver was not taken seriously ill until Sunday evening. He was born and lived his entire life in Gettysburg and was one of the best known guides on the battlefield. Mr. Carver leaves two sisters.

Mrs. Andrew R. Potts died Saturday, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Cooper, Cedarhurst, Long Island. She made her home in Gettysburg for some years.

Jas. A. Shearer, 48, of Harrisburg, died Saturday in the Harrisburg hospital, where he had been admitted just 20 days prior for treatment. Saturday morning, his wife awakened and found him lying on the floor beside the bed, apparently seriously ill. Besides his widow, Mr. Shearer is survived by his parents, and one sister, Mrs. H. Milton Roth, of Gettysburg.

Mrs. Louise Bourquin, who made her home with her sister, Mrs. Samuel V. Fleming, Hanover, died Monday morning from neuralgia of the heart, after an illness of about two weeks. Her age was 63 years. Surviving her are a number of brothers and sisters, including George and Charles Maurath and Mrs. Clifton Gitt, Hanover; Mrs. John Price, Pennsylvania.

John M. Leathery, cobbler and shoemaker, died at his home at Dillsburg on Friday after a long sickness, aged 72 years. Mr. Leathery was born in Dover, and lived for a number of years in Washington township, where he was tax collector. He is survived by his wife and four children, including Daniel, of Bermudian.

Mrs. Anna W. Brough, wife of William B. Brough, died at her home in Menallin township, Wednesday morning after a lingering illness from Bright's disease, aged 45 years and 1 day. Besides her husband, deceased leaves the following children: John E. Brough, Glen W. Brough, Wendell W. Brough, Wilmer E. Brough, Margie E. Brough, and Ruth E. Brough, all at home. Also the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. W. C. Weaver, Bendersville; Ira A. Weigle, Harrisburg; Mrs. D. M. Hoffman, Biglerville; Mrs. C. S. Sterner, Aspers, and J. Willis Weigle, Gardners. Mrs. Brough is also survived by her mother, Mrs. Jno. A. Weigle.

BONNEAUVILLE ITEMS

Wm. Golden and daughter, Grace, and brother, Joseph, of Lester, have been spending their vacation at the home of their brother, E. L. Golden and family, Bonneauville.

Mrs. John Sharp and son, of Baltimore, spent several days as guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Gebhart, Bonneauville.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Groft and daughters, of New Haven, Conn., have been spending sometime at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Strausbaugh, Bonneauville.

Mr. Joe Eddinger, of York, has been spending sometime at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Fleagle, of near Bonneauville.

Mr. and Mrs. John Quinn and children, of Girardville, spent several days as guests of the former's sister, Mrs. Crist Gebhart, Bonneauville.

George Staub of Baltimore, returned home after spending sometime at the home of his parents, Mr. and M. J. J. Stieub, Bonneauville.

To witness a battle royal between a 5-ft. water snake and an 11-in. bass was the experience of H. Baughman, proprietor of Baughman's drug store, Hanover, on Tuesday while he was fishing at Brown's dam along the Conewago creek. Mr. Baughman despatched the snake with a club. The reptile's mouth was clinched over the nose of the fish which was exhausted but still wriggling as the Hanoverian tossed it into the bank. The struggle between the two inhabitants of the creek lasted about 15 minutes.

Officials of the Dicks' Dam Welfare Association recently formed by the campers along the Big Conewago creek, will meet two of the Hamilton township supervisors, Jacob K. Hoke and George Mummert, at the Dicks, Saturday, to discuss road improvement from the Carlisle pike to the camps.

While walking about the second floor at her home in Gettysburg, Tuesday morning, Miss Ella Leas, suddenly became confused in the darkness and plunged down the stairs. In her fall she suffered a fracture of her right arm and the left was sprained.

Postmaster and Mrs. John E. A. thony, East Berlin, attended the convention of the third and fourth class postmasters at Philadelphia last week. During his absence the E. office was in charge of the clerk, M. Naomi Stambaugh.

Prof. J. Allen Dickson has been appointed a member of the Gettysburg Board of Health to fill the vacancy by the death of Charles Speese, several months ago.

Prof. D. J. Brown, wife and Sloan, of Lincoln, Neb., are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Brown, East Berlin.

J. Harry McIlhenny, secretary of the Kansas School Book Commission, is spending ten days with his brother, William B. McIlhenny, at Huntington.

Miss Evelyn Liversperger, of East Grove, spent the weekend at Atlantic City.

Rev. and Mrs. Paul Gladfelter and daughter, Abbottstown, were recent visitors at Lancaster.

Charles Metzger, a native and a number of years a resident of Abbottstown, now of Delaware City, Del., spent Saturday and Sunday there with relatives and friends.

The Rev. Robert D. Clare, Baltimore, visited Abbottstown friends on Sunday.

W. R. Emmert and family, of Island, visited his father, G. W. Emmert, York Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. Israel Hale, Mr. Maurice Strausbaugh and Kenneth, Hanover, were recent guests of Levi Hale and family, Abbottstown.

Prof. and Mrs. C. Laurin Madsen, who spent the past month with former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. March, at Abbottstown, returned their home in Farmingdale, Long Island, Friday.

Miss Elsie Hale, Abbottstown, spent the weekend with friends in Spring Grove.

Mrs. Ida Gregg, of Alexandria, who spent the past month with former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. March, at Abbottstown, returned their home in Farmingdale, Long Island, Friday.

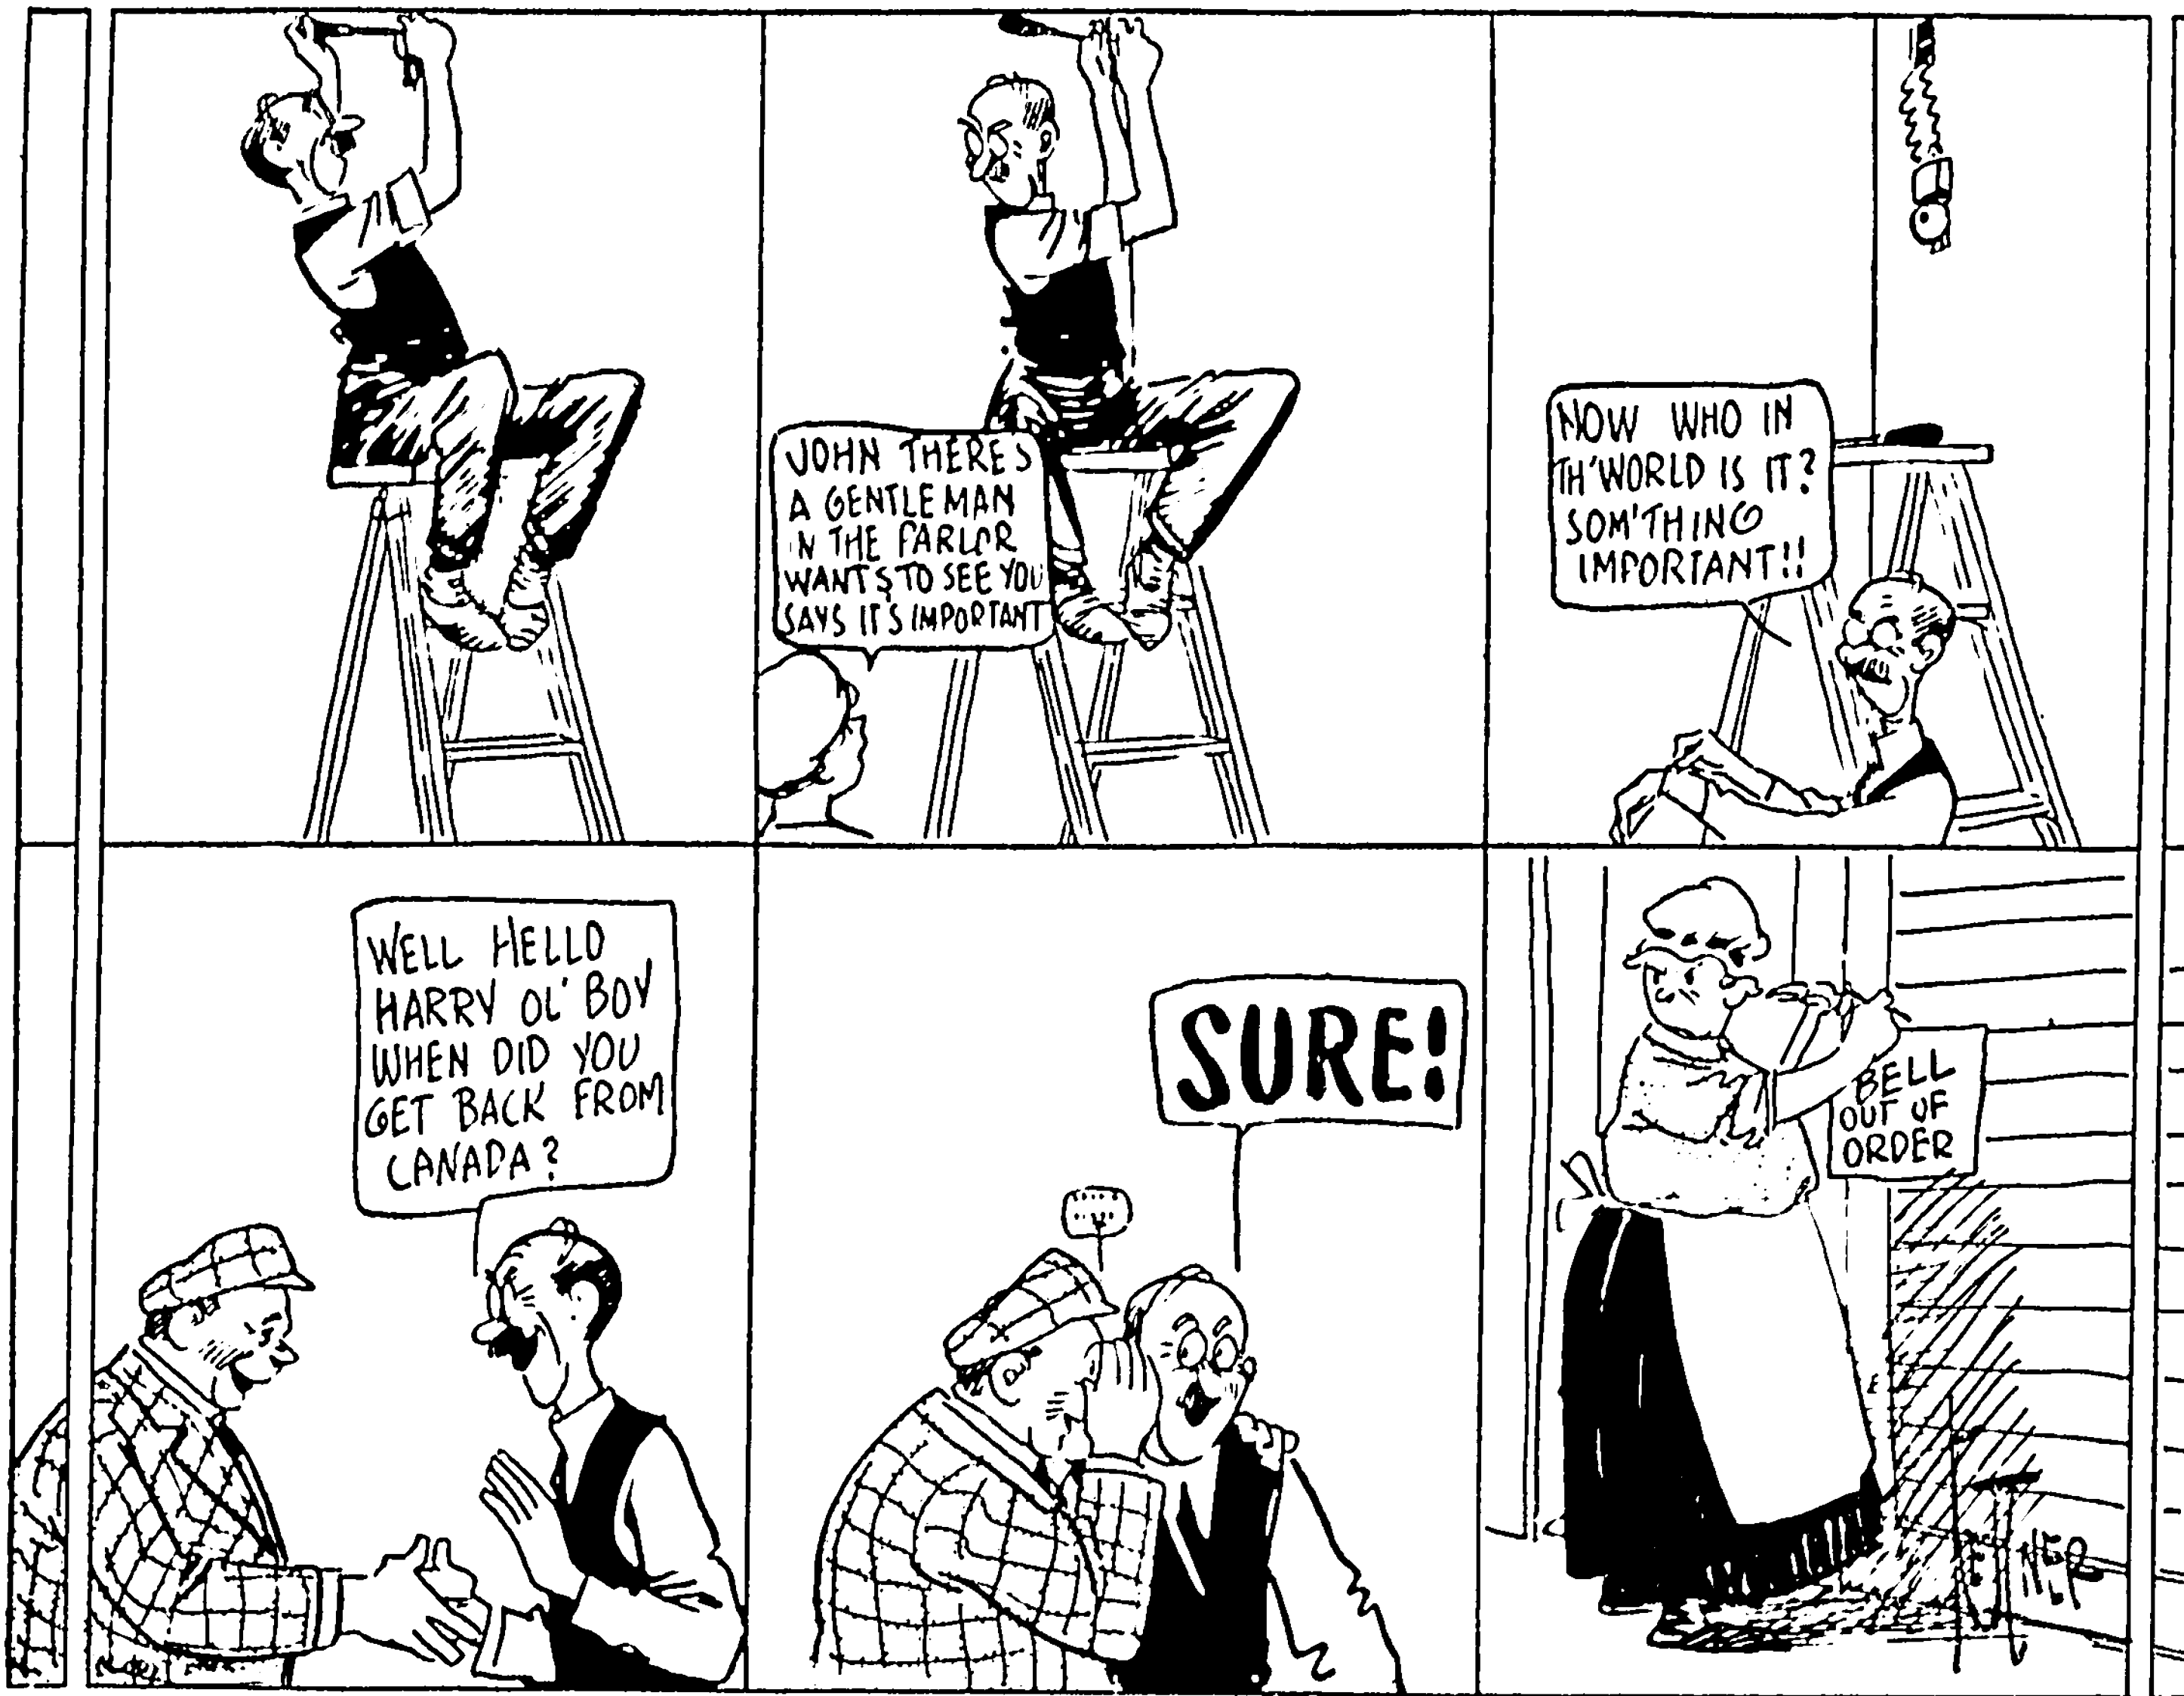

Miss Elsie Hale, Abbottstown, spent the weekend with friends in Spring Grove.

Mrs. Ida Gregg, of Alexandria, who spent the past month with former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. March, at Abbottstown, returned their home in Farmingdale, Long Island, Friday.

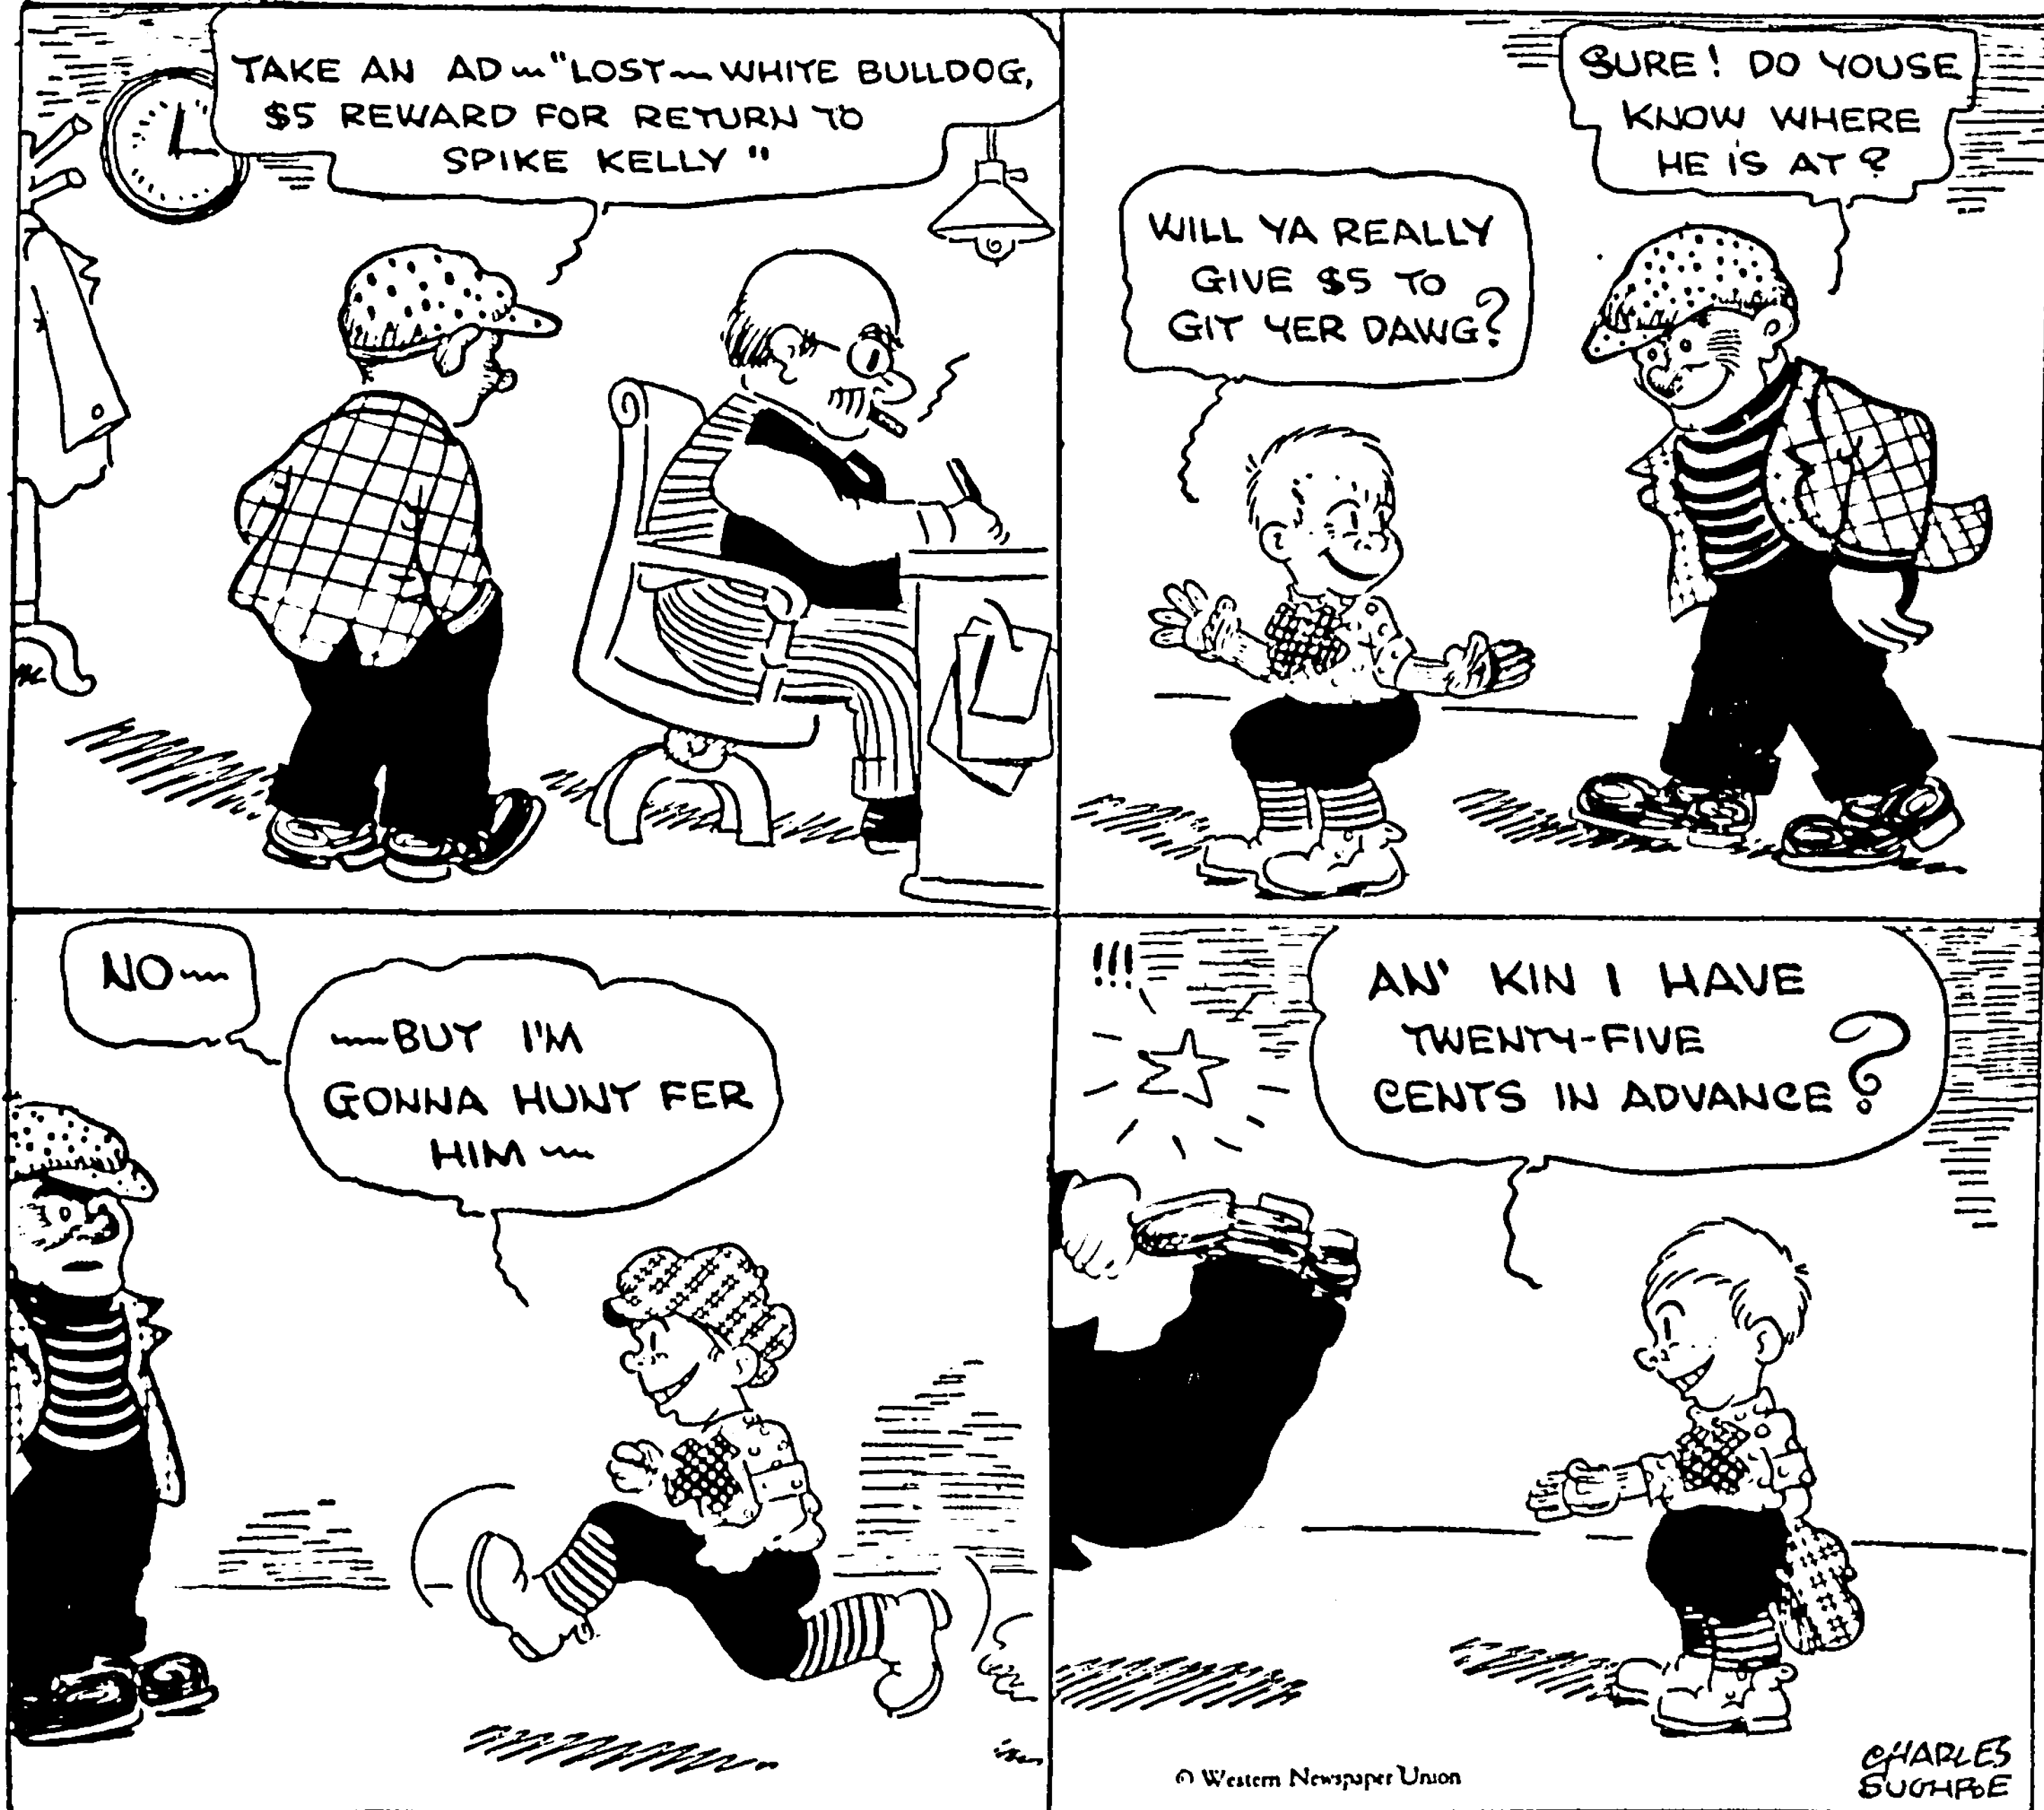

Mrs. Leah Valentine Chronister, widow of the late Isaac A. Chronister, of York Springs, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Thomas Bell, Holly Springs, Tuesday morning from a complication of diseases, aged 75 years. About fifteen years ago, Mrs. Chronister moved to the home of her daughter at Mount Holly Springs, where she died. She leaves the following children: Charles G. Chronister, East Berlin; William P. Chronister, York Springs; George L. Chronister, Mount Holly Springs; Mrs. M. L. Chronister, Gardners, R. D.; and Mrs. Thomas Bell, Mount Holly Springs; also the following brothers and sisters: John George, Philip and Tettrach Chronister, all of this county, and Mrs. Chronister, of East Berlin.

The SANDMAN STORY

YELLOW WARBLER

THERE were many children who lived in the same badly kept tenement house with Tim, but Tim seemed to be the only one who did not like the crowded doorsteps and noisy crowds of children.

He did not delight in stoning poor strays either or teasing children younger than himself as he was often teased by the older boys.

The schoolroom was Tim's delight. For Miss Carter, his teacher, told the children of cool, green fields, birds and flowers and apples enough on the ground for everyone to have all they wanted.

One afternoon Tim stayed later than the other children and walked timidly

up to Miss Carter's desk. "Please, Miss Carter, how far is it to the apple orchard you told us about today?" he asked.

"It is pretty far to that particular one," was the reply, as she looked into the eager little face beside her. "I used to live there, Tim, and every year after school closes I go back, and see all my animal friends as well as the orchard."

As Miss Carter looked at Tim a sudden thought came to her. "How would you like to go home with me this summer and see my friends and pick up the apples I have told you about?"

How Tim lived through the next few weeks he could never have told, but the day did come when he left the noisy city far behind and, with Miss Carter, rode on the train to the country he could hardly believe was real. The first night in the sweet white bed Tim slept but little for fear it was all a dream, but it wasn't and there were weeks of happiness ahead.

Tim's cheeks grew round and rosy, his eyes bright and such walks and talks as he had with Miss Carter and he met all of her animal friends, but best of all was a pretty yellow warbler that built a nest in the fork of the apple tree.

Tim watched this yellow fellow flying back and forth into the tree and one day he asked: "Miss Carter, what does that bird carry in his mouth and what does he do with it?"

"If you will promise never to touch bird nests, Tim, or take their eggs, I will show you something very pretty," said Miss Carter.

And when the yellow warbler had flown away again, Miss Carter and Tim placed a ladder by the tree and carefully climbed up.

Tim's eyes were wide with wonder for he had no idea what he was to see and when Miss Carter whispered "Look!" and showed him a nest with four little birds in it, their mouths wide open for food, he was not able to even ask a question.

When they were on the ground again Miss Carter told him how Mrs. Warbler made the nest from bits of straw and horsehair, with which it was lined, and this was brought to her by her good husband, Mr. Warbler.

"And didn't you help them at all?" asked Tim, for he could not believe that anything so wonderful could have been made by anything but hands.

And then Miss Carter told Tim how wicked it was for anyone to take a nest or the eggs and harm the baby birds when the little mother and father birds had worked so hard to make their home and loved their children just as little boys and girls were loved by their parents.

When it was time to return to the city Tim was made happy by being told that the next summer he could go to the farm when school was over and again meet the Yellow Warbler and all the other friends he had made while there.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

FACTS about Your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel

MILLICENT

THE affected young miss who changes her name from Mildred to Millicent in the fond belief that the two are interchangeable, is really rechristening herself. The two names are utterly dissimilar.

Millicent, which is translated to mean work, strength, comes from that remarkable word "amal," meaning work, which appears in some similar form in all languages. We have our word "moll" from it. Many feminine names have been evolved from amal, the first probably being Amalaswinth, the unfortunate queen of Lombardy, whom the Romans could not protect from the treachery of her favorites. Historians call her Amalasontha, but in Burgundy she became Melisendra, Melicerte, and Melusine.

Spanish balladlore reveals a Melisendra as the wife of Don Gayferos, who was taken captive by the Moors and we hear of her through Don Quixote. Melusine was the nymph, wife of Lord de Loezignan, who, according to old legend, retired from public view every Saturday and turned into a serpent.

Princess Melisende carried the crown of Jerusalem to the House of Anjou and through the Provencal connection of the English court, Lady Meliscent Stafford, who lived during the reign of Henry II, established the name in England. It soon came to be spelt Mellicent and finally Millicent, prevailing as such today.

The simplest of all gems, the turquoise, is Millicent's talismanic stone. It is said to protect its wearer from all dangers, whether she walks or rides—or flies, the present day legend must add. It is an augury of good fortune if she sees the new moon reflected in the stone. Saturday is her lucky day and 1 her lucky number and holly is her flower.

The Friendly Path

By Walter L. Robinson

YOUR OWN DOORSTEP

SWEEP your own doorstep! It always is easier to find fault with others than with oneself. And it is just as true that when one goes around looking for trouble, he's likely to miss more serious difficulties of his own making.

Neglect is never excusable. If one is fair to his fellows, as well as himself, he will always have his own house in order before he starts out to make others clean house. If one wishes to find fault with the treatment accorded him by his fellows, he should survey his own record of actions toward his fellowmen.

Many persons are constantly making their own lives miserable and adding to the sorrow of the world by complaining that "the world is going to the bow-wow," and contending that nothing short of another deluge will bring sinfulness to an end. They overlook entirely all the many good things and good deeds which are constantly being brought about by self-sacrificing individuals. Because people spend so much time discussing the sordid side of life, they come to think little of the better side.

With all the disappointing evidences of lawlessness and disregard for moral laws and modesty, it is still a fact that the vast majority are clean-minded, hard-working, law-abiding, God-fearing men and women. If they were not, there would be nothing new in the wicked pathways about which we hear so much. If the majority were following the wrong trail the story of sin and misery and missteps would attract but passing attention. The exception, as usual, proves the rule.

If all those who are worried about the "tendencies" of the age would keep their own course straight and would try to encourage others by their cheerful examples, there would be less sin in the world. For there are few who intentionally take the wrong path.

One always will make his own life happier and the world more cheerful if he keeps his thoughts and words focussed on the better side.

PARENTS FORGET

THERE is a rule of good form that tells us that we should never reprove a servant or other employee in the presence of outsiders. A waitress perhaps breaks a dish at dinner and the confused hostess exclaims hastily that she should not be so awkward or that she has been very careless. Now, the perfectly well-bred hostess does not do this. She does her best at the time to draw her guests' attention from the mishap and, if she feels that any reproof is necessary, she waits until she is alone with the servant.

Now, if we are as considerate as this to servants, ought we not to be as considerate to our children? Yet, truly, I know plenty of persons who would not think of reproving servants in my presence, especially nowadays, when servants are so independent and hard to get, who would not think it anything amiss to scold their children in my presence.

Sometimes the scolding is delivered in a half-teasing, jesting manner. "John, will you be careful?" exclaims the mother to her ten-year-old son, when he is trying to bring her some article that she has sent for. "You are the most awkward creature in the world. Your feet are so big it's no wonder you trip over them." And then, to her guest: "Just imagine, John wears shoes that are larger than mine already. I suppose he is going to have enormous feet like his father."

It may be that John is sensitive. He was doubtless trying to do the errand gracefully and carefully, and it hurts him to be reproved for his failure to do so. Moreover, he feels sensitive about those big feet. He knows that the only reason his parents tease him about them is because he cannot come back at them and make teasing remarks about their infirmities.

Now, really, does it seem fair? If you want to reprove John and humble him—perhaps you are justified, but you ought at least to be as considerate to him as you would be to a servant—and do it when there is no third person present.

THE BIG MUSKEG

WHEN NATURE FROWNS.

Nature is not a genial old dame, nature writers and poets to the contrary notwithstanding. Go at her with a club and she will give freely. But she always watches for a chance to get even. Bog of her and she is cruel as the grave. She pardons no mistakes, and always she resents man's intrusion into her wild places.

Muskeg is North American Indian for a marsh, swamp, tussocky bog. It's generally a bad place for travel. This Big Muskeg was crossed here and there by trails, but was never stable, contained a river of ooze and had unsounded depths. Nature had apparently stuck it right there to stop the Mississippian Extension from going farther.

So around the Big Muskeg revolves a thrilling story of Canadian railroad building—a fight against the hostile forces of nature. Extremely interesting are the side lights on the life of the North. Best of all there's a fascinating story of the loves and passions of the strong men and women who are conquering the wilderness.

Victor Rousseau knows life from experience. He has been a student in England, a fighter in South Africa, a newspaper man in the United States. He is the author of many novels and his public is large.

CHAPTER I.

A Bolt From the Blue.

Eighteen below; fair weather for December in New Manitoba, where the forest, though it chills the soil till midsummer, yet shuts out the razor-edge of the winds that make the prairies, farther south, an icy inferno.

Here the bush, which had seemed to stretch out limply, thinned into bedraggled patches among the up-cropping rocks. A little farther and it began once more; the break was like a great, curving arm thrust into the heart of it, as if some giant fingers had plucked up the trees in handfuls and scooped the foundation from the frozen soil, and then had been withdrawn, leaving the imprints of the great finger-tips.

These finger-tips were huge sink-holes, sometimes filled with water, so that they formed clear lakes; more often sodden sponges of decayed vegetable matter, oozy, treacherous and unstable. The finger-lines were the circular ridges marking the subsidence of the mud. The thumb was Big Muskeg, which the two men who stood on the top of the humpbacked ridge could see extended beneath them.

Big Muskeg, at this point less than half a mile across, was everywhere of unsounded depth. It curved and wound, a river of ooze, now broadening into chains of lakes, now narrowing into gullies; here and there crossed by trails, but never stable, nowhere offering firm foundation for the permanent way of the Mississippian railroad.

The Mississippian was a branch line, feeding the new road that was pushing northward toward the ports-to-be on Hudson bay. It linked with it at Clayton, whence it was being extended eastward into a virgin wilderness. Even in the days when half a dozen companies were pegging out ways for lines that were to divert the wheat north, Joe Bostock's line had been the joke of legislatures and financiers. Those other lines that were being built into Clayton passed through the wheat-lands; Joe's line ran east out of Clayton into a wilderness. Joe Bostock had secured his capital, but he had no competitors.

And slowly Mississippian, with its small shareholders and limited means, had gone ahead. The first location parties had cleared a road to Big Muskeg. The rails had been laid half-way. But that was all, save for the partly constructed tracks and buildings for the workmen there, and the sheds for the construction material that had not yet been freighted in.

Joe, standing with legs straddling the top of the ridge, turned to Wilton Carruthers, the chief engineer of the company, with eyebrows arched and humorous inquiry on his weather-beaten old face. There was no need for speech at that moment, because the mind of each man dwelt on the identical problem.

The two men had come east by dog-sleigh, accompanied by two half-breeds, Jean Passepartout and Papillon, the one in charge of the dogs, the other carrying the transit-compass. They had camped seven miles back on the preceding evening, and had set out at daybreak to survey the swamp-lands from the ridge. For the problem which had suddenly risen up to confront them clamored for solution before construction could be carried forward, and on its solution depended the future of the Mississippian.

With the physical eye neither Joe nor Carruthers could hope to accomplish anything. Wilton was seeking inspiration, though he did not know it. Theoretically he was endeavoring to discern some place where a foundation might be coaxed above the unstable, quaking surface with trestling and crib-work, a crossing that combined the least possible deviation of route with no more than four-fifths of one per cent of grade and four degrees of curve.

Actually and unconsciously he was seeking to interpret the natural convulsion which had, in time immeasurably remote, cloven the ridge of the land and set the swamp seeping into the fissure.

If he could read the meaning of that convulsion, understand the mind and mood of the great Architect, he could see, as if clairvoyantly, just where the Muskeg lay thinnest on the roots of the hills, where ballast would appear the soonest above the sucking swamp. But he could read nothing.

Joe Bostock wrinkled his eyes against the sunlight.

"That's what I was thinking, Wilton," he said. "But it's got to be done. Somebody'll build it some day if the Mississippian doesn't."

That was the nearest speech to despair that Joe, invincible, exuberant optimist that he was, had ever made. Weeks, months of resurvey must ensue, with work halted, and the Mississippian's precarious capital diminishing to vanishing point, while the story of the great blunder percolated through the lobbies of the provincial legislature, filled with bland, jeering, ill-conditioned men to whom one day's tramp such as their laborers performed would mean apoplexy.

Their faces haunted Wilton. He remembered half a dozen whom he had approached when the Mississippian scheme was first bruited abroad. There was, in particular, Tom Bowyer, of the New Northern line, his many interests entrenched behind the bulwarks of political influence. Joe Bostock had suggested an amalgamation in the belief that Tom Bowyer could wreck the bill in the legislature. But Tom had laughed in Joe's face, and had not even opposed the measure.

"Go ahead with your muskrat line, Joe!" he had said. "I won't hinder you." The surveyors who made the preliminary reconnaissance had shirked their work and lied. Wilton suspected that most of them had been in Bowyer's pay. Bowyer and Bostock were old rivals. They had reported Big Muskeg to be an insignificant swamp with a firm underbed about the portage. It could be crossed, of course, in the end, since nature always yielded to man. But the Mississippian must either swing a huge loop around it, through territory unsurveyed, or set to itself the task of filling those unsounded depths with thousands of tons of rock.

"D—n you!" said Wilton, shaking his fist toward the valley. "We'll beat you yet. We've made a bad blunder, Joe. Crooked work, without doubt—though I can't imagine why Bowyer's gang should make the trouble to hurt us unless, of course, they guess—"

Joe Bostock shook his head. "No, they haven't guessed that, Wilton," he answered. "I'll stake my hat on that. There ain't nobody except me and you and Kitty knows. It's just bad luck, Wilton—"

Joe could never sense treachery nor bring himself to believe in its possibility; and if that weakness had kept him, in the main, a poor man, it had bound his friends to him with unbreakable bonds.

"At the best it's gross negligence," said Wilton. "Those surveyors scamped their work. I accepted their reports. I couldn't go out with the transit and aneroid and follow them all up to check their results. But I might have sounded Big Muskeg. I didn't." His voice choked. "Joe, if you have any sense, you'll fire me first," he said.

Joe Bostock laid his hands on the other man's shoulders and the humorous smile came on his face. "Well, I guess not, Wilton," he said. "You ain't to blame. You've done all that mortal man could do. The Mississippian couldn't have been built at all without you. Fire you? Why, Kitty'd have my life if I dared suggest such a thing."

Wilton frowned involuntarily at the reference to the pretty young wife whom Joe Bostock had married in Winnipeg the year before. Joe's first marriage had been unhappy; it had been long ago, and Wilton knew there had been a separation, though Joe was always reticent about that.

Kitty was five and thirty years younger than Joe, and she had intervened into a fast friendship of more than a decade between Joe and Wilton. It made a difference, as it always does, though Joe had sworn it should not, and Kitty thought the world of Wilton.

Wilton could never understand his secret feeling about Kitty. She was devoted to Joe. Perhaps that was what lay beneath his latent antagonism toward her. He was jealous of her. He was jealous of a woman's love for Joe.

"I guess not!" said Joe Bostock again, pressing his hand hard down on Wilton's shoulder.

And, in that instant, Wilton heard the crack of a rifle, and felt a violent blow on the upper part of the left arm, which knocked him to the ground. As he fell, Joe Bostock pitched forward upon him.

Twice Joe's lips quivered, as if he was trying to speak. Then the lower jaw dropped and the eyes rolled upward. A grayish pallor crept over the face.

Wilton saw that Joe's mackinaw had a tiny tear in it, over the breast. A trickle of blood seeped through the cloth. He wrenched the garment open with his right hand, pulled up the sweater, and tore the shirt apart. The heart, fluttering like a wounded bird, stopped under his hand. Joe sighed once, but he never stirred again. The bullet had passed clean through Joe Bostock's heart from the back. And, as he tried to raise Joe's body, Wilton realized that the same bullet had broken his left arm, which hung limp from the shoulder.

He sprang, to his feet, a mad wrath giving back to him his ebbing strength. He glared about him, but it was impossible to ascertain from where the shot had come. He could not even locate the direction within a hundred degrees, for Joe had been in the act of turning. Nobody was in sight, and the woods were silent.

His bellowing call of fury that went echoing through the trees elicited no answer. He tore strips from his handkerchief, holding it between his teeth, and, with his left hand on his knee, knotted them about a stick and improvised a tourniquet. The blood was spurting down his sleeve in jets, the pain was intense, and it was impossible to take off the mackinaw and hope to replace his arms in it; but he twisted with all his force until the diminishing flow showed that he had compressed the artery. Thrusting the longer end of the stick beneath his armpit, he passed the other through the buttonhole of the garment, and, stooping, managed to get Joe's body upon his shoulder and to hold it with his right arm.

His impulse was to carry Joe's body back to the camp, but he knew that it would be impossible to make the distance. Yet to leave it would mean the certainty of mutilation by bears or timber-wolves unless he could build a cairn of stones. And of that he was equally incapable. He set Joe's body down, and, in the first full realization of his loss and his predicament, he shouted curses to the sky.

That murder had been intended he did not believe; no doubt the shot had been a bullet fired at some nearer mark, perhaps a hare, and by one of the half-breeds. He suspected that the transit-bearer, following them up, had fired the shot, and, seeing the fatality, had fled.

But the thought that this might be the explanation was only a fleeting one. Joe was dead, and his body must be cared for, just as if he were alive—taken back to the camp and thence out of the woods. There was no possibility of leaving Joe's body there. Yet it seemed to him that he could not hope to reach the camp. And now another idea came to him.

It was seven miles back to the camp, but only five to the portage over the frozen swamp. Upon the other side of the portage was a trail that came out of the prairie southward and wound into the unknown north. Along this Indians brought their winter catches to the trading-store of McDonald, the factor of the Hudson's Bay company.

Traveling was hard along the shore of the great Muskeg, but it would mean two miles less, and it was just possible to make the store. McDonald was a queer, taciturn, sometimes venomous old man, and had evinced a strong dislike of Wilton on the occasion of their last meeting. Yet McDonald would shelter him and receive Joe's body. And then there was Molly, his daughter.

Wilton, having made his choice, acted on it at once. With a great effort he raised Joe's stiffened form upon his shoulder; and doggedly he began his awful journey, his right arm grasping the dead man, his helpless left hugging the tourniquet-stick against his side.

He stumbled over the rough ground until he reached the cleared road through the trees. Here the going was easier, but the burden numbed his right hand and shoulder, the throbbing pain in his left seemed to beat time to his footsteps, and the ache of the cramping muscles increased the agony of his wound and began to spread down his body.

A whirl sprang up, driving gusts of whirling snow into his eyes. A deadly lethargy was creeping over him, and presently, turning his head to shield his eyes from the beating blasts, he saw a trickle of crimson on the road behind him.

The tourniquet had loosened. He was bleeding his life away. The blood was gushing down his fingers. Wilton set Joe's body down and succeeded in tightening the compress. And it was only after an almost superhuman struggle that he could get Joe over his shoulder. He knew that if he was forced to set the body down again he could never lift it.

With knees bent, tripping over the roots of the trees, and reeling through a swimming world, he staggered on and on and on. And neither his anger nor the thought of Kitty could have kept his resolution through that nightmare of pain. It was all Joe now, the memory of Joe, his love for him, and his resolve that his friend's remains should not be torn by the timber-wolves.

Joe had befriended him years before, when he had drifted, penniless, into Winnipeg. Joe's faith had been his own, and the secret of the Mississippian theirs.

So the miles reeled off behind him, while the wind increased and the snow fell thicker along the way. At last the trees opened, and the bleak shore of Big Muskeg lay before him, a desert of ice and snow, with the bluffs opposite, and beyond them the trees once more.

At once the fierce swirl of the gale caught him, whistling like sirens, boring into his face like white-hot probes. The ice that fringed his lashes blinded him and pulled them from the lids when he tried to open his eyes. He reeled on, clutching Joe's body, and heard his own voice go from him in shouts of despair. They rolled across the snow, and the echoes came in faint, unheeding answer from the distant cliffs.

Wilton retained sufficient consciousness of his surroundings to make his way along the shore toward the portage. He might have shortened his route to McDonald's store a little by risking a direct crossing; but the surface of a muskeg is always dangerous, even in midwinter, when the apparently solid ice conceals sink-holes of slush, which, mixed with peat and coze, does not congeal firmly, and entraps the unwary traveler, a quick-mud from which escape is next to impossible.

"And somehow, breaking the rotten ice in front of her body, the girl succeeded in getting Wilton to the shore."

Nature Has Provided for the Hermetical Closing of Nostrils of Seal and Camel.

Most of us when we go in for diving have the very unpleasant experience of getting our nostrils full of water. Nature did not design man to be a diving animal, otherwise she would have been as clever with his nose as she has been with seal's, London Tit-Bits says.

The seal is, without doubt, the cleverest diver in the animal world, and his nose is a very ingenious contrivance indeed. Each nostril is provided with muscles which close it hermetically at the owner's will. And the shape of the nose is such that when the nostrils are closed not a drop of water can enter.

With seals the closing of the nostrils at the moment of diving has become an automatic process.

This is wonderful enough, but we can see a still more remarkable application of the same principle in an animal as far removed from the seal as chalk is from cheese.

The seal is a water animal. The other owner of trapdoor nostrils is the camel, an inhabitant of the drier parts of the world, the waterless sandy deserts. Now, why should the camel require such an apparatus? He is not troubled with water, but he is troubled with dust; not the dust that we see in this country, but the fierce, blinding duststorms of the desert.

These are so violent that tiny particles are driven into the works of even the most finely made watch, which becomes at once clogged and useless. If the camel had not nostrils which were perfectly dust-tight he could never endure the dreadful sand and dust storms.

Home Town Helps

MAKE HOME A BEAUTY SPOT

Matter Is More One of Careful Thought Than Mere Expenditure of Actual Cash.

The "brightening up" process ought to start with the lot line. Invest in some fertilizer for the lawn—you'll be surprised at the good it will do. Then, over in one corner may be a spot where a spirea, or a climbing rose could work wonders in transformation. Perhaps the sidewalk entrances may need repainting, or the porches have to be painted, and surely every two or three years a house needs a coat or two of good paint, remembering the slogan that when you "save the surface, you save all." Then the garage and the flower garden come in for their share of new things. Perhaps there's a cracked window pane somewhere that needs replacing, or a cupboard to build.

Inside the home, most folks clear away the dirt and the grime and the smoke of winter hours with a vigorous application of the scrub brush, plus the services of a good decorator. A few dollars invested in matters like these adds the inmates of any dwelling, no matter how modest or pretentious, to get a new grip on life.

But just a word of caution before you do anything. Consider well what should be done, make your plans, then go to dealers you can trust and make your purchases, keeping in mind the fact that those who advertise their wares, who are unafraid to speak of the merits of their merchandise publicly, through newspaper columns, are the ones to turn to both for advice and for the actual investment of the dollars you have planned to spend for the little things that help make a house a home.

After dark the Careless Cht throws the paper off the bread out the kitchen window of his apartment to his neighbor's lawn, to save himself ten steps to the incinerator, and when he sees small boys throwing a milk bottle or a dead electric bulb on the pavement, spraying glass in the path of vulnerable tires, Careless Cht laughs and says boys will be boys.

Home doesn't begin at the front door and end at the back. It goes from the curb to the alley fence. It takes in the clothesline and the green shutter and every bough of the apple-tree. Poets may rave of the old oaken, moss-covered bucket, but they don't drink out of it. The inconveniences of the summer home are all right when you're on a vacation.

The time of home regeneration is here, however, and it doesn't end until the blackness cast up by the radiator is cleansed from the wall and the indoor nicks of winter have disappeared under the application of elbow-grease.

HERE IS SPIRIT THAT WINS

"Boost" Is the Word That Means Everything to the Individual and the Community.

You are invited to join the Community Boosters, and—Boost your county, boost your friend, Boost the church that you attend; Boost the place where you are dwelling.

Boost the goods that you are selling. Boost the people round about you; They can get along without you—But success will quicker find them if they know that you're behind them. Boost for every forward movement, Boost for every new improvement; Boost the man for whom you labour, Boost the stranger and the neighbor; Cease to be a chronic knocker, Cease to be a progress-blocker, If you'd make your community better Boost it to the final letter.

—Nebraska City Weekly News.

The City Beautiful.

We can't have too many pretty towns, or too many pretty homes in town and country. Progress along this line is being made annually and with increasing interest among progressive town builders and home owners. There is no use for shabbiness. Shabbiness connotes indolence and indifference. A house or a town which indicates careless occupants, citizens concerned only for primitive necessities, is not one to attract the sort of people that energetic people want to know. Poverty is no excuse for shabbiness. The humblest dwelling does not need to be shabby. Shabbiness is carelessness, not flimsiness. Many a flimsy little cottage or cabin exhibits a quality that is far superior to shabbiness. It is the careless, untenanted, dilapidated, apathetic look to a man's home, a man's town, or a man's clothing that gives it shabbiness. One needn't be shabby in overalls any more than in a tailor-made suit.—Dallas (Tex.) News.

Lion's Meal of Porcupine Fatal.

The victim of its own rapacity, a dead mountain lion is on exhibition in Stevensville, Mont. Two local hunters "bagged" the beast with so little trouble that they were puzzled, until an examination of the lion's mouth showed it had attempted to feast upon a porcupine. Aggravating darts had become imbedded in the membrane, preventing the animal from partaking of food. Spikes of the "quill pig" had been known to kill beasts in a similar manner. The lion on exhibition is of unusual size.

GAINS 8 POUNDS IN TWO WEEKS' TIME

Dyspepsia Entirely Overcome and She Eats, Sleeps and Feels Better Than in Years, Says Boston Resident.

"I have actually gained eight pounds in two weeks' time and am now eating better, sleeping better and feeling better than I have in three or four years," said Mrs. Celesta Fell, 32 Prince street, Boston, Mass., recently, in telling of the great benefits she has derived from the use of Tanlac.

"My stomach was in such a bad fix before I took Tanlac that I did not dare eat much of anything, for if I did I would have so much pain and distress from indigestion that I felt like I was going to die. I was so run down and weak from lack of nourishment that I could not do my housework."

"I was so nervous I couldn't keep still during the day nor sleep at night. I can see now if it had not been for Tanlac I would have had to give up entirely. I am now feeling strong and healthy and all the credit belongs to Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

HOSPITAL PATIENTS.

Chas. L. Swope, of Hanover, has entered the Union Protestant Infirmary, Baltimore, for a minor operation.

Erman Bucher, Cashtown, who cut his foot severely on Monday, has been taken to the Chambersburg Hospital.

Bernard R. Styles, of Littlestown, and Mabel Bolling, of Gettysburg, were admitted to the Warner Hospital Tuesday morning where they will undergo treatment.

Paul Asper, of Huntingdon township, was suddenly afflicted with appendicitis last week and promptly removed to a Harrisburg hospital where he successfully underwent the necessary operation.

J. W. Thomas, of Littlestown, who recently underwent a second operation for the transfusion of blood at the Mercy Hospital, Baltimore, is somewhat improved. He has been moved from the hospital to the Villa, an institution connected with Johns Hopkins.

Miss Myrtle Furney, of near Gettysburg, was admitted to the Warner Hospital Thursday and operated upon. Madeline M. Sanders, of near Gettysburg, was also admitted to the institution as a medical case. Mrs. Warren K. Enck, Biglerville and young son, Thomas, were discharged from the institution, Wednesday.

Thomas McKendrick, of near Orrtanna, who was shot in the leg accidentally several months ago, has been re-admitted to the Warner hospital for a skin grafting operation. It seems that part of the wound caused by the shooting accident will not heal properly, so it was decided to graft new skin over the affected spot. Russell Frock, of the Hoffman Orphanage, near Littlestown, was admitted to the institution Monday to undergo an operation for appendicitis. Catherine Adams, of Gettysburg was admitted Monday, for an operation. Charles Shultz, of near Orrtanna, has been admitted to the hospital for an X-ray examination.

The Jacobs store stand at Littlestown narrowly escaped destruction early Wednesday week when the building was discovered to be on fire by Mrs. Lydia Brough, who resides just across the street. She began ringing her farm bell and a bucket brigade in a short time had the fire under control. The store building was considerably damaged. The property is owned by Ross Jacobs, of Reading. The property has been occupied by Meyer Fromm who left on Saturday week for Steelton for several days visit.

The Hanover Motor Car Co., which has been manufacturing light cars in the former Genco Light Co. plant, East Hanover, has purchased for $225,000 the plant of the Patent Motors Corp., at Buffalo, N. Y., where they will manufacture cars. Efforts to sell stock in the company at Hanover met with indifference. Vice President Norwalk is now in Hanover supervising the removal of the stock and materials from the former plant in East Hanover. The car sells at $250.

A Hanover motorist has offered to take photographs of the road leading from Hanover to the Adams county line at Bittingers Station and send them in to the State Highway Department. It seems an outrage, says the Record-Herald, that a road used as much as this one is left in its present miserable condition.

Adams county farmers state that the clear weather and hot summer have returned in time to save their crops which were seriously threatened by the long continued rains. In some places grain had started to sprout, but this had small headway.

Despondency over the death of his wife and melancholia brought on by the breaking up of his home, led Samuel J. Oiler, 81, respected citizen of Waynesboro, to commit suicide by hanging at the home of his son, Seth A. Oiler, Sunday.

The Rev. H. C. Denman, who has recently come to Gettysburg as pastor of the Asbury M. E. church (colored), is starting a drive for $2,000 with which to erect a Community House.

Serg. Fleisher, of Philadelphia, who conducted a recruiting station for Marines at Gettysburg, the past week, reports having received eight applicants but not one was accepted.

Miss Henrietta Allowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curvin H. Allowell, Hanover, is able to be out, following a bad auto accident at New Baltimore, 2½ weeks ago, in which she was hurt. Property holders of McSherrystown will be required to trim their trees to the required height within 10 days.

HERE AND THERE

John J. Dwyer, an attorney-at-law with offices at 44 Wall Street, New York City, is anxious to locate relatives of William M. Lear, or Lehr, in order that a fortune of respectable size may be properly distributed. In a letter to various newspapers, Mr. Dwyer states that "one William M. Lear died recently leaving upwards of $15,000 and no heirs. He was born in Pennsylvania about 1859 and left there about 1875. It is believed he had a sister, Mary, and probably a brother. The name may have been Lehr." Two claimants have appeared already in York.

As soon as a permit to erect poles along the Carlisle pike is received from the State Highway Department, the Hanover Power Company will build a new line to Clearview, near Hanover. The line will be about one mile in length. Thirteen houses will be connected immediately on completion of the line.

The wet weather and the immense crowds resulted in the beautiful lawns at the sides of avenues all over the Gettysburg battlefield being badly cut up. The fields used by the Marine camp present an appearance which indicates that they cannot be used successfully for farming purposes for a year.

Percy Eichelberger has returned to York Springs after completing a successful term of teaching in the public schools of Amityville, L. I. Mr. Eichelberger has been re-elected at the same place for the next term at a substantial increase of salary.

The annual picnic of the Abbotts-Lutheran Sunday school will be held Saturday afternoon and evening, in Farmers grove. Music will be furnished by the East Berlin band.

Wayne Kroh, Hanover taximan, has added a Winton Six 7-passenger car to his service.

Sunday afternoon, Mervin D. Nogele, of Mt. Holly Springs, was thrown through the top of his Chalmers car when another automobile crowded him off the road at a point on the Hanover-Abbottstown pike near the Moul farm. As a result, he sustained a scalp wound on the top of his head about three inches long. The top of the car was badly damaged, and also the rear end of the car.

As the result of injuries received Sunday a week when the motorcycle he was driving crashed into a telephone pole in York, Guy Frisby, aged 33 years, colored, died Thursday at the York hospital. This was the fourth death from motor accidents in and near York in ten days.

An increase in wages which will bring the scale approximately on a level with those ordered by the U. S. Railroad Labor Board effective July 1, was announced last week by the Dickson Construction & Repair Co., which took over the shops of the W. M. Ry., at Hagerstown and at other points along the system March 20. The taking over of the shops by the Dickson Company was followed by a strike of shopmen five days later.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lessig have completed their vaudeville tour for the season and will spend the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Britcher, Hanover.

An enjoyable outing was held by Hanover lodge, I. O. O. F., in accordance with their annual custom, near East Berlin along the Conewago creek. Auto license 666,666, the highest similarly numbered tag for 1922, has been issued by the highway department.

The 16th annual Lutheran Summer Assembly will be held on the Seminary campus at Gettysburg, August 2-9.

St. Mark's Lutheran church, Hanover, will hold their annual picnic at Boiling Springs next Wednesday.

On Monday a week the regular quarterly meeting of the Adams County Firemen's Association was held in Fairfield. The meeting was the last one before the annual convention which will be held in McSherrystown on Labor Day. Final arrangements for the annual convention are now being made by the officers. The principal speaker for the occasion at McSherrystown will be Hon. Eugene Bonniwell. Other speakers will be William Hersh, Esq., Rev. P. F. Sullivan and Rev. J. B. Baker. M. F. Stoner, of Fairfield, was elected to represent the association at the convention of the State Firemen to be held in Harrisburg in October. It was unanimously decided to hold a picnic in Witmers grove, near McSherrystown, on Labor Day afternoon. The next meeting will be held in Mt. Rock, on Monday evening, October 2nd.

Wednesday the State Police arrested Edna Kennedy, of Wheeling, W. Va., and Grace Loudon, of Washington, for soliciting among soldiers. They were placed in jail for blood tests with other women arrested on the same charge.

Miss Ruth Spangler, of Gettysburg, was elected to fill the vacancy in the High school faculty, that place, made by Miss Mary E. Rice, of Arendtsville, who resigned to teach at Tyrone.

Curtis F. Heagy, who was discharged from the Army at Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands, has returned to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. G. Heagy, Gettysburg.

John D. Lippy & Son, Gettysburg tailors, have again been awarded the contract of supplying uniforms for the officers and clerical force of the State Police.

Wilbur Bream, of Biglerville, who suffered a broken leg in an accident several months ago, is now able to be out of bed. Friends have helped with his harvest.

Application blanks for the use of those young men in Adams county who expect to enter a Citizens' Military Training camp this summer from July 27 to August 26 have been received here and may be secured by applying at Dr. W. R. Snyder's dental office, Carlisle street. Qualified applicants may select the service desired. The War Dept. will pay all expenses.

All traffic records across the P. R. R. bridge at Wrightsville were broken from July 2, up to Sunday evening, nearly 10,000 automobiles and trucks passing over the bridge. During the week a machine bearing Honolulu license passed. The occupants said this was the first toll bridge they had encountered during a drive of over 2,000 miles.

A family reunion was held on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Schwartz, when their children and families all assembled at their home, near Little Round Top. Mr. and Mrs. Schwartz have been married nearly 50 years. Until six years ago, they lived on their farm in Mt. Joy township.

Mrs. Alice Wassem and daughter Kathryn, of York, are on a visit at the home of Mrs. Wassem's eldest son, Wilbur, at Los Angeles, Calif. A stop will be made at Memphis, Tenn., to visit Rev. Father C. T. Wassem, also a son of Mrs. Wassem.

A novel request was made by Burgess Bair at the recommendation of a prominent woman of Hanover that council appoint a police woman to look after the female sex and their interests. No action was taken.

A Pen-Mar hotel has appropriated the name of Waldheim, the original Camp at Docks.

Harry Hartzell, of near Cashtown, broke his wrist while cranking a car on Sunday.

Solomon Bupp, White Hall, is busily engaged in making brooms.

Mrs. Mary E. Wehler, of Hanover, formerly of New Oxford, has a grandfather's clock that has told the hours for centuries and is probably the oldest clock of its kind in this section. At least none can surpass the clock for accuracy, and perfect mechanical construction. The clock bears the inscription, "John Launes, W. Bonanago 1719." It was brought to America from Scotland years ago by the Lingfelters, great-great-grandparents of the present owner, who about 30 years ago came into possession of same.

Rev. Anthony L. Topper, formerly assistant rector of St. Mary's church, Lebanon, and a son of Mrs. Annie Topper, of McSherrystown, has been transferred to St. Joseph's parish, Shamokin, where he has been transferred to become the assistant of Rev.
